Planting 5 Trees Will Cost $90,000

BOSTON (AP) — It has taken a year and a half of planning, 25 design changes and $90,000, but the city has at last figured out how to plant five trees in downtown Boston.

The Boston Redevelopment Authority — BRA — in what was to be one of the smallest urban renewal projects in the nation, wanted to plant a few trees on a 6,500-square-foot piece of property.

The area is some 40 feet from the site of the original Liberty Tree, where once 300 colonial "Sons of Liberty" rallied against the British.

But the site is also the heart of a massive underground network of transit, power lines, telephone, electric and gas lines and a 36-inch water main.

What started out as a $2,000 planting job looked at one point as if it would cost about $1 million, when plans called for relocating utility lines to make room for tree roots.

It was then that BRA director Robert Kenney, who calls the project his "favorite frustration," said "I surrender."

But BRA planner John Sloane gave it one more try.

"I came up with the idea of putting the trees in movable planters," he said. "Then if maintenance (of underground utility lines) is necessary, the planters can be hoisted by crane and later replaced."

The park with its five trees each in a 20-ton planter, will cost $235,000 including necessary street work in the area, according to BRA spokesman Ralph Memolo. The actual cost of the park itself was about $90,000. Work is scheduled to begin in July and should be completed by November.

The trees will be Caliper Little Leaf Lindens. Plans to duplicate the original Liberty Tree, an elm, were scrubbed by BRA planners because of the susceptibility of the elm to disease.

"The idea means more than just these trees," Memolo said. "The Boston downtown area is so developed, we can't get any green space short of major renewal. So we settled on the idea for a number of miniparks."

Patricia Accused

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury for armed robbery in the $10,690 holdup of a San Francisco bank.

The indictment, returned in U.S. District Court, also charged the 20-year-old Miss Hearst and other unnamed persons with use of firearms to commit a felony in the April 15 robbery of a Hibernia bank branch. The two charges against her carry maximum prison sentences of 35 years.

Miss Hearst, kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4 by the Symbionese Libation Army, had been charged as a material witness in the holdup. Four SLA members were charged with bank robbery, but those charges were dropped when all of them were among the six SLA members killed in a May 17 shootout with police in Los Angeles.

Surveillance cameras photographed Miss Hearst cradling a carbine in the bank, but federal authorities said at the time it was not clear whether she was a willing participant. And after Miss Hearst declared in a taped message that she had been a willing participant, authorities and the woman's family said she may well have been coerced or brainwashed.

On recommendation of U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., Judge Oliver J. Carter dismissed the material witness warrant against Miss Hearst and continued her bail at $500,000.

In suburban Hillsborough, Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, said of the indictment, "I naturally don't like it, but there's nothing I can do about it. I really don't have any comment beyond that."

"The grand jury's investigation is continuing with respect to other possible federal crimes and other possible suspects," said Browning after the indictment was returned. He said the same grand jury would continue considering the kidnaping of Miss Hearst and the April 15 SLA bank robbery.

In response to a question, Browning said the grand jury had not ruled out the possibility Miss Hearst may have been involved in her own kidnaping.

"There may be further indictments," he said. "There is a possibility that people unknown previously are involved." He would not elaborate or comment on evidence considered thus far by the grand fury. He said the grand jury would meet again next Thursday.

Eighteen members of the 23-person federal grand jury which returned the indictment appeared in open court Thursday afternoon when the new charges against Miss Hearst were announced. The indictment ran a page and a half.

The indictment was the second and most serious federal charge filed against Miss Hearst.

The previous federal charge was a firearms violation, and alleged that she had sprayed a suburban Los Angeles sporting goods store with automatic weapons fire on May 16. She and two SLA members, William and Emily Harris, face 18 state felony charges, including robbery, kidnaping and assault.

The FBI has said that the Harrises and Miss Hearst are the only persons it seeks in connection with the terrorist SLA, which first came to public attention when it claimed credit for the Nov. 6 assassination of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

Its next claimed act was the kidnaping of Miss Hearst, which became the country's first major political abduction.

The photographs of the bank robbery showed Miss Hearst standing in about the middle of the bank. Two other armed persons who were identified as SLA members appeared to be pointing weapons in her direction.

Authorities said those pictures showed she may have been coerced, and a photographic expert said in an independent report issued later that his examination turned up several reasons to believe she had been coerced into taking part in the robbery.

The armed bank robbery count carries a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Use of a firearm to commit a felony is punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

Miss Hearst first pledged allegiance to the SLA in a tape issued on April 3. In it, she said:

"I have been given the choice of (1) being released in a safe area, or (2) joining the forces of the Symbionese Liberation Army and fighting for my freedom and the freedom of all oppressed people.

"I have chosen to fight."

The next time authorities heard from the SLA was April 15 when four gun-wielding women and a man burst into Hibernia Bank.

Regional Pollution Plan Is Approved

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Natural Resources Commission Thursday approved a regional water quality plan which someday will allow aquatic life to thrive in the now-polluted Salt Creek downstream from Lincoln.

The Lower Platte Basin Water Quality Management Plan calls for no more than 6,250 pounds of oxygen-consuming wastes to be dumped into the Salt Creek each day, according to commission sanitary engineer Mrs. Sue Hoppel.

The vast majority of that amount, 5,940 pounds, is what the City of Lincoln would be allowed to discharge daily. The balance would be discharged by other communities, including Greenwood, Ashland and Waverly. The discharge limits are in accord with national and state water quality standards, she said.

Mrs. Hoppel said Lincoln is presently dumping about three times the allowed amount under the plan into Salt Creek. However, once the Theresa plant expansion is completed and the Havelock treatment plant is built, Lincoln should be able to meet those standards, she said.

Gayle Lewis, who heads up the commission's water quality staff, said the commission agreed to a number of editorial changes in the plan suggested by Lincoln city sanitary engineer Jerry Obrist.

Obrist had expressed concern about the plan at a hearing Thursday night. As the city grows, he said, the treatment plants will have to be upgraded from secondary to tertiary treatment to stay within the allowed discharges. Tertiary treatment is a more efficient method of cleaning sewage wastes but is also more expensive.

The commission also voted to double the staff of its flood plain management team from three to six and to concentrate on directing flood plain development in rural areas.

The first priority, according to flood plain administrator Al Matthews, will be the Big Blue River Basin, which suffered $37 million in agricultural damage in an October 1973 flood.

COLLECTION TIME NOW

I will be collecting this week at the new home delivery rates announced May 13th which are:

By Carrier (Outside of Lincoln)	1 Week	4 Weeks
DAILY	55c	$2.20
SUNDAY	35c	1.40
BOTH	90c	3.60

This is the first subscription price change for home delivery of the Daily in Lincoln since Jan. 1969. It amounts to an advance of 10c per week for carrier delivery of the daily issues. Of this, 3c has been added to my profit. There is no change in the Sunday paper route.

I am a young merchant buying papers at wholesale, selling them at retail, earning profits each 4 weeks after I have collected from customers. I appreciate your promptness in paying when I call to collect.

A Cement Truck Is Not Easy To Lift

Westbound traffic on O St. was blocked for more than an hour at 9th St. Thursday afternoon as four wreckers struggled to right an overturned 25-ton cement truck. Police said William M. Hiller, 24, of 405 N. 25th, No. 4, driver of the truck, was making a right turn from 9th onto O St. when the truck overturned. Police said the truck's load of seven cubic yards of wet cement may have shifted during the turn. The first two wreckers at the scene failed to right the truck when a cable on one of the wreckers broke. Only a few puddles of cement escaped from the truck, but damage to the truck was estimated at $5,000, police said. (Staff Photo by Randy Hampton)

Sniper Was 'Acting Strange Lately'

Omaha (AP) — The wounded half-brother of slain sniper Elza Carr told Omaha police Thursday that Carr had "been acting strange lately," and police speculated that a possible emotional problem may have led to the sniping.

Two persons were killed and 11 were wounded in the violence which began late Wednesday night and ended with Carr's death early Thursday.

The 33-year-old ex-convict, firing from a besieged rooming house in Omaha's Near North Side, held officers at bay for nearly five hours before being killed by police as he emerged.

Patrolman Paul Nields, 32, died in a hospital from shotgun wounds in the head. He was shot during a police attempt to shoot tear gas into the rooming house where Carr was holding officers off.

Standing In Front Door

Omaha Police Chief Richard Andersen said Nields was not involved in an assault on the house, but had entered a front porch and was standing in the front door when Carr shot him from a stairway.

Andersen said Nields was not ordered to enter the structure and his decision to do so was made only by him.

Nebraska State Patrol troopers and Douglas County deputy sheriffs joined Omana police after the shotgun-armed Carr holed-up in the frame structure.

Flames erupted on the inside of the two-story rooming house as police poured tear gas cannisters into the building in an attempt to dislodge Carr. The flames were believed to be a result of the tear gas.

Officers darted in and out among police and other vehicles parked on the street and were forced to stay low by periodic fire from the building.

Assurances Given

The chief assured Carr that he would not be harmed and repeated the plea several times.

Spectators surrounded the house at all times during the incident, however their numbers appeared to increase after Carr was dragged from the porch where he was fatally wounded.

At times the crowd jeered police efforts to persuade Carr to surrender. The crowd uproar increased as officers dragged Carr from the porch.

Five officers were hit early with shotgun fire from Carr upstairs in the rooming house located in a predominantly black neighborhood.

Jesse McDaniel, Carr's halfbrother, was shot after he had left $10 with Carr's landlady. Carr had requested the money in an earlier call to McDaniel.

Booker Stubblefield, a bystader, was shot and treated at a hospital. He was later released.

Policemen shot were Sgt. Guy Goodrich, who was listed in serious condition at an Omaha hospital; Patrolman James Krzemien; Sgt. Bernard Venditte, earlier listed in serious condition but later reported off the serious list; Patrolman Edward Hale; Patrolman James Slatter, Patrolman David Schlottman, Patrolman Harold Bloemer; and Patrolman William Ferretti.

Venditte, Goodrich, Krzemien, Slattery and Schlotman were wounded first. Ferretti and Hale were shot at the same time as Nields. Bloemer was shot shortly after 2 a.m. as he ran from behind a truck to a police command car.

The only officer remaining in serious condition was Goodrich.

Mrs. Jesse McDonald, wife of Carr's half-brother, said the incident began when Carr's landlady called the McDonald home about 8:15 p.m. saying Carr was not feeling well and needed $10.

McDonald, upon returning home about 8:45, called the landlady, Mrs. Mary Owens, and then talked with Carr. McDonald left for the rooming house and after leaving the $10 with Mrs. Owens, was shot as he left the building.

Police Called To Scene

Police were then called to the scene.

Persons in the rooming house when the shooting began, in addition to Mrs. Owens, were her husband, Harry, and James Solmon. Police Chief Andersen said none was harmed.

Andersen said Carr was convicted of two felonies, one in 1967 and one in 1972. Newspaper files indicate the convictions were for receiving stolen property and robbery and that Carr served time in the Nebraska Penal Complex in Lincoln.

Andersen said 20-25 police officers were involved in attempting to dislodge Carr.

Following the shooting of Carr. Annie Worlds was wounded. Andersen said she was wounded during a scuffle and had no comment on where the shots might have come from.

Man Charged In Several Rapes

Two charges of rape and one attempted rape were also filed against Johnson in Lawrence, Kan.

An Associated Press story quoted authorities in Douglas County, Kan., as saying the arrest may clear up as many as 16 rapes at the University of Kansas dating to the fall of 1972.

Lawrence police detectives and KU security men flew to Lincoln after Lawrence was mentioned during questioning by Lincoln police.

Lincoln police said they do not believe the arrest has any connection with a series of eight rapes in north central Lincoln.

Johnson graduated from Ottawa (Kan.) University Sunday, where he had been the second leading scorer on the school's basketball team. He served as team captain his senior year and was named to the Heart of America Conference all-league team, the Associated Press said.

Lincoln police said Johnson had been in Lincoln since Monday and was looking for a job.

Johnson was arrested Wednesday at 14th and Vine by police officers who said he matched the description of the assailant in an attempted rape earlier in the day.

In that case, police said, a man dragged a 24-year-old Lincoln woman into an alley along 16th St. between G and F.

Police said that three women acquaintances of the woman happened to be driving by. Police said the driver turned into the alley and the man fled.

Johnson was charged in Lancaster County Court with attempted rape in connection with that incident. He was also charged with the March 16 rape of a 15-year-old Malcolm girl.

The rape occurred near 14th St. and Salt Creek, police said. Police said a man accosted the girl as she was walking from a basketball tournament game.

A preliminary hearing on the Lancaster County charges was set for June 25. Bond was set at $10,000.

Lincoln Woman Is Killed In Fall

Sellmeyer said the woman apparently fell down the steps and police did not suspect foul play.

The name of the woman was being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Unindicted Co-Conspirator . . .

Nixon Named By Grand Jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Thursday to allow publication of names of persons listed by the grand jury as unindicted co-conspirators in the Watergate cover-up.

The President's action followed confirmation by his chief Watergate lawyer earlier in the day that the grand jury decided unanimously last March to name Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator.

James D. St. Clair, the President's lawyer, told Sirica that the published reports make any further secrecy unnecessary.

He asked Sirica, in a motion, "to lift the protective order regarding the June 5, 1972, grand jury's naming of certain individuals as co-conspirators."

Sirica said he will discuss the matter in open court Friday with attorneys for both sides but "I don't know when I'll rule on it."

On March 1 the grand jury indicted seven men on conspiracy charges, including top Nixon aides H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Charles W. Colson and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The reports were that the jurors voted 19 to 0 to name the President, but that Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski counseled against the action, on grounds that it might not be constitutional.

The jury instead issued a sealed report that was turned over to the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry.

St. Clair told newsmen Thursday that he was informed of the grand jury's action by Jaworski three or four weeks ago.

Unindicted co-conspirators are not charged with a crime and cannot be prosecuted under the indictment in which they are named.

The grand jury said the conspiracy to block the Watergate investigation was the work of the seven men "and other persons to the grand jury known and unknown."

Jaworski's office had no immediate comment on the motion, except to say the names would not immediately be made public.

In court filings Wedneday, Jaworski agreed to turn over to defense attorneys in the case the names of unindicted co-conspirators in the case.

Several of the defendants had asked for such a list. Sources said the President's name was on it.

On the day the indictments were returned, Sirica issued an order forbidding prosecutors, defendants and any witnesses "from making extrajudicial statements concerning any aspect of this case . . ."

"The reasons for the continuance of the protective order are no longer compelling," St. Clair said in his motion.

Responding to newsmen's question about the President's reaction to what the grand jury did, St. Clair replied:

"His view of course, is that they just don't have all the evidence . . . I think he felt it was quite inappropriate . . . he was confident that the true facts would come out in time and that he would be exonerated."

The Los Angeles Times first disclosed the jurors' 19-0 vote

There had been reports in March that the grand jury wanted to name the President among the defendants but that Jaworski counseled against the action.

A spokesman on March 12 said Jaworski felt "it would not be responsible conduct . to return an indictment against the President . . . only to learn in the end that the U.S. Supreme Court holds such action to be unconstitutional."

Jaworski felt, the spokesman said, that the House Judiciary Committee "is the appropriate body . . . to determine whether he should be charged with conduct justifying impeachment and removal from office."

Patricia Accused

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury for armed robbery in the $10,690 holdup of a San Francisco bank.

The indictment, returned in U.S. District Court, also charged the 20-year-old Miss Hearst and other unnamed persons with use of firearms to commit a felony in the April 15 robbery of a Hibernia bank branch. The two charges against her carry maximum prison sentences of 35 years.

Miss Hearst, kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4 by the Symbionese Libation Army, had been charged as a material witness in the holdup. In suburban Hillsborough, Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, said of the indictment, "I naturally don't like it, but there's nothing I can do about it. I really don't have any comment beyond that."

"The grand jury's investigation is continuing with respect to other possible federal crimes and other possible suspects," said Browning after the indictment was returned. He said the same grand jury would continue considering the kidnaping of Miss Hearst and the April 15 SLA bank robbery.

In response to a question, Browning said the grand jury had not ruled out the possibility Miss Hearst may have been involved in her own kidnaping.

"There may be further indictments," he said. "There is a possibility that people unknown previously are involved." He would not elaborate or comment on evidence considered thus far by the grand fury. He said the grand jury would meet again next Thursday.

Eighteen members of the 23-person federal grand jury which returned the indictment appeared in open court Thursday afternoon when the new charges against Miss Hearst were announced. The indictment ran a page and a half.

The indictment was the second and most serious federal charge filed against Miss Hearst.

The previous federal charge was a firearms violation, and alleged that she had sprayed a suburban Los Angeles sporting goods store with automatic weapons fire on May 16. She and two SLA members, William and Emily Harris, face 18 state felony charges, including robbery, kidnaping and assault.

The FBI has said that the Harrises and Miss Hearst are the only persons it seeks in connection with the terrorist SLA, which first came to public attention when it claimed credit for the Nov. 6 assassination of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

Authorities said those pictures showed she may have been coerced, and a photographic expert said in an independent report issued later that his examination turned up several reasons to believe she had been coerced into taking part in the robbery.

The armed bank robbery count carries a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Use of a firearm to commit a felony is punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

Miss Hearst first pledged allegiance to the SLA in a tape issued on April 3. In it, she said:

"I have been given the choice of (1) being released in a safe area, or (2) joining the forces of the Symbionese Liberation Army and fighting for my freedom and the freedom of all oppressed people.

"I have chosen to fight."

The next time authorities heard from the SLA was April 15 when four gun-wielding women and a man burst into Hibernia Bank.

The chief assured Carr that he would not be harmed and repeated the plea several times.

Spectators surrounded the house at all times during the incident, however their numbers appeared to increase after Carr was dragged from the porch where he was fataily wounded.

At times the crowd jeered police efforts to persuade Carr to surrender. The crowd uproar increased as officers dragged Carr from the porch.

Five officers were hit early with shotgun fire from Carr upstairs in the rooming house located in a predominantly black neighborhood.

Jesse McDaniel, Carr's halfbrother, was shot after he had left $10 with Carr's landlady. Carr had requested the money in an earlier call to McDaniel.

Booker Stubblefield, a bystader, was shot and treated at a hospital. He was later released.

Policemen shot were Sgt. Guy Goodrich, who was listed in serious condition at an Omaha hospital; Patrolman James Krzemien; Sgt. Bernard Venditte, earlier listed in serious condition but later reported off the serious list; Patrolman Edward Hale; Patrolman James Slatter, Patrolman David Schlottman, Patrolman Harold Bloemer; and Patrolman William Ferretti.

Venditte, Goodrich, Krzemien, Slattery and Schlotman were wounded first. Ferretti and Hale were shot at the same time as Nields. Bloemer was shot shortly after 2 a.m. as he ran from behind a truck to a police command car.

The only officer remaining in serious condition was Goodrich.

Mrs. Jesse McDonald, wife of Carr's half-brother, said the incident began when Carr's landlady called the McDonald home about 8:15 p.m. saying Carr was not feeling well and needed $10.

McDonald, upon returning home about 8:45, called the landlady, Mrs. Mary Owens, and then talked with Carr. McDonald left for the rooming house and after leaving the $10 with Mrs. Owens, was shot as he left the building.

Police Called To Scene

Police were then called to the scene.

Persons in the rooming house when the shooting began, in addition to Mrs. Owens, were her husband, Harry, and James Solmon. Police Chief Andersen said none was harmed.

Andersen said Carr was convicted of two felonies, one in 1967 and one in 1972. Newspaper files indicate the convictions were for receiving stolen property and robbery and that Carr served time in the Nebraska Penal Complex in Lincoln.

Andersen said 20-25 police officers were involved in attempting to dislodge Carr.

Following the shooting of Carr, Annie Worlds was wounded. Andersen said she was wounded during a scuffle and had no comment on where the shots might have come from.

Man Charged In Several Rapes

Two charges of rape and one attempted rape were also filed against Johnson in Lawrence, Kan.

An Associated Press story quoted authorities in Douglas County, Kan., as saying the arrest may clear up as many as 16 rapes at the University of Kansas dating to the fall of 1972.

Lawrence police detectives and KU security men flew to Lincoln after Lawrence was mentioned during questioning by Lincoln police.

Lincoln police said they do not believe the arrest has any connection with a series of eight rapes in north central Lincoln.

Johnson graduated from Ottawa (Kan.,) University Sunday, where he had been the second leading scorer on the school's basketball team. He served as team captain his senior year and was named to the Heart of America Conference all-league team, the Associated Press said.

Lincoln police said Johnson had been in Lincoln since Monday and was looking for a job.

Johnson was arrested Wednesday at 14th and Vine by police officers who said he matched the description of the assailant in an attempted rape earlier in the day.

In that case, police said, a man dragged a 24-year-old Lincoln woman into an alley along 16th St. between G and F.

Police said that three women acquaintances of the woman happened to be driving by. Police said the driver turned into the alley and the man fled.

Johnson was charged in Lancaster County Court with attempted rape in connection with that incident. He was also charged with the March 16 rape of a 15-year-old Malcolm girl.

The rape occurred near 14th St. and Salt Creek, police said. Police said a man accosted the girl as she was walking from a basketball tournament game.

A preliminary hearing on the Lancaster County charges was set for June 25. Bond was set at $10,000.

Lincoln Woman Is Killed In Fall

Sellmeyer said the woman apparently fell down the steps and police did not suspect foul play.

Foreign Troop Cuts Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, agreeing with the Nixon administration, rejected two proposals Thursday to force U.S. troop reductions overseas.

An amendment by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., to reduce the approximately 433,000 overseas ground troops and airmen by 76,000 over the next 18 months was beaten 46 to 44 on a roll call vote.

Mansfield's original proposal to cut overseas forces by 125,000 failed by a substantial margin, 54 to 35.

The majority supported the position of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that reductions now could undermine current negotiations with the Soviet Union for mutual force reductions in Europe and jeopardize efforts for a permanent peace in Asia.

Mansfield and his supporters called large overseas troop deployments "wasteful and extravagant" in a period of inflation and increasing budget deficits.

The Democratic leader said it is costing Americans $19 billion this year to maintain 313,000 soldiers and 235,000 dependents in Europe.

He said withdrawal and deactivation of 125,000 overseas troops, perhaps all from Asia, would save $1.5 billion. He estimated that withdrawal of 76,000 could save $900 million.

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., cosponsoring the 76,000 reduction, said it could come from support troops in either Europe or Asia without harming defenses.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., another co-sponsor, said the 76,000 cutback would jeopardize neither the North Atlantic Treaty alliance nor the mutual force reduction talks under way in Vienna between NATO and Warsaw Pact nations.

Opponents argued that unilateral withdrawal of U.S. forces in Europe would shock U.S. allies in NATO when new governments in Britain, France and West Germany are struggling with economic and political problems.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said that adding the troop-cut amendments to the $21.8-billion military weapons procurement bill would kill any chance for agreement on mutual force reduction in Europe.

The talks, he said, have a chance to succeed, but in giving the Soviet-allied nations what they want without reciprocation "we'll blow the whole thing up."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said reductions would force greater reliance on nuclear weapons and increase the chance of a nuclear war.

Senators With Majority

Washington (AP) — Nebraska Republican Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska voted with the majority twice Thursday on the two votes against reducing overseas troop strength.

New York Times News Summary

Tapping Went On

Washington — The House Judiciary Committee heard evidence that 17 wiretaps undertaken in 1969 against reporters and government officials produced some political information about the President's opponents, but no evidence of "national security" leaks, according to members of the committee. The members said that in one case electronic surveillance of an adviser to a Democratic presidential contender continued for 19 months after federal agents concluded that the wiretap produced "nothing significant," about leaks.

Government Loose Group

Washington — After more than a year of mounting pressures from the Watergate scandals, a survey of administration officials indicates that President Nixon has lost much of his control of the machinery of government and is presiding over a loose confederation of departments and agencies that feel increasingly independent of the White House. And now there are signs that the key Office of Management and Budget is beginning to weaken its grip on the lines of authority.

Rutgers Settles Case

New York — Rutgers University has agreed to pay more than $375,000 to women and minority-group faculty members who have been receiving lower salaries than their white male colleagues. The settlement, which affects 186 women and 24 minority group members, was described as the largest payment ever made by a university to compensate for racial or sexual discrimination.

Rep. Powell To Retire

Washington — Rep. Walter E. Powell, an Ohio Republican who once said he wished to spend 30 years in Congress, is retiring from the House in disillusionment at 43, an age when many politicians are just starting their careers. "I'm really not happy doing what I'm doing," Powell said in an interview.

No Cease-Fire Signed

Lusaka, Zambia — The first negotiations between Portugal and the Mozambique Liberation Front adjourned Thursday without a cease-fire but with an agreement "in principle" to resume next month.

Downplay Attacked

New York — U.S. District Judge Robert L. Carter has attacked what he calls a deliberate attempt to downplay the role of blacks in the history of public school integration.

Nixon Appointments Late

Washington — On Jan. 2, Nixon signed a bill to establish a board to conduct an emergency study of failing railroads. Even though the legislation called for Nixon to appoint the members no later than March 17, it was not until May 30 that the appointments were completed, a delay officials blamed on the President's Watergate troubles.

12-Year-Old Top Speller

A Guess Is Worth A Trophy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tearful Julie Ann Junkin, 12, of Gordo, Ala., accepted the trophy as 1974 spelling champion Thursday after spelling hydrophyte correctly.

Miss Junkin won out over Gail Meier, 14, of Bartlett, Tenn., who misspelled mantelletta in the 15th round of the 47th annual National Spelling Bee.

"I guessed at the last minute," said Miss Junkin. "I knew mantelletta and took a stab at hydrophyte."

Hydrophyte means a plant growing in water and mantelletta is a knee-length outer garment worn by Catholic prelates.

Miss Junkin, a sixth grader who represented the Birmingham Post-Herald received a $1,000 prize. Miss Meier, an eighth grader representing the Memphis Press-Scimitar, won $500.

There were 597 words spelled in 15 rounds of the bee, in which 80 boys and girls participated. An estimated 7.5 million youngsters participated in local run-offs.

The bee is sponsored by Scripps-Howard Newspapers.

Bill Would Curtail Presidential Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee Thursday approved legislation aimed at curbing and re-aligning presidential staffs and eliminating the President's discretionary $1 million emergency fund.

The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee also set specific levels for vice presidential staffs and added a requirement that the White House inform Congress of the names and duties of staff members borrowed from various departments in the administration.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., who pushed many of the amendments in the bill, said the staff proposals were aimed at presidential staff "which have grown like topsy" and exert enormous power in government while remaining anonymous.

Gen. Abrams Has Lung Taken Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army surgeons removed Gen. Creighton W. Abrams' cancerous left lung in a four-hour operation Thursday.

"All visible evidence of the malignancy has been removed," the Army said.

"Gen. Abrams tolerated surgery well and will remain in the recovery suite a number of days," a spokesman said.

Abrams, the Army chief of staff, entered Walter Reed Army Medical Center May 23 for what the Army called "a mild case of pneumonia."

Asked whether the cancer had spread, the Army said that "some was seen in local lymph nodes and removed."

The Army said that removal of the lung "was performed in an effort to remove the entire tumor."

Secretary of the Army Howard Callaway said earlier in the day he hoped Abrams, 59, could return to his duties in five or six weeks.

Oil Tax Tactic Is 'Cute Move'

(c) Washington Star News

Washington — In what a tax reform leader called a "cute move," Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Thursday he will open oil tax legislation to amendment by any member of the House.

Flabbergasted, some tax reformers said they suspected that Mills, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, was trying to kill the bill.

But Mills denied the charge, insisting that he can fight off floor amendments and pass the highly controversial bill next week.

The committee has approved a bill to phase out the depletion allowance, a major tax break for the oil and gas industry, in three annual stages starting next year. In accordance with normal procedures for tax legislation, the committee instructed Mills to seek a "closed rule" barring floor amendments.

But tax reformers persuaded the Democratic caucus to instruct Mills and Democratic members of the Rules Committee to support a modified rule allowing floor votes on two specific amendments. One of the amendments would repeal the oil and gas depletion allowance retroactive to last Jan. 1. The other would sharply raise taxes on foreign earnings of U.S. oil companies.

Claiming that he was caught between the conflicting instructions of the party caucus and the Ways and Means Committee, Mills startled the Rules Committee Thursday by asking it not to act at all on the oil bill.

Instead, he said, he intends for the first time in anyone's memory to use a procedure allowing him to take the bill to the House floor without a rule.

This would allow any of the 435 House members to offer germane amendments, he explained. He said unanimous consent would be required to limit debate.

Rep. William J. Green, D-Pa., sponsor of the amendment for retroactive repeal of the depletion allowance, objected angrily to "this cute move at the last minute."

Green said he suspects Mills's strategy is to "muddy the waters and delay consideration."

It would be impossible to obtain unanimous consent to limit debate, Green said, so the bill "can be delayed forever and ever, which I suspect was Chairman Mills's intention to begin with."

"I fear these tactics are designed to create chaos and perhaps no tax on the oil companies," Green said.

At an angry, boisterous meeting of the Rules Committee, Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., recalled that Mills in the past had argued that closed rules barring amendments were essential to prevent "chaos" on tax bills and to keep the House from looking "wholly idiotic."

Over the vehement objections of Chairman Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., the Rules Committee adjourned without acting on the oil bill.

N.Y. Judge Can't Live On $40,000

New York (UPI) — A judge in Manhattan Federal Court formally announced Thursday that he was resigning from his $40,000-a-year job because he can't keep pace with the high cost of living.

In a letter to President Nixon, Judge Arnold Bauman said inflation "has resulted in a substantial reduction in my real income and has constrained me to conclude I can no longer continue."

Bauman, 59, who lives in suburban Rye, N.Y., has been on the federal court bench for 2½ years. His resignation will be effective in August when he returns to private law practice.

Federal judges, he wrote, are in a rare category of employed citizens "whose income has not increased in the last five years, at the very least to the extent of keeping pace with the cost of living."

A recent study showed that judges in the state supreme courts of New York earn $43,371 a year and are due for an increase to $49,000 next month.

Bauman noted that "for reasons I am at a loss to understand," Congress rejected last March a proposal to increase the salaries of federal judges and "correct this unfortunate state of affairs."

"Hence," he said, "the future appears bleak and the problem, for me, is insoluble."

Bauman was an assistant U S. attorney in the Southern District of New York from 1953 into 1955 and was head of the criminal division in that office. He was an assistant district attorney under Tomas E. Dewey in the racket-busting years of 1938 to 1941.

Oil Tax Tactic Is 'Cute Move'

(c) Washington Star News

Washington — In what a tax reform leader called a "cute move," Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Thursday he will open oil tax legislation to amendment by any member of the House.

Flabbergasted, some tax reformers said they suspected that Mills, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, was trying to kill the bill.

But Mills denied the charge, insisting that he can fight off floor amendments and pass the highly controversial bill next week.

The committee has approved a bill to phase out the depletion allowance, a major tax break for the oil and gas industry, in three annual stages starting next year. In accordance with normal procedures for tax legislation, the committee instructed Mills to seek a "closed rule" barring floor amendments.

But tax reformers persuaded the Democratic caucus to instruct Mills and Democratic members of the Rules Committee to support a modified rule allowing floor votes on two specific amendments. One of the amendments would repeal the oil and gas depletion allowance retroactive to last Jan. 1. The other would sharply raise taxes on foreign earnings of U.S. oil companies.

Claiming that he was caught between the conflicting instructions of the party caucus and the Ways and Means Committee, Mills startled the Rules Committee Thursday by asking it not to act at all on the oil bill.

Instead, he said, he intends for the first time in anyone's memory to use a procedure allowing him to take the bill to the House floor without a rule.

This would allow any of the 435 House members to offer germane amendments, he explained. He said unanimous consent would be required to limit debate.

Rep. William J. Green, D-Pa., sponsor of the amendment for retroactive repeal of the depletion allowance, objected angrily to "this cute move at the last minute."

Green said he suspects Mills's strategy is to "muddy the waters and delay consideration."

It would be impossible to obtain unanimous consent to limit debate, Green said, so the bill "can be delayed forever and ever, which I suspect was Chairman Mills's intention to begin with."

"I fear these tactics are designed to create chaos and perhaps no tax on the oil companies," Green said.

At an angry, boisterous meeting of the Rules Committee, Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., recalled that Mills in the past had argued that closed rules barring amendments were essential to prevent "chaos" on tax bills and to keep the House from looking "wholly idiotic."

Over the vehement objections of Chairman Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., the Rules Committee adjourned without acting on the oil bill.

N.Y. Judge Can't Live On $40,000

Rule By Minority

Congressional leaders have announced plans for the enactment of legislation to strip from the people their right to vote. Additionally, congressmen are reported to be working on a change in our form of government to give power and authority to a minority.

The old time-honored principle of majority rule is being thrown out the window and a few shall soon be dictating to the many.

Such a report as we have just written would have the people up in arms. Wide scale attacks would be launched against a dictatorial form of government and people would organize into groups for the preservation of our representative form of government.

Well, there has been no move in Washington to take away the people's right to vote but the people themselves have surrendered that right. Can you believe the report of the Nebraska secretary of state that only 334,156 of the state's 800,000 registered voters turned out for the May primary?

That is far less than half the electorate. Considering the split of voters along party lines, the ballot in November will contain the names of people nominated by voters equal in number to the population of Lincoln.

That is clearly minority rule. The majority of adults in Nebraska have had absolutely nothing at all to say about who shall represent them in the affairs of government in the coming years.

Some may say, with justification, that they are disenchanted with government. It is true that our system of government has left a lot to be desired of late, especially on the national scene.

The answer to this, however, is not abandonment of the system by the electorate. The system will not take care of itself; it will not administer the medicine of reform that it so severely needs.

The voters offer the only hope of cure. It is only an intelligent electorate that can put the men and women in office who will hold in high regard the trust that election places upon them. That means going to the polls and voting in far greater numbers than the miserable few who turned out for Nebraska's May primary.

Two Views Of 'Failure'

What's meat to one man is another's poison, the old saying goes. It all depends on how you look at it. Take the current flap over federal highway safety and construction money, for example.

The Nebraska Legislature earlier this year refused to pass two measures federal highway safety officials wanted relating to motorcycle safety and the regulation of ambulance attendants. The merits of the proposed legislation are not at issue here.

It happened, however, that the Federal Highway Administration took a dim view of the Legislature's inaction and has threatened to cut back federal highway construction money to Nebraska and all of this state's share of highway safety program money which comes from Washington. Whether or not the penalty will be imposed has not yet been decided.

Regardless of that, Tom Carroll, executive director of the Nebraska Safety Council, this week criticized the 1974 Legislature's "disastrous decisions" to buck the federal government and said that inaction on the motorcycle safety and ambulance attendant legislation represents a "monumental failure." It resulted, he said, from an emotional reaction to a feeling "of being overpowered by the feds."

Exactly. Apparently that reaction is what the lawmakers are proud of. Rather than a monumental failure, Nebraska senators are more likely to see their inaction as a courageous challenge to federal authority.

We're inclined to see their point. If the federal government can withhold $7 million from a state because it does not want to pass laws requiring motorcyclists to wear helmets or regulating ambulance attendants, there really is no limit to the opportunity for federal blackmail. What else would be left for the states to decide?

If there is anything of monumental proportions in this, it is the arrogance of the federal government for threatening to destroy a state's entire highway safety program because it is not in 100% compliance with federal standards.

Crusade Short On Realism

CHICAGO — Some idealistic young people are thinking of making a remarkable journey this summer in hopes of purifying American politics.

They have asked for my opinion on it.

Their spokesperson, Joan Buehring, of Hawaii, explained the plan this way:

"Over a period of 100 days, while most of the nation is getting ready for the 1974 elections, a young American citizen travels by greyhound bus to all 50 states.

"He stands at noon on the steps of each state capitol to call for a new American revolution . . .

". . . He speaks aloud a contemporary version of the Declaration of Independence . . . he speaks of a long train of abuses and usurpations, an imperial presidency, a complacent Congress, the acceptance of corruption, the dead hand of the seniority system that binds incumbents.

"He calls for a positive act of faith on the part of the American people, to take the initiative in reasserting their liberties.

"He calls on them, by the hundreds and thousands, to run for office, to unseat incumbents, the best of whom can do nothing but unavailingly fight the system and who come to make their peace with it over the long term; the worst of whom made this the worst of times in American history.

"He calls, then, for a uniquely American revolution, a renewal of spirit through an act of faith in themselves — a ballot box revolution — beginning at the national level but extending to the state and local level.

"The man who will speak the words has no money, no political backing, no ambition for office in the conventional sense — just a burning sense that now is the moment for the American people to regain their political potency.

"We look forward to hearing from you."

Well, I admit to being an old hand at giving political advice. Dick Friedman, for instance, listened to what I had to say and it helped him roll up 29 per cent of the vote against Mayor Daley.

And I think that it is fine for young people to take an interest in some issues beyond the legalization of smoking dandelions.

First of all, there is considerable danger involved.

I don't believe that any human being is strong enough to travel for 100 days by Greyhound buses and survive the food served along the road. Either the bottom of his stomach will fall out, or at the end of his journey he will have become some sort of mutation, maybe taking on the shape of a huge soggy french fry.

Then there is the idealism in his speech. Idealism is fine, but if you make speeches about it, somebody might shoot you. For safety's sake, he should say a few a few nice things about corruption. Nobody ever shoots at people who like corruption.

But if he insists on being an idealist, he must accept being mistaken for a Communist or a Weatherman and that he will be set upon and beaten by patriots.

Or somebody might think he is a lunatic, in which case he will be taken into custody and given psychiatric treatment, which will turn him into a lunatic.

Except in California. If he is mistaken for a lunatic there, he will attract tens of thousands of devoted followers, and might be swept into office or become head of his own church.

In Illinois, his speech could attract the attention of the Mayor's organization, which always is looking for people with sincerity, decency and idealism. If they are suitably impressed, they might offer him a job in traffic court.

And by all means, he should include the city of Washington in his crusade. If he makes his speech outside the White House, every TV network, magazine and pundit in town will show up. They'll think he is one of Nixon's former aides, talking about his moral rejuvenation after having pleaded guilty, hallelujah.

But will all this have any uplifting effect on American politics? I doubt it, because even the most idealistic cause must have some realism.

And these young people proved they have none, when they said: "over a period of 100 days, while most of the nation is getting ready for the 1974 election. . ."

Milk Scandal Chronology

WASHINGTON — The dairy lobby's $2 million pledge to help re-elect President Nixon was originally timed to influence his decision on dairy import quotas, rather than price support.

The offer was put in writing on December 16, 1970, after the White House hatchetman, Charles Colson, had threatened to "put the screws" to the dairymen for contributing to Democrats.

Two weeks after this written pledge was delivered to the White House, the President adopted the import quotas.

Then the dairy lobby began campaigning for higher price supports, which the White House ordered on March 25, 1971. But before issuing the announcement, according to sworn testimony, the White House demanded a renewal of the $2 million offer.

This is the chronology of the milk scandal, which we have put together from our own investigation. Here are the details:

The milk producers began talking to the White House about campaign contributions in the early autumn of 1970. At a September meeting in Colson's office, the milk producers agreed to put up $10,000 apiece for the Senate races of 11 conservative candidates whom the White House favored.

But the dairy people also contributed to the campaigns of Democrats, who had influence over dairy legislation. When Colson learned about this, he fired off a sharp memo to another White House aide, the late Murray Chotiner, who had been dealing with the milk producer's lawyer, Marion Harrison.

"Would you please check with your friend, Harrison, and tell him if he wants to play both sides, that's one game; if he wants to play our side, it is entirely different," wrote Colson. "This would be a good way for you to condition him before we put the screws to him on imports, which we are about to do."

True to Colson's threat, the White House held up dairy import quotas which the Tariff Commission had recommended. Harrison complained to us that "Colson wanted a one-way street. He wasn't interested in doing anything for our clients."

This upset Harrison and his legal associate, Pat Hillings, who had served briefly as Nixon's successor in the House and had maintained close ties with Nixon. Hillings, therefore, dictated a scorching letter, to the President, attacking Colson.

Harrison persuaded him to tone down the letter. The second draft didn't mention Colson, but it reminded the President that the dairymen had contributed "about $135,000 to Republican candidates in the 1970 election" and were now preparing "to contribute $2 million for your re-election."

This was the famous December 15, 1970, letter which put the $2 million dairy pledge in black and white. Hillings said he pulled the $2 million figure "out of the air." It was not intended as a "quid pro quo" he said, but as an "attention getter" to get action for the dairymen.

Colson used the $2 million figure in a memo to President Nixon, however, three months before Hillings put it in writing. In any event, the President adopted the dairy import quota on Jan. 1, 1971, only 15 days after receiving the Hillings letter.

The White House claims that the President never saw the Hillings letter and that the $2 million pledge had nothing to do with his action on imports. The repentant Colson told us that he had sought milk contributions but that he had scolded Harrison and Hillings for linking the money to government action.

The following March, President Nixon, overriding the Agriculture Department, ordered increased milk price supports as well. The public announcement was held up, according to sworn testimony, until the White House received a renewal of the $2 million campaign pledge.

The President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, who had solicited campaign funds from the milk producers, testified that the public announcement "was, in fact, linked to this reaffirmation of the $2 million pledge."

MARIANNE MEANS

Miller (Who?) On Nixon

WASHINGTON — William E. Miller lost his principal claim to fame two years ago, when Sargent Shriver outdistanced him for the dubious honor of being the biggest vice-presidential loser in history.

As Barry Goldwater's 1964 running mate, Miller lost by 16 million votes, a relatively paltry rebuke in comparison with the 18 million by which Shriver was later defeated on the 1972 George McGovern ticket.

Miller, however, regards the problem of his political obscurity with aplomb, if not downright enjoyment.

"I lost, and Spiro Agnew won," he grins. "But I can still practice law, and he can't."

Besides, Miller contends he still receives VIP treatment — at least in selected situations. He was given the best suite in a hotel here last week. His youngest daughter is a junior executive for the hotel chain. He starred on a local television show in nearby Virginia. His eldest daughter is the show's hostess.

Miller returned to this city to celebrate the 10th reunion of his vice-presidential campaign with the campaign aides, pilots and reporters who had traveled with him.

It was a happy affair, and Miller behaved like a happy fellow. He had been a Congressman for 14 years and chairman of the Republican National Committee. But when the Goldwater ticket was defeated in 1964, Miller quite politics in fact as well as principle.

Now he golfs, plays bridge and practices law in Lockport, N.Y. — and, he says, in that order.

Miller, 60, insists he doesn't miss any of it, and he is particularly glad not to be around worrying about how to vote in this time of presidential impeachment.

He predicts that President Nixon will never resign. "If the House votes to impeach, Nixon would take devilish glee in forcing every last Senator to cast a vote for or against him," he says. Miller views Nixon as possibly the world's most stubborn and independent man.

He recalls that during the 1960 campaign, as chairman of the House GOP campaign committee, he was summoned to a special conference at Nixon's home in Manhattan. All Nixon's major advisers were there; the topic was whether the then-Vice President should invite the lesser-known Sen. John Kennedy to a televised debate. Every man in the room argued that Nixon should avoid it, because the exposure would help Kennedy. Only Nixon himself had no comment.

Miller departed believing the matter was closed. But a day later he read an announcement from Nixon asking Kennedy to debate. He thinks Nixon just couldn't resist the challenge.

"If Nixon hadn't debated Kennedy, he would have won that election," Miller says, shaking his head. "Just think," he adds, "if Nixon had won in 1960, Kennedy might be alive today." Then he pauses. "And some other people might have gone to jail earlier."

Miller and his wife Stephanie seem as youthful and energetic as they did 10 years ago. They are both lean, tan and relatively free of those tell-tale streaks of grey in their hair. Miller was resplendent in a white-and-red checkered jacket, accompanied by an unfashionably narrow tie which, he insisted, predates the 1964 campaign.

After the celebration, he returned to Lockport, secure in the knowledge that he is recorded in history alongside such other immortal vice-presidential losers as John Bricker, Joseph T. Robinson and B. Gratz Brown.

JAMES RESTON

Nixon's Mission To Moscow

President Nixon's mission to Moscow at the end of June has raised two new controversies in Washington: first whether his new approach to the targeting and control of nuclear weapons is sound; and second whether he should go to Moscow on such an important mission in his present weakened political position at home.

The second question is easier to answer than the first. The nuclear arms race is not going to stop while the Congress and the courts decide whether to impeach and convict the President and his men. These trials could go on for months or even years, and by the end of them, the arms race could get beyond rational control.

Accordingly, the President is obliged to do whatever he can to reach even limited understandings with the Soviet leaders. He may be under political pressure to reach agreements that would make him look good at home for a while, but he is not likely to put his own political interest ahead of the nation's security — and his cabinet and the Congress would probably bring him down if he tried.

The question of what the President hopes to negotiate in the way of a nuclear arms agreement with the Soviets is more complex, and in the opinion of Ambassador Gerard Smith, who negotiated the first strategic arms agreement for the U.S. in 1972, more dangerous.

Smith is concerned about what he calls "the change now being developed in U.S. strategic targeting policy". that is, a counter-force policy aimed not at knocking out Soviet urban-industrial targets but at hitting Soviet missile sites in a possible limited nuclear war.

He doubts that nuclear war, once started, can be limited and fears that a change in U.S. targeting policy in the middle of the SALT II talks might confuse and hamper progress toward even partial agreements.

"The time has passed," he says in an analysis circulated in the Congress, "when any sane leader could consider nuclear war of any sort as anything but a potentially terminal event for his nation. Wars have a dynamism of their own, and nuclear war, no matter how it started, is most likely to end in the mutual destruction of both sides."

Secretary of Defense Schlesinger takes a different point of view. In "defense department report F475," he says:

"Not only must our strategic force structure contain a reserve for threatening urban-industrial targets, the ability to execute a number of options, and the command-control necessary to evaluate attacks and order appropriate responses; it must also exhibit sufficient and dynamic countervailing power so that no potential opponent or combination of opponents can labor under any illusion about the feasibility of gaining diplomatic or military advantage over the United States.

This is obviously a subject of such complexity, usually written in jargon of such density, that even the anxieties of the experts are far from clear.

For example, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. seems to fear that the President might ask too little from the Soviet Union in order to get a short-range political advantage at home, whereas Smith seems to think that Schlesinger may be expecting too much from the Soviet Union and raising fears that would block compromise and get us into a new "counter-force" race with the U.S.S.R.

"Entering a counter-force race . . ." he says, "would also be a waste of resources that are in short supply. Certainly U.S. strategic forces should be kept up to date for their deterrent mission, but I question whether the security of the United States would be increased by entering into or even by 'winning' a 'counter-force' race . . ."

Whatever the logic of these contradictory arguments, it is fairly obvious that all participants consider the controversy fundamental to the security of the American people, and second, that the American people haven't the vaguest idea of what the issues are or even that the controversy is going on.

In this situation, a strong case for the President's mission to Moscow can be made, but it would be helpful if he would clarify his new targeting policy and the issues for decision before he goes to the Soviet capital.

Mr. Hamilton's "Equal Time for God" (May 16) is a study in "tunnelized" Christianity. He attacks my concern for the rights of non-Christians, then presumes to lecture me on what Christianity is.

Having said children must be "protected" from abortion, Godless evolution, objectionable films, etc., he contradicts with: "Christianity is of the heart. You can twist someone's arm, but you cannot make him believe." What, then, do courses taught in school matter, Mr. Hamilton? The words are nice, but your kind of Christianity is a brain-wash.

Education is a matter of public concern, constitutionally protected from undue church influence. There can legally be no "equal time for God" in our public schools. Their business is learning, and the overwhelming concensus of scholars favors evolution over other accounts of creation.

Since Origen in the beginning overcame obscurantist ideals of simplistic pietism, Christianity has been oriented to learning. That is why my anonymous antagonist, who ironically styles himself "also a teacher," is the very opposite of a good Christian teacher.

Christian children must be taught the whole truth, so they can cope with a basically non-Christian society. Otherwise, they will become an ignorant ghetto.

One batch of state legislators has completed a session at least part of which is not the usual farce.

Rule By Minority

Congressional leaders have announced plans for the enactment of legislation to strip from the people their right to vote. Additionally, congressmen are reported to be working on a change in our form of government to give power and authority to a minority.

The old time-honored principle of majority rule is being thrown out the window and a few shall soon be dictating to the many.

Such a report as we have just written would have the people up in arms. Wide scale attacks would be launched against a dictatorial form of government and people would organize into groups for the preservation of our representative form of government.

Well, there has been no move in Washington to take away the people's right to vote but the people themselves have surrendered that right. Can you believe the report of the Nebraska secretary of state that only 334,156 of the state's 800,000 registered voters turned out for the May primary?

That is far less than half the electorate. Considering the split of voters along party lines, the ballot in November will contain the names of people nominated by voters equal in number to the population of Lincoln.

That is clearly minority rule. The majority of adults in Nebraska have had absolutely nothing at all to say about who shall represent them in the affairs of government in the coming years.

Some may say, with justification, that they are disenchanted with government. It is true that our system of government has left a lot to be desired of late, especially on the national scene.

The answer to this, however, is not abandonment of the system by the electorate. The system will not take care of itself; it will not administer the medicine of reform that it so severely needs.

The voters offer the only hope of cure. It is only an intelligent electorate that can put the men and women in office who will hold in high regard the trust that election places upon them. That means going to the polls and voting in far greater numbers than the miserable few who turned out for Nebraska's May primary.

Two Views Of 'Failure'

What's meat to one man is another's poison, the old saying goes. It all depends on how you look at it. Take the current flap over federal highway safety and construction money, for example.

The Nebraska Legislature earlier this year refused to pass two measures federal highway safety officials wanted relating to motorcycle safety and the regulation of ambulance attendants. The merits of the proposed legislation are not at issue here.

It happened, however, that the Federal Highway Administration took a dim view of the Legislature's inaction and has threatened to cut back federal highway construction money to Nebraska and all of this state's share of highway safety program money which comes from Washington. Whether or not the penalty will be imposed has not yet been decided.

Regardless of that, Tom Carroll, executive director of the Nebraska Safety Council, this week criticized the 1974 Legislature's "disastrous decisions" to buck the federal government and said that inaction on the motorcycle safety and ambulance attendant legislation represents a "monumental failure." It resulted, he said, from an emotional reaction to a feeling "of being overpowered by the feds."

Exactly. Apparently that reaction is what the lawmakers are proud of. Rather than a monumental failure, Nebraska senators are more likely to see their inaction as a courageous challenge to federal authority.

We're inclined to see their point. If the federal government can withhold $7 million from a state because it does not want to pass laws requiring motorcyclists to wear helmets or regulating ambulance attendants, there really is no limit to the opportunity for federal blackmail. What else would be left for the states to decide?

If there is anything of monumental proportions in this, it is the arrogance of the federal government for threatening to destroy a state's entire highway safety program because it is not in 100% compliance with federal standards.

Crusade Short On Realism

CHICAGO — Some idealistic young people are thinking of making a remarkable journey this summer in hopes of purifying American politics.

They have asked for my opinion on it.

Their spokesperson, Joan Buehring, of Hawaii, explained the plan this way:

"Over a period of 100 days, while most of the nation is getting ready for the 1974 elections, a young American citizen travels by greyhound bus to all 50 states.

"He stands at noon on the steps of each state capitol to call for a new American revolution . . .

". . . He speaks aloud a contemporary version of the Declaration of Independence . . . he speaks of a long train of abuses and usurpations, an imperial presidency, a complacent Congress, the acceptance of corruption, the dead hand of the seniority system that binds incumbents.

"He calls for a positive act of faith on the part of the American people, to take the initiative in reasserting their liberties.

"He calls on them, by the hundreds and thousands, to run for office, to unseat incumbents, the best of whom can do nothing but unavailingly fight the system and who come to make their peace with it over the long term; the worst of whom made this the worst of times in American history.

"He calls, then, for a uniquely American revolution, a renewal of spirit through an act of faith in themselves — a ballot box revolution — beginning at the national level but extending to the state and local level.

"The man who will speak the words has no money, no political backing, no ambition for office in the conventional sense — just a burning sense that now is the moment for the American people to regain their political potency.

"We look forward to hearing from you."

Well, I admit to being an old hand at giving political advice. Dick Friedman, for instance, listened to what I had to say and it helped him roll up 29 per cent of the vote against Mayor Daley.

And I think that it is fine for young people to take an interest in some issues beyond the legalization of smoking dandelions.

First of all, there is considerable danger involved.

I don't believe that any human being is strong enough to travel for 100 days by Greyhound buses and survive the food served along the road. Either the bottom of his stomach will fall out, or at the end of his journey he will have become some sort of mutation, maybe taking on the shape of a huge soggy french fry.

Then there is the idealism in his speech. Idealism is fine, but if you make speeches about it, somebody might shoot you. For safety's sake, he should say a few a few nice things about corruption. Nobody ever shoots at people who like corruption.

But if he insists on being an idealist, he must accept being mistaken for a Communist or a Weatherman and that he will be set upon and beaten by patriots.

Or somebody might think he is a lunatic, in which case he will be taken into custody and given psychiatric treatment, which will turn him into a lunatic.

Except in California. If he is mistaken for a lunatic there, he will attract tens of thousands of devoted followers, and might be swept into office or become head of his own church.

In Illinois, his speech could attract the attention of the Mayor's organization, which always is looking for people with sincerity, decency and idealism. If they are suitably impressed, they might offer him a job in traffic court.

And by all means, he should include the city of Washington in his crusade. If he makes his speech outside the White House, every TV network, magazine and pundit in town will show up. They'll think he is one of Nixon's former aides, talking about his moral rejuvenation after having pleaded guilty, hallelujah.

But will all this have any uplifting effect on American politics? I doubt it, because even the most idealistic cause must have some realism.

And these young people proved they have none, when they said: "over a period of 100 days, while most of the nation is getting ready for the 1974 election. . ."

Milk Scandal Chronology

WASHINGTON — The dairy lobby's $2 million pledge to help re-elect President Nixon was originally timed to influence his decision on dairy import quotas, rather than price support.

The offer was put in writing on December 16, 1970, after the White House hatchetman, Charles Colson, had threatened to "put the screws" to the dairymen for contributing to Democrats.

Two weeks after this written pledge was delivered to the White House, the President adopted the import quotas.

Then the dairy lobby began campaigning for higher price supports, which the White House ordered on March 25, 1971. But before issuing the announcement, according to sworn testimony, the White House demanded a renewal of the $2 million offer.

This is the chronology of the milk scandal, which we have put together from our own investigation. Here are the details:

The milk producers began talking to the White House about campaign contributions in the early autumn of 1970. At a September meeting in Colson's office, the milk producers agreed to put up $10,000 apiece for the Senate races of 11 conservative candidates whom the White House favored.

But the dairy people also contributed to the campaigns of Democrats, who had influence over dairy legislation. When Colson learned about this, he fired off a sharp memo to another White House aide, the late Murray Chotiner, who had been dealing with the milk producer's lawyer, Marion Harrison.

"Would you please check with your friend, Harrison, and tell him if he wants to play both sides, that's one game; if he wants to play our side, it is entirely different," wrote Colson. "This would be a good way for you to condition him before we put the screws to him on imports, which we are about to do."

True to Colson's threat, the White House held up dairy import quotas which the Tariff Commission had recommended. Harrison complained to us that "Colson wanted a one-way street. He wasn't interested in doing anything for our clients."

This upset Harrison and his legal associate, Pat Hillings, who had served briefly as Nixon's successor in the House and had maintained close ties with Nixon. Hillings, therefore, dictated a scorching letter to the President, attacking Colson.

Harrison persuaded him to tone down the letter. The second draft didn't mention Colson, but it reminded the President that the dairymen had contributed "about $135,000 to Republican candidates in the 1970 election" and were now preparing "to contribute $2 million for your reelection."

This was the famous December 15, 1970, letter which put the $2 million dairy pledge in black and white. Hillings said he pulled the $2 million figure "out of the air." It was not intended as a "quid pro quo" he said, but as an "attention getter" to get action for the dairymen.

Colson used the $2 million figure in a memo to President Nixon, however, three months before Hillings put it in writing. In any event, the President adopted the dairy import quota on Jan. 1, 1971, only 15 days after receiving the Hillings letter.

The White House claims that the President never saw the Hillings letter and that the $2 million pledge had nothing to do with his action on imports. The repentant Colson told us that he had sought milk contributions but that he had scolded Harrison and Hillings for linking the money to government action.

The following March, President Nixon, overriding the Agriculture Department, ordered increased milk price supports as well. The public announcement was held up, according to sworn testimony, until the White House received a renewal of the $2 million campaign pledge.

The President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, who had solicited campaign funds from the milk producers, testified that the public announcement "was, in fact, linked to this reaffirmation of the $2 million pledge."

MARIANNE MEANS

Miller (Who?) On Nixon

WASHINGTON — William E. Miller lost his principal claim to fame two years ago, when Sargent Shriver outdistanced him for the dubious honor of being the biggest vice-presidential loser in history.

As Barry Goldwater's 1964 running mate, Miller lost by 16 million votes, a relatively paltry rebuke in comparison with the 18 million by which Shriver was later defeated on the 1972 George McGovern ticket.

Miller, however, regards the problem of his political obscurity with aplomb, if not downright enjoyment.

"I lost, and Spiro Agnew won," he grins. "But I can still practice law, and he can't."

Besides, Miller contends he still receives VIP treatment — at least in selected situations. He was given the best suite in a hotel here last week. His youngest daughter is a junior executive for the hotel chain. He starred on a local television show in nearby Virginia. His eldest daughter is the show's hostess.

Miller returned to this city to celebrate the 10th reunion of his vice-presidential campaign with the campaign aides, pilots and reporters who had traveled with him.

It was a happy affair, and Miller behaved like a happy fellow. He had been a Congressman for 14 years and chairman of the Republican National Committee. But when the Goldwater ticket was defeated in 1964, Miller quite politics in fact as well as principle.

Now he golfs, plays bridge and practices law in Lockport, N.Y. — and, he says, in that order.

Miller, 60, insists he doesn't miss any of it, and he is particularly glad not to be around worrying about how to vote in this time of presidential impeachment.

He predicts that President Nixon will never resign. "If the House votes to impeach, Nixon would take devilish glee in forcing every last Senator to cast a vote for or against him," he says. Miller views Nixon as possibly the world's most stubborn and independent man.

He recalls that during the 1960 campaign, as chairman of the House GOP campaign committee, he was summoned to a special conference at Nixon's home in Manhattan. All Nixon's major advisers were there; the topic was whether the then-Vice President should invite the lesser-known Sen. John Kennedy to a televised debate. Every man in the room argued that Nixon should avoid it, because the exposure would help Kennedy. Only Nixon himself had no comment.

Miller departed believing the matter was closed. But a day later he read an announcement from Nixon asking Kennedy to debate. He thinks Nixon just couldn't resist the challenge.

"If Nixon hadn't debated Kennedy, he would have won that election," Miller says, shaking his head. "Just think," he adds, "if Nixon had won in 1960, Kennedy might be alive today." Then he pauses. "And some other people might have gone to jail earlier."

Miller and his wife Stephanie seem as youthful and energetic as they did 10 years ago. They are both lean, tan and relatively free of those tell-tale streaks of grey in their hair. Miller was resplendent in a white-and-red checkered jacket, accompanied by an unfashionably narrow tie which, he insisted, predates the 1964 campaign.

After the celebration, he returned to Lockport, secure in the knowledge that he is recorded in history alongside such other immortal vice-presidential losers as John Bricker, Joseph T. Robinson and B. Gratz Brown.

Nixon's Mission To Moscow

President Nixon's mission to Moscow at the end of June has raised two new controversies in Washington: first whether his new approach to the targeting and control of nuclear weapons is sound; and second whether he should go to Moscow on such an important mission in his present weakened political position at home.

The second question is easier to answer than the first. The nuclear arms race is not going to stop while the Congress and the courts decide whether to impeach and convict the President and his men. These trials could go on for months or even years, and by the end of them, the arms race could get beyond rational control.

Accordingly, the President is obliged to do whatever he can to reach even limited understandings with the Soviet leaders. He may be under political pressure to reach agreements that would make him look good at home for a while, but he is not likely to put his own political interest ahead of the nation's security — and his cabinet and the Congress would probably bring him down if he tried.

The question of what the President hopes to negotiate in the way of a nuclear arms agreement with the Soviets is more complex, and in the opinion of Ambassador Gerard Smith, who negotiated the first strategic arms agreement for the U.S. in 1972, more dangerous.

Smith is concerned about what he calls "the change now being developed in U.S. strategic targeting policy": that is, a counter-force policy aimed not at knocking out Soviet urban-industrial targets but at hitting Soviet missile sites in a possible limited nuclear war.

He doubts that nuclear war, once started, can be limited and fears that a change in U.S. targeting policy in the middle of the SALT II talks might confuse and hamper progress toward even partial agreements.

"The time has passed," he says in an analysis circulated in the Congress, "when any sane leader could consider nuclear war of any sort as anything but a potentially terminal event for his nation. Wars have a dynamism of their own, and nuclear war, no matter how it started, is most likely to end in the mutual destruction of both sides."

Secretary of Defense Schlesinger takes a different point of view. In "defense department report F475," he says:

"Not only must our strategic force structure contain a reserve for threatening urban-industrial targets, the ability to execute a number of options, and the command-control necessary to evaluate attacks and order appropriate responses; it must also exhibit sufficient and dynamic countervailing power so that no potential opponent or combination of opponents can labor under any illusion about the feasibility of gaining diplomatic or military advantage over the United States.

This is obviously a subject of such complexity, usually written in jargon of such density, that even the anxieties of the experts are far from clear.

For example, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. seems to fear that the President might ask too little from the Soviet Union in order to get a short-range political advantage at home, whereas Smith seems to think that Schlesinger may be expecting too much from the Soviet Union and raising fears that would block compromise and get us into a new "counter-force" race with the U.S.S.R.

"Entering a counter-force race . . ." he says, "would also be a waste of resources that are in short supply. Certainly U.S. strategic forces should be kept up to date for their deterrent mission, but I question whether the security of the United States would be increased by entering into or even by 'winning' a 'counter-force' race . . ."

Whatever the logic of these contradictory arguments, it is fairly obvious that all participants consider the controversy fundamental to the security of the American people, and second, that the American people haven't the vaguest idea of what the issues are or even that the controversy is going on.

In this situation, a strong case for the President's mission to Moscow can be made, but it would be helpful if he would clarify his new targeting policy and the issues for decision before he goes to the Soviet capital.

'U.S. Must Face World's Poverty'

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — World Bank President Robert S. McNamara told U.S. religious leaders Thursday that Americans have yet to "face up to the harsh truth" of worsening want in the world.

"It's one of the great moral issues of the century," he said, and urged the nation's religious forces to lead the way in alerting people to the crisis.

"I don't believe our people yet understand the utter human degradation that exists in the poorer countries," he said. "We've got to talk constantly to the American people about it. It's the mission of the church."

The former U.S. secretary of defense, an ordained lay elder in the United Presbyterian Church, now heads the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

Addressing a conference of Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish leaders on global justice, McNamara said a third to half of the two billion persons in the world's underdeveloped countries suffer from malnutrition and a fourth of their infants die before they reach five.

Recent economic shifts — including higher prices for oil and other commodities which have cut foreign trade in poorer nations — have made the situation worse, he said. He added:

"The problem is going to be with us for decades. The outlook, particularly in the poorer countries, is even worse than it now appears."

He said the United States, gobbling up an "endless spiral of consumer goods," can easily afford to help the needy areas if willing to do it, but so far has not wanted to do it.

The United States ranks 15th among the 17 nations giving aid, providing less than one per cent of its gross national product, McNamara said. But he said though it has only six per cent of the world's population, it consumes 35 per cent of its resources.

Meanwhile 800 million people in the poorest nations "suffer total degredation with deaths from starvation and malnutrition on a very large scale."

"It's something we all ought to be ashamed of," he said.

McNamara said an additional $4 billion in foreign aid, with the United States contributing $1.5 billion, is needed to cope with the tightened squeeze on the poorer countries. He said this would cost Americans about $7 apiece.

Morton: Plans Vital In Avoiding Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said Thursday the nation and the world face a major crisis of natural resources within 25 years unless they adopt long-range planning to avoid it.

"If we don't do this between now and the turn of the century, civilization will be faced with virtually rebuilding itself," Morton said at a group interview.

Morton said he has been quietly trying to get authority for the government to make long-range national plans but he did not know whether the administration would formally propose it.

Morton said many problems, including the present energy problem, have stemmed from the country's failure to plan ahead.

Morton said he particularly wants legislation providing for land use planning — whether it is the administration's proposal or an alternate version.

"We just don't project forward," Morton complained. "We don't have the machinery to do it. Our political system isn't geared to it. It just doesn't happen.

"We ought to have the capability of dealing with 25 years from now."

"On land use planning, I don't think we can afford that (lack of planning)," Morton said. "We are going to get into some ungovernable situations if we go on like that."

Asked whether the need for land use planning and a national energy policy were leading the United States closer to a planned economy, Morton said:

"There's no question you are going toward a planned environment. The question is where the decision-making should be."

Morton said that in the United States, planning decisions should be made as close as possible to the local level, and not be centralized in the federal government.

"Management of the environment for the quality of life ... is really the challenge of our time," he said.

"I think we have about 25 years of grace," Morton added, "but we can't wait until we go over the falls in a barrel and then try to back up a little."

Jamaica Plans Hike On Bauxite Royalties

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The Jamaican Senate was expected to act perhaps as early as Friday on big tax and royalty increases for bauxite, the raw material of aluminum, a government spokesman said.

The revenue package, adopted Tuesday by the House of Representatives, would raise the amount foreign companies pay to the Jamaican government annually from $30 million to $200 million.

The legislature began to consider the measure after Prime Minister Michael Manley said Jamaica needed more money to cover the budget, hard hit by recent increases in the price of imported crude oil, soybeans, rice and steel.

An increase in taxes and royalties on bauxite could mean a rise in the prices of aluminum products in the United States and Canada.

Jamaica is their chief supplier of bauxite.

John H. Hale, executive vice president of Alcan Aluminum Ltd., said in a speech to a group of financial analysts in Philadelphia Thursday that the tax measure was "excessive and damaging to the competitive position of Jamaica and possibly to uses of the metal."

He said the tax on Alcan bauxite would go from $2.50 per ton to over $11 a ton at current prices.

The government reported its monetary reserves have sunk to a low of $90 million, and officials said the handiest means of putting the country on a more stable economic footing was to increase the cost of bauxite, Jamaica's chief export.

Negotiations were started earlier this year with six large aluminum companies in an attempt to improve the government's revenue position, but the talks were broken off May 15 when agreement could not be reached. The companies involved were Aluminum Co. of America, Alcan Aluminum Ltd., Reynolds Metals Co., Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp., Anaconda Co., and Revere Copper & Brass Inc.

The talks had been expected to resume shortly, following a visit to Jamaica last week by former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, a key negotiator for the companies.

The former U.S. secretary of defense, an ordained lay elder in the United Presbyterian Church, now heads the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

Addressing a conference of Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish leaders on global justice, McNamara said a third to half of the two billion persons in the world's underdeveloped countries suffer from malnutrition and a fourth of their infants die before they reach five.

Recent economic shifts — including higher prices for oil and other commodities which have cut foreign trade in poorer nations — have made the situation worse, he said. He added:

"The problem is going to be with us for decades. The outlook, particularly in the poorer countries, is even worse than it now appears."

He said the United States, gobbling up an "endless spiral of consumer goods," can easily afford to help the needy areas if willing to do it, but so far has not wanted to do it.

The United States ranks 15th among the 17 nations giving aid, providing less than one per cent of its gross national product, McNamara said. But he said though it has only six per cent of the world's population, it consumes 35 per cent of its resources.

Meanwhile 800 million people in the poorest nations "suffer total degredation with deaths from starvation and malnutrition on a very large scale."

"It's something we all ought to be ashamed of," he said.

McNamara said an additional $4 billion in foreign aid, with the United States contributing $1.5 billion, is needed to cope with the tightened squeeze on the poorer countries. He said this would cost Americans about $7 apiece.

Morton: Plans Vital In Avoiding Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said Thursday the nation and the world face a major crisis of natural resources within 25 years unless they adopt long-range planning to avoid it.

"If we don't do this between now and the turn of the century, civilization will be faced with virtually rebuilding itself," Morton said at a group interview.

Morton said he has been quietly trying to get authority for the government to make long-range national plans but he did not know whether the administration would formally propose it.

Morton said many problems, including the present energy problem, have stemmed from the country's failure to plan ahead.

Morton said he particularly wants legislation providing for land use planning — whether it is the administration's proposal or an alternate version.

"We just don't project forward," Morton complained. "We don't have the machinery to do it. Our political system isn't geared to it. It just doesn't happen.

"We ought to have the capability of dealing with 25 years from now."

"On land use planning, I don't think we can afford that (lack of planning)," Morton said. "We are going to get into some ungovernable situations if we go on like that."

Asked whether the need for land use planning and a national energy policy were leading the United States closer to a planned economy, Morton said:

"There's no question you are going toward a planned environment. The question is where the decision-making should be."

Morton said that in the United States, planning decisions should be made as close as possible to the local level, and not be centralized in the federal government.

"Management of the environment for the quality of life ... is really the challenge of our time," he said.

"I think we have about 25 years of grace," Morton added, "but we can't wait until we go over the falls in a barrel and then try to back up a little."

Jamaica Plans Hike On Bauxite Royalties

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The Jamaican Senate was expected to act perhaps as early as Friday on big tax and royalty increases for bauxite, the raw material of aluminum, a government spokesman said.

The revenue package, adopted Tuesday by the House of Representatives, would raise the amount foreign companies pay to the Jamaican government annually from $30 million to $200 million.

The legislature began to consider the measure after Prime Minister Michael Manley said Jamaica needed more money to cover the budget, hard hit by recent increases in the price of imported crude oil, soybeans, rice and steel.

An increase in taxes and royalties on bauxite could mean a rise in the prices of aluminum products in the United States and Canada.

Jamaica is their chief supplier of bauxite.

John H. Hale, executive vice president of Alcan Aluminum Ltd., said in a speech to a group of financial analysts in Philadelphia Thursday that the tax measure was "excessive and damaging to the competitive position of Jamaica and possibly to uses of the metal."

He said the tax on Alcan bauxite would go from $2.50 per ton to over $11 a ton at current prices.

The government reported its monetary reserves have sunk to a low of $90 million, and officials said the handiest means of putting the country on a more stable economic footing was to increase the cost of bauxite, Jamaica's chief export.

Negotiations were started earlier this year with six large aluminum companies in an attempt to improve the government's revenue position, but the talks were broken off May 15 when agreement could not be reached. The companies involved were Aluminum Co. of America, Alcan Aluminum Ltd., Reynolds Metals Co., Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp., Anaconda Co., and Revere Copper & Brass Inc.

The talks had been expected to resume shortly, following a visit to Jamaica last week by former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, a key negotiator for the companies.

Jubilant Syrians, Israelis Welcome POWs' Return

AT TEL AVIV . . . a mother sobs and a sister laughs with joy. AP

By The Associated Press

Jubilant crowds in Damascus and Tel Aviv welcomed home on Thursday the last prisoners captured in the October Middle East war, while United Nations troops began patrolling the Israeli-Syrian truce on the Golan Heights.

The exchange of prisoners — 56 Israelis for 367 Syrians, 10 Iraqis and 5 Moroccans — was part of the disengagement agreement worked out between Israel and Syria by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. The final exchange followed last Saturday's release of wounded POWs.

In the next phase of the agreement the two sides will pull back their armies which until last week had engaged in artillery duels on the barren Golan Heights. U.N. peacekeepers will patrol the demilitarized strip.

In Damascus thousands of cheering Syrians surged onto the runways to welcome the returning POWs. The happy, jostling crowd broke through paratroopers lined up to hold them back and laughed and cheered when water cannon were turned on in an unsuccessful bid to halt them.

The crowd, estimated at 10,000, surrounded the Red Cross chartered jet carrying the prisoners and forced it to a standstill half a mile from the terminal building.

In Tel Aviv, hundreds of Israelis crowded around the POW plane from Damascus and raised the freed men on their shoulders. Scheduled ceremonies were shoved aside as the crowd broke through police barriers and swarmed to the plane.

One of the first prisoners off the plane managed to push his way down the airplane ramp to kiss the hand of wet-eyed former Premier Golda Meir. Mrs. Meir's successor, Premier Yitzhak Rabin, and other officials assembled for the return vanished in the crowd.

In Egypt President Anwar Sadat pledged that all Arab territory occupied by Israel would be liberated within a year. The authoritative newspaper Al Ahram quoted him as telling troops on the Suez front:

"I visited your positions here in June last year, and we made a pledge to meet again today after victory. This year we renew the pledge to meet next year after completing our fight for the liberation of all Arab territories."

In Cairo, Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat defended the position of moderate groups attending the Palestinee National Council meeting, according to Beirut newspaper reports of the session.

The papers said Arafat told the council he was ready to go to the Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva if the council authorizes the trip. He told critics who oppose any settlement with Israel that the guerrilla movement could not "ignore the new developments at the international level."

The Palestinians were reported unable to agree on whether to send a delegation to the peace talks. A majority, informants said, favored dropping the question until Palestinians are invited to join the talks. They counted on Israel's reluctance to deal with the guerrillas to prevent an early invitation.

In Amman, Jordan, King Hussein had a talk with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, now on a tour of the Middle East.

Nixon, Saudi Prince Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and a high-ranking Saudi Arabian prince laid groundwork Thursday for improved relations just six days before Nixon begins a five-nation Middle East tour.

The meeting came as a sequel to intensive American peacemaking efforts in the Middle East following the October Arab-Israeli war.

The visitor for a 40-minute Oval Office meeting and subsequent luncheon was Prince Fahd, Saudi Arabia's interior minister and second deputy prime minister.

A White House spokesman said their morning discussions "covered a wide range of topics."

The prince also planned to meet with four members of Nixon's cabinet: Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent, and Secretary of the Treasury William Simon.

Kissinger and Saudi Arabian Ambassador to the United States Ibrahim al-Sowayel also participated in the Oval Office meeting along with Maj. Gen. Brent Scowcroft.

Kissinger Says U.S. Recognizes Soviet Influence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Thursday the United States has no intention of trying to exclude the Soviet Union from playing an influential role in the Middle East.

As the co-chairman of the Geneva peace conference, the Soviet Union will have considerable influence on the next stage of the Arab-Israeli peace process, he told a news conference.

Besides, Kissinger said, "We have no capability of expelling the Soviet Union."

On another point, Kissinger said President Nixon may come home from his upcoming summit meeting in Moscow without a new treaty limiting nuclear weapons. "We will not rush negotiations because of an artificial deadline," the secretary said.

Kissinger said he would like to retire from shuttle diplomacy now that he has worked out disengagement agreements between Egypt and Israel and Syria and Israel.

It is not a good idea for a secretary of state to be away from his desk so long and the appropriate forum now is Geneva, he said. However, Kissinger added, "this does not exclude that at some critical point I may not be prepared to help out."

Quizzed about the White House plumbers group formed to investigate leaks, he stood on his testimony to Congress that he had no prior knowledge of their operations.

"I am not conducting my office as a conspiracy," he retorted with heat when cross-examined by newsmen.

Kissinger also acknowledged that several of his assistants were wiretapped by the government in an effort to stem "leaks." But, he said, "I did not make a direct recommendation" that they be tapped.

Looking ahead to Nixon's Middle East trip beginning Monday, Kissinger said it symbolized that U.S. relations with the Arab states are on a "new basis" and gives the President an opportunity to accelerate the process in conversations with heads of state.

Kissinger said he had made no commitment to Egypt or Israel about further Israeli withdrawals but stressed that the United States supports United Nations resolutions calling on Israel to pull back from occupied Arab territories.

On a related issue, Kissinger said he was misunderstood Tuesday on Capitol Hill as having said $100 million in the administration's foreign aid request was earmarked for Syria.

While Syria is "eligible" for the contingency fund, he said, the money is not committed or even requested.

Pollster Says American People Crave Moral And Spiritual Leadership

NEW YORK (AP) — Judging by an accumulating variety of survey statistics, pollster George Gallup Jr. says that seldom "in history have the American people so craved moral and spiritual leadership as they do today."

"All signs point to the fact that religion is gaining a new intellectual respectability in this country," he says.

"The assumption that the educated person 'needs' religion less, and is more ready to discard religion as a product of ignorance and superstition, is not borne out by survey findings."

Gallup, president of the American Institute of Public Opinion, of Princeton, N.J., summarized indications from recent polls of the status of religion for the National Religious Public Relations Council quarterly, Counselor.

He says that whether or not the churches succeed in providing the moral and spiritual leadership which is now widely sought depends on "two key groups" — the young and the college educated.

Although they often have been blamed for declining church influence, he says the "survey evidence strongly suggests that these groups could well be in the vanguard of religious renewal in this county."

As for the college educated, he says 24 per cent described themselves as "very religious" — a proportion matching the figure for the whole population.

Additionally, just as big a proportion of the college educated as the rest of the population say they have had a "mystical experience — that is, a moment of sudden insight or awakening," Gallup reports.

"Perhaps surprising to some, church attendance is as high — if not higher — among persons with a college background than among persons with less formal education," he says.

However, he notes a somewhat smaller proportion of college-trained people — 54 per cent — have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of respect for organized churches, as compared to 66 per cent for the whole country.

Indications of the religious concern of the college educated, he says, coincide with a trend in religious thought toward "de-emphasis of rationality and a growing acceptance of intuition as perhaps man's more impressive faculty."

He says similar indications of a high degree of religion among the educated also showed up in an international survey of an "elite group" of leaders in science, government, economics and other fields with advanced education.

The results showed 80 per cent of world leaders express a belief in good and a majority — 53 per cent — believe in life after death.

Gallup says that over-all, the findings "lend heavy support to the conclusion that religion has solid intellectual respectability and is not just something for the masses."

As for the other key group — the young — he says about a fourth of those 18 to 24 are "turned off" to organized religion, but a majority — 55 per cent cent — have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of confidence in the churches.

In the international polls, he says "the religious character of American youth stands out in bold relief when our young people are compared with the youth of other nations and the world."

Studies in 11 nations, he says, show the United States, India and Brazil have the lowest percentage of atheists among youths — less than 1 per cent — compared to 10 per cent in France and 12 per cent in Sweden.

Only 12 per cent of American youth say they have "no interest" in religion, while the figure is 32 per cent in Great Britain, 41 per cent in Sweden and 74 per cent in Japan. Gallup adds:

"American youth are not only exceptionally religious when compared to the youth of other nations but also put a higher premium on 'love and sincerity' as a goal in life and less on 'money and position.' "

"All signs point to the fact that religion is gaining a new intellectual respectability in this country," he says.

"The assumption that the educated person 'needs' religion less, and is more ready to discard religion as a product of ignorance and superstition, is not borne out by survey findings."

Gallup, president of the American Institute of Public Opinion, of Princeton, N.J., summarized indications from recent polls of the status of religion for the National Religious Public Relations Council quarterly, Counselor.

He says that whether or not the churches succeed in providing the moral and spiritual leadership which is now widely sought depends on "two key groups" — the young and the college educated.

Although they often have been blamed for declining church influence, he says the "survey evidence strongly suggests that these groups could well be in the vanguard of religious renewal in this county."

As for the college educated, he says 24 per cent described themselves as "very religious" — a proportion matching the figure for the whole population.

Additionally, just as big a proportion of the college educated as the rest of the population say they have had a "mystical experience — that is, a moment of sudden insight or awakening," Gallup reports.

"Perhaps surprising to some, church attendance is as high — if not higher — among persons with a college background than among persons with less formal education," he says.

However, he notes a somewhat smaller proportion of college-trained people — 54 per cent — have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of respect for organized churches, as compared to 66 per cent for the whole country.

Indications of the religious concern of the college educated, he says, coincide with a trend in religious thought toward "de-emphasis of rationality and a growing acceptance of intuition as perhaps man's more impressive faculty."

He says similar indications of a high degree of religion among the educated also showed up in an international survey of an "elite group" of leaders in science, government, economics and other fields with advanced education.

The results showed 80 per cent of world leaders express a belief in good and a majority — 53 per cent — believe in life after death.

Gallup says that over-all, the findings "lend heavy support to the conclusion that religion has solid intellectual respectability and is not just something for the masses."

As for the other key group — the young — he says about a fourth of those 18 to 24 are "turned off" to organized religion, but a majority — 55 per cent cent — have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of confidence in the churches.

In the international polls, he says "the religious character of American youth stands out in bold relief when our young people are compared with the youth of other nations and the world."

Studies in 11 nations, he says, show the United States, India and Brazil have the lowest percentage of atheists among youths — less than 1 per cent — compared to 10 per cent in France and 12 per cent in Sweden.

Only 12 per cent of American youth say they have "no interest" in religion, while the figure is 32 per cent in Great Britain, 41 per cent in Sweden and 74 per cent in Japan. Gallup adds:

"American youth are not only exceptionally religious when compared to the youth of other nations but also put a higher premium on 'love and sincerity' as a goal in life and less on 'money and position.' "

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

Virgo is more apt to be conscious of appearance than most people. Many leading fashion designers were born under this zodiacal sign. For one, Richard Blackwell, of the famed "10 worst dressed women" list, is a friend of astrology. "Fashions run in cycles," he says, "and an understanding of astrology aids in foreseeing those cycles."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Roadblocks to progress are removed. Green light is flashed by one in position of authority. Accent is on ambition, career, prestige and standing in community. Deal with professional superiors. Accept added responsibility. Organize efforts. Chance for promotion is enhanced.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with long-range view, awareness of potential. Travel, communications with those at a distance are also apt to be on agenda. Find ways of reaching more persons. Get message across with written word.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): New approach to accounts, stock, inventory, cash flow, borrowing and lending is required. Leo, Aquarius persons could figure prominently. Creative abilities shine if you avoid scattering your forces.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Avoid becoming involved in confrontations, legal or otherwise. Judgment could be slightly off target. Gain co-operation of one who holds opposite views to your own. By making concession, you create a more conducive atmosphere to ultimate progress.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep resolutions, especially those concerned with work and health. You will be called upon to make appearances, to give opinions and to write. Energy may be sapped. Proper pacing is more important than usual.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent is on creativity, special relationships, dealings with children and opposite sex. Be frank, specific. Check details. Avoid one who is careless, extravagant and vindictive. See through sham. Stick to factual information.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): More communication is featured on home front. Welcome this — state views and be receptive to those expressed by others. Changes are due but basics will remain the same. Member of opposite sex could ask you to prove your intentions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent now is on visits, dealings with relatives, letters and short trips. Ideas can be developed with aid of one close to you. Adjustment at home is a necessity. Be diplomatic. But be sure you get more time to be you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money picture can be active. Key is to separate fact from fancy & get down to business. Payments, collections are featured. Pisces and Virgo individuals figure prominently. See in light of actuality. One who whispers "tips" is whistling in the dark.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar cycle is strong; you can organize and execute orders, programs. You get credit for past efforts. You find that more depend on you. What you do best will come naturally — you will be more fulfilled. Another Capricorn — and a Cancer — could be in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish rather than initiate project. Work within confines of group, club, organization. Check areas usually kept under wraps. Find out what takes place behind closed doors. A meeting could be of more importance than you might suspect.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis is on getting to heart of matters — and having heart-to-heart talk with member of opposite sex. Leo and Aquarius individuals figure in important ways. Some of your desires will be fulfilled.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, somewhat of a perfectionist, nervous, restless, wanting to please and often taking the blame for mistakes made by associates. January and October are marked as your most important months of 1974. Pisces, Virgo individuals play key roles in your life.

Both Come From Well-To-Do Familes:

Two New Portuguese Leaders Were Leftists Early In Their Lives

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The two men who have emerged as leaders of the left after the fall of Portugal's long dictatorship come from well-to-do backgrounds and adopted leftist courses early in life.

One is Mario Soares, the new foreign minister, who heads the Portuguese Socialist party. The other is Alvaro Cunhal, new minister without portfolio and secretary-general of the formerly outlawed Portuguese Communist party.

Both men returned to Portugal from exile after Gen. Antonio de Spinola overthrew the regime of President Americo Thomaz and Premier Marcello Caetano on April 25 and restored civil liberties.

The two new leaders received popular welcomes and were the central figures in Lisbon's massive May Day celebrations.

Soares is 49, the husband of actress Maria Barroso and the father of two grown children. The only kind of government he has ever known in Portugal has been authoritarian.

Shortly after he was born, the military took over the government and in 1932 the long dictatorship of Antonio de Oliveira Salazar began. Caetano's regime was a moderate extension of it.

Currently rated as a moderate Socialist, Soares became a Socialist as a young man. He had a degree in literature and law.

His father, Joao Soares, had been a Cabinet minister during Portugal's first republic, established in 1910, with what were then viewed as strong leftist influences.

Soares' father founded and operated a profitable private school, which the son inherited.

He was a member of a committee which in 1949 sought to promote Gen. Norton de Matos as a candidate for president against Gen. Antonio Carmona, the right-wing leader who brought Salazar to power. It was a lost cause, and Norton de Matos withdrew.

In 1958, Soares backed another loser for president, Gen. Humberto Delgado, against Salazar's andidate, Americo Thomaz. Delgado only got 2 per cent of the vote.

In 1965, Soares emerged as an opposition politician seeking a seat in parliament. He lost but then became a defense attorney for political prisoners.

When Delgado was found dead near the Spanish-Portuguese border in 1966, Soares pressed for an inquiry, again arousing official ire.

Salazar had him sent off to the South Atlantic island of Sao Tome under forced residence early in 1968.

When Caetano became premier Soares was allowed to return to Lisbon in November of 1968.

The following year, while attending a Socialist congress in England, Soares called for Portugal's withdrawal from the African territories. This also angered authorities in Lisbon and in 1970 Soares was forced into exile.

He lived in Paris where he lectured to migrant Portuguese workers and occasionally wrote articles for the Lisbon newspaper Republica. The paper now is likely to become the official Socialist organ.

Soares has been arrested 12 times since becoming politically active.

Cunhal, who is 58, gray-haired, short and stocky, is the son of a prominent attorney and large landholder in Alentejo, a rich farming area south and east of the Tagus River Valley between Lisbon and the Spanish frontier.

Since his student days in the early 1930s, when he joined the Communist party, Cunhal has been in prison or in exile most of the time.

Before the outbreak of World War II, Cunhal made two trips to the Soviet Union. Shortly after one of these trips in 1940 he was arrested for the first time. While in prison he continued the study of law and earned his degree with the highest grade ever recorded at the law school of the University of Lisbon.

Ten years later, he was once again arrested and sentenced to a term of more than six years, plus loss of civic rights for 15 years.

In 1958, while under arrest again and in poor health, he escaped from his room in Lisbon Hospital, but later gave himself up.

In January of 1960, once again arrested and sentenced, he made an escape and fled first to France, then Czechoslovakia, where he spent most of his later years.

Little is known of his private life. Portuguese sources say Cunhal never married. His life in exile was devoted to studying the political and economic situation at home and advising his followers on strategy and tactics in building up the Portuguese Communist network.

Sri Lanka's Air Force In Tourist Business

The military uses half its 50 aircraft as tourist taxis, charging stiff hourly rates payable in the hard foreign currency desperately needed to prop up the tottering economy of this island nation once called Ceylon.

The officer in charge, Squadron Leader Noel Fernando, says his service brought in $198,000 last year — enough to cover the entire foreign exchange outlay of the air force.

"For this year, my target is $350,000," he told a visitor. "And I think it is well within my reach."

Fernando brought the first four women into the Sri Lanka air force. He put them in miniskirted uniforms and assigned them to serve snacks and drinks to the flying tourists.

"The tourists can purchase a bottle of beer," he said, "not at duty-free rates, of course, but for foreign exchange."

Last year more than 5,000 of the 77,000 tourists who visited here paid $140 an hour for helicopter tours to scenic spots on the island, similar rates for single-engine Cessna flights out of Colombo or two-hour trips to the Maldive islands about 420 miles south.

To make sure they're comfortable, Fernando bought red and white Bell bubble helicopters for sightseeing and a 42-seat Convair from Eastern Airlines for trips to the Maldives. The aircraft were outfitted and painted like those of civilian airlines.

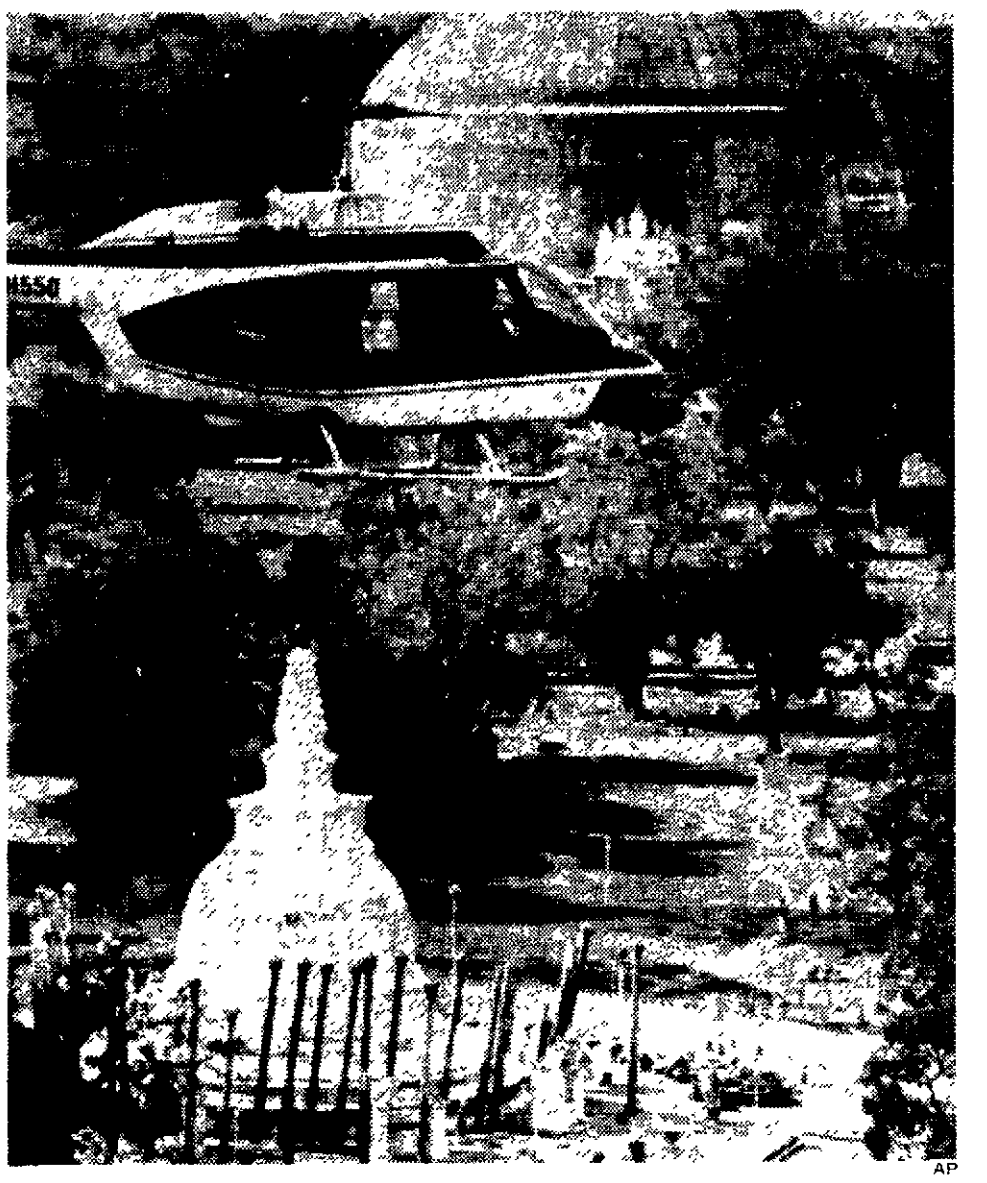
The idea of using air force planes and pilots to carry around tourists was born soon after the bloody 1971 insurrection against the government of Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

Aid came in from all sides — including the United States — to help the government put down the revolt. By the time the uprising was quelled, the air force had doubled to more than 2,000 men and its budget had jumped from $1.7 million to $4.2 million, more than this nation of 13 million needed.

"We thought, let's put this surplus to some use," recalled Fernando. "We were told if you have excess flying time, go ahead and log it, purely for foreign exchange."

After some small helicopter deals with German and Swedish tour directors that worked out well, Fernando got budget clearance to expand his fleet and buy more fixed-wing aircraft, including the $220,000 Convair.

He met resistance from tradition-minded officers and officials of Air Ceylon, the national airline. But then Mrs. Bandaranaike's government saw the foreign exchange earnings roll in.



AP

MILITARY COPTER . . . carries tourists to Buddhist monuments.

Fernando's crews now fly seven U.S.-made Belljet helicopters, two Russian-made KA2 helicopters, four two-engine Cessnas, six single-engine Cessnas, four medium-size Herrons and the airliner-sized Convair.

Mrs. Bandaranaike's government was willing to set aside its austerity principles for the air force because in Sri Lanka anything that brings in hard foreign exchange has got to be good.

The nation recorded a $152-million deficit last year and predictions are it will rise to $206 million this year.

Cocaine Confiscated

Washington (UPI) — The U.S. Customs Service said it confiscated more than 22 pounds of cocaine with an estimated street value of $5.3 million in a series of seizures beginning at ports on both coasts.

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The two men who have emerged as leaders of the left after the fall of Portugal's long dictatorship come from well-to-do backgrounds and adopted leftist courses early in life.

One is Mario Soares, the new foreign minister, who heads the Portuguese Socialist party. The other is Alvaro Cunhal, new minister without portfolio and secretary-general of the formerly outlawed Portuguese Communist party.

Both men returned to Portugal from exile after Gen. Antonio de Spinola overthrew the regime of President Americo Thomaz and Premier Marcello Caetano on April 25 and restored civil liberties.

The two new leaders received popular welcomes and were the central figures in Lisbon's massive May Day celebrations.

Soares is 49, the husband of actress Maria Barroso and the father of two grown children. The only kind of government he has ever known in Portugal has been authoritarian.

Shortly after he was born, the military took over the government and in 1932 the long dictatorship of Antonio de Oliveira Salazar began. Caetano's regime was a moderate extension of it.

Currently rated as a moderate Socialist, Soares became a Socialist as a young man. He had a degree in literature and law.

His father, Joao Soares, had been a Cabinet minister during Portugal's first republic, established in 1910, with what were then viewed as strong leftist influences.

Soares' father founded and operated a profitable private school, which the son inherited.

He was a member of a committee which in 1949 sought to promote Gen. Norton de Matos as a candidate for president against Gen. Antonio Carmona, the right-wing leader who brought Salazar to power. It was a lost cause, and Norton de Matos withdrew.

In 1958, Soares backed another loser for president, Gen. Humberto Delgado, against Salazar's andidate, Americo Thomaz. Delgado only got 2 per cent of the vote.

In 1965, Soares emerged as an opposition politician seeking a seat in parliament. He lost but then became a defense attorney for political prisoners.

When Delgado was found dead near the Spanish-Portuguese border in 1966, Soares pressed for an inquiry, again arousing official ire.

Salazar had him sent off to the South Atlantic island of Sao Tome under forced residence early in 1968.

When Caetano became premier Soares was allowed to return to Lisbon in November of 1968.

The following year, while attending a Socialist congress in England, Soares called for Portugal's withdrawal from the African territories. This also angered authorities in Lisbon and in 1970 Soares was forced into exile.

He lived in Paris where he lectured to migrant Portuguese workers and occasionally wrote articles for the Lisbon newspaper Republica. The paper now is likely to become the official Socialist organ.

Soares has been arrested 12 times since becoming politically active.

Cunhal, who is 58, gray-haired, short and stocky, is the son of a prominent attorney and large landholder in Alentejo, a rich farming area south and east of the Tagus River Valley between Lisbon and the Spanish frontier.

Since his student days in the early 1930s, when he joined the Communist party, Cunhal has been in prison or in exile most of the time.

Before the outbreak of World War II, Cunhal made two trips to the Soviet Union. Shortly after one of these trips in 1940 he was arrested for the first time. While in prison he continued the study of law and earned his degree with the highest grade ever recorded at the law school of the University of Lisbon.

Ten years later, he was once again arrested and sentenced to a term of more than six years, plus loss of civic rights for 15 years.

In 1958, while under arrest again and in poor health, he escaped from his room in Lisbon Hospital, but later gave himself up.

In January of 1960, once again arrested and sentenced, he made an escape and fled first to France, then Czechoslovakia, where he spent most of his later years.

Little is known of his private life. Portuguese sources say Cunhal never married. His life in exile was devoted to studying the political and economic situation at home and advising his followers on strategy and tactics in building up the Portuguese Communist network.

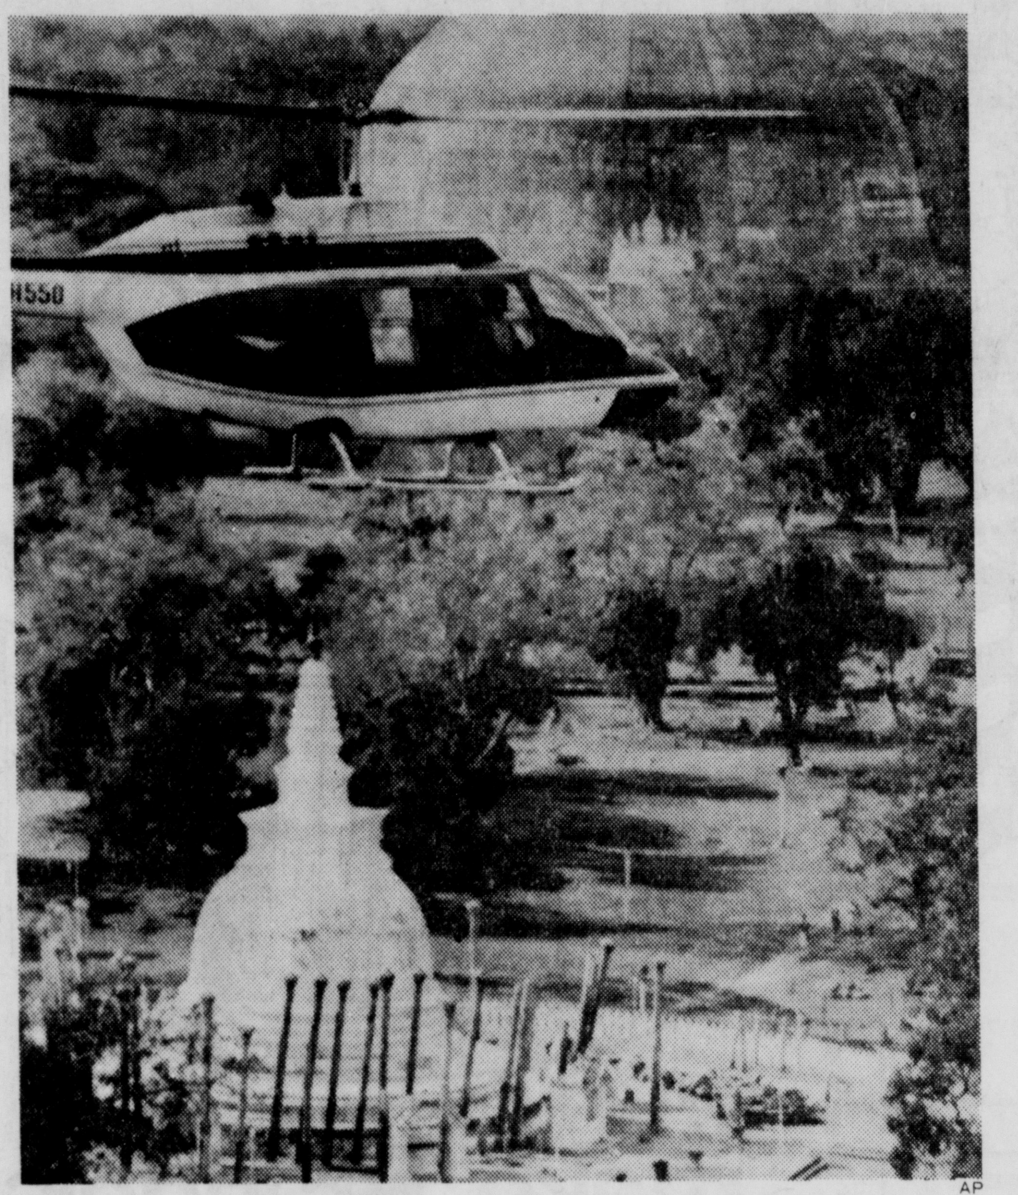
Sri Lanka's Air Force In Tourist Business



AP

MILITARY COPTER . . . carries tourists to Buddhist monuments.

The military uses half its 50 aircraft as tourist taxis, charging stiff hourly rates payable in the hard foreign currency desperately needed to prop up the tottering economy of this island nation once called Ceylon.

The officer in charge, Squadron Leader Noel Fernando, says his service brought in $198,000 last year — enough to cover the entire foreign exchange outlay of the air force.

"For this year, my target is $350,000," he told a visitor. "And I think it is well within my reach."

Fernando brought the first four women into the Sri Lanka air force. He put them in miniskirted uniforms and assigned them to serve snacks and drinks to the flying tourists.

"The tourists can purchase a bottle of beer," he said, "not at duty-free rates, of course, but for foreign exchange."

Last year more than 5,000 of the 77,000 tourists who visited here paid $140 an hour for helicopter tours to scenic spots on the island, similar rates for single-engine Cessna flights out of Colombo or two-hour trips to the Maldive islands about 420 miles south.

To make sure they're comfortable, Fernando bought red and white Bell bubble helicopters for sightseeing and a 42-seat Convair from Eastern Airlines for trips to the Maldives. The aircraft were outfitted and painted like those of civilian airlines.

The idea of using air force planes and pilots to carry around tourists was born soon after the bloody 1971 insurrection against the government of Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

Aid came in from all sides — including the United States — to help the government put down the revolt. By the time the uprising was quelled, the air force had doubled to more than 2,000 men and its budget had jumped from $1.7 million to $4.2 million, more than this nation of 13 million needed.

"We thought, let's put this surplus to some use," recalled Fernando. "We were told if you have excess flying time, go ahead and log it, purely for foreign exchange."

After some small helicopter deals with German and Swedish tour directors that worked out well, Fernando got budget clearance to expand his fleet and buy more fixed-wing aircraft, including the $220,000 Convair.

He met resistance from tradition-minded officers and officials of Air Ceylon, the national airline. But then Mrs. Bandaranaike's government saw the foreign exchange earnings roll in.

Fernando's crews now fly seven U.S.-made Belljet helicopters, two Russian-made KA2 helicopters, four two-engine Cessnas, six single-engine Cessnas, four medium-size Herrons and the airliner-sized Convair.

Mrs. Bandaranaike's government was willing to set aside its austerity principles for the air force because in Sri Lanka anything that brings in hard foreign exchange has got to be good.

The nation recorded a $152-million deficit last year and predictions are it will rise to $206 million this year.

Cocaine Confiscated

Washington (UPI) — The U.S. Customs Service said it confiscated more than 22 pounds of cocaine with an estimated street value of $5.3 million in a series of seizures beginning at ports on both coasts.

County Demos Re-Elect Chairperson Y. Hardesty

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County Democrats Thursday night re-elected Yvonne Hardesty as their chairperson, then plunged into their biennial talkathon about issues.

After six hours, the county convention had adopted dozens of resolutions ranging from abortion to welfare.

They supported "the concept of abortions being available according to individual conscience."

They endorsed legislation to remove the state prohibition against agency shop labor contracts, and to permit the sale and consumption of liquor on college campuses.

Also supported were the concepts of district elections of city council members and proposals for student control over the allocation of college student fees.

A proposal urging repeal of the spending limitation for public school boards was accepted.

And a resolution proposing state tax reform, including more dependence on the income tax and less on the sales tax, was also approved.

Other resolutions supported creation of a partisan Unicameral legislature and the enactment of federal legislation regulating handguns.

The Democrats endorsed a guaranteed minimum income plan to replace the current welfare system.

In the meantime, it was proposed welfare payments should be equal to 100% of a family's needs.

Also approved as the convention entered early Friday morning was a proposal to require runoff primary elections when no candidate receives at least 50% of the vote.

Mrs. Hardesty was elected to a second two-year term without opposition. Other officers include: Kenneth Thayer, vice chairperson; June Kromberg, first vice chairperson; Effie Burden, second vice chairperson; Jerry Loof, secretary; Melody Voyles, treasurer, and Bud Narveson, finance chairman.

Democratic Chairman Dick White told the convention he believed the time is right this year for "a Democratic victory that Nebraska has not seen in 40 years."

First District congressional nominee Hess Dyas said he has never found such a favorable response to Democrats as he is encountering in his current campaign.

And in a written message, Gov. J. James Exon predicted that 1974 will be "the year of the Democrat" in Nebraska.

Navy Head Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nomination of J. William Middendorf II to be secretary of the Navy was confirmed Thursday by the Senate.

Middendorf, former New York banker and ambassador to the Netherlands, became undersecretary of the Navy last year and has been acting secretary since the resignation of John W. Warner on April 8.

Columbus Girl Found Hanging; Death Is Probed

Columbus (AP) — The investigation is still continuing into the death Wednesday morning of 11-year-old Janet Gates of Columbus.

Platte County Coroner Ray Baker said the girl's younger brother found her body hanging at the end of a rope about 10:45 a.m. Wednesday at their grandparents' farm east of here. He said the girl had been dead about 15 minutes when her body was discovered and that she had apparently been playing in a loft. Death was caused by suffocation.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Gates.

Orchestra Plans Garden Concert

The Lincoln Symphony Orchestra with baritone soloist John Brandstetter will present a concert Thursday noon in the Lincoln Foundation Garden at 14th and N Sts. In case of rain, the performance will be postponed to Friday noon.

Also scheduled at the garden is a presentation of "Godspell" by the Southview Christian Church at 8 p.m. June 24.

Cancer Society Presents Award To Betty Knaub

Mrs. Betty Knaub has been named volunteer of the year by the Lancaster County unit of the American Cancer Society, and Arnold Buckley has been named president of the unit.

Other officers elected by the Cancer Society Unit were: Roland N. Tornblom, president-elect; Dr. James W. Wickless, first vice president; William M. Roper, secretary; Kevin Colleran, treasurer, and Dr. Harry R. Tolly, chairman of the board.

County GOP Elects Lincoln Businessman Knox

By KAREN STEINBRUEGGE
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln businessman Art Knox was re-elected Thursday night to his second term as Lancaster County Republican chairman.

Knox unanimously was chosen for the two-year term by delegates to the party's biennial convention.

Also elected were Carolyn Witthoff, secretary, and Fred Gottschalk, treasurer.

In a session which stressed grassroots politics, the convention okayed 14 platform planks without amendment.

One, proposed by delegate Terry Cannon, opposed any amnesty for draft resisters. It was approved in a sharply divided vote.

The other amendments, all dealing with local issues, were proposed by the party platform committee. they included:

—opposition to direct taxpayer financing of election campaigns.

—support of establishing a platform implementation committee to monitor local officials' actions "so that continued full accountability for local policies and programs is insured."

—support of partisan city and legislative elections.

—support of higher legislative salaries.

—support for county and city government cooperation.

—support for homestead exemptions, reduced public transportation fares and a tax credit for low income elderly renters.

After a series of amendments, the 218 registered delegates approved a constitution, reportedly the first new constitution in recent years.

Anne Batchelder, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, told delegates that the GOP has an uphill battle to win the general election.

She praised her gubernatorial running mate, Richard Marvel, and said party members should amend his slogan, "We will win," by adding, "If we all work."

Speaking on the issue of Watergate, Mrs. Batchelder said she believed, "Our party a. the national and state level has done nothing wrong."

She said Lancaster County politics were "immaculate."

She pledged to work for frugality in government spending and drug legislation.

Mrs. Batchelder said she would not cut essential services but would "wisely spend" every penny.

Speaking in support of the party plank for a partisan legislature, she said individual senators would have to work for that structural change for it to become a reality.

First Christian Elects Bogott

Paul Bogott was elected president of the First Christian Church Foundation at its annual meeting. Other officers elected were Dr. Charles Adams, vice president; Mrs. Dorothea Holstein, secretary; and Mrs. Inez Shepard, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors who were elected were Elton Berck, Dr. Eugene Brockmeyer, Mrs. Paul Goetowski, Harold Hanneman and Richard Hofmann.

Hospital Budget Hike Of 42% OKd

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln General Hospital and Lincoln Hospital Association Board of Trustees Thursday approved a budget increase of approximately 42% for fiscal 1974-75.

In a special budget meeting, the board unanimously agreed to request a total of $12,588,107 for operations beginning Sept. 1. Lincoln General's fiscal 1973-74 budget is $8,817,439.

The proposal represents "what we think is a reasonable budget," said Hospital Administrator W. Robert Brungard. Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf will review it on June 14, a City Council hearing later has not been scheduled yet.

Brungard said budget items were listed as accurately as they could be, and reflect projected increases in both revenues and expenses.

First Since Controls

The hospital's fiscal 1974-75 budget is the first to be submitted since federal wage and price controls were lifted from the health care industry.

Revenues budgeted reflect the 10% increase in Lincoln General rates that went into effect June 1. Brungard noted that the hospital had projected a $131,000 deficit before the adjustment was approved.

As it is, the 1973-74 budget shows a $31,547 projected loss in operations, compared to 1974-75 requests that would generate $13,509 in income.

Part of the strain on operations income comes from adjustments on Medicare payments, which are projected at $435,614 this fiscal year, and at $532,395 in 1974-75.

'High Inflation Rate'

To allow for "a high rate in inflation," according to the document, income and expense items were projected 10% higher than now expected, as the basis for the City of Lincoln cash budget request.

The budget lists assumptions that increases will occur in these expense categories: Salaries, 9%; food, 20%; repairs and maintenance, 15%; utilities, 25%; linen, 7.5%; other supplies and expense, 12%.

Board member Bob Sikyta, also a City Councilman, said, "I think we have some people on the council that don't realize prices have gone up as much as they have."

Hospital administrative assistant Dennis Siefford said Lincoln General is projecting a record average daily census of 228.8 adult and pediatric patients, resulting from community growth and no new hospital facilities planned.

Newborn Census To Dip

An increase in the Chemical Dependency Unit from 13.5 to 16.2 patients daily was projected, while the census of newborn is expected to decrease, from 10.5 to 9.4.

Patient service revenue for the year ending Aug. 31, 1975, should be $9,735,179, based on the 228.8 average daily census. Revenues this year are projected at slightly more than $8.5 million.

Total operating expenses of $9,342,699 projected compare with almost $8.4 million in 1973-74. Incorporating non-operating revenue (such as gifts, interest and bond funds income), the hospital this year has a projected net income of $167,254. Under the new budget, that would increase to $214,621.

In the proposed budget, salaries account for $5,419,402 requested. That compares with $4.7 million projected this fiscal year, and $4 million in fiscal 1972-73. Siefford said the average hourly salary has risen from $2.75 in 1969-70 to $3.62 in 1974-75.

He noted that as patient activity increases, the need for the number of staff does not rise, but supplies, goods and services do.

Board member Herb Hopkins said besides an increased budget, the only alternative to boosting salaries and to pay higher expenses is to restrict services, thereby reducing the overall quality of care.

Awarding Of Funds To Schools Is Urged

Milford — The Nebraska Coordinating Council for Postsecondary Education recommended here Thursday that $320,000 in previously impounded federal funds be awarded to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the Central Nebraska Technical Community College Area.

It was the first meeting of the "1202 Commission" established April 26 by Gov. J. James Exon under Section 1202 of the U.S. Higher Education Act

The council administers the Higher Education Facilities Program, under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Commissioners recommended to HEW that of the 1973 funds released three weeks ago, UNL get $260,000 for completion of the Love Library addition, and Central Community College in Grand Island get $60,000 for a media building.

Provides Funds

The facilities program provides funds for new building construction and equipment

Commissioners also recommended to HEW that funds in the new State Student Incentive Grant Program be distributed to schools in Nebraska on the basis of enrollment

The federal government matches state funds on a 50-50 basis for the incentive grants.

The 1202 Commission directed James O'Hanlon, Ph.D., higher education coordinator for the State Office of Planning and Programming, to determine if private schools may accept some of the incentive grant money.

Law now provides that state institutions are ineligible, but the issue is before the Nebraska Supreme Court. The commission action represents recognition that the incentive program should aid students in all schools, not just public school enrollees.

O'Hanlon will deliver his report at the next commission meeting July 11 at Creighton University in Omaha.

In any event, the point is probably moot, for the incentive funds will probably have to be distributed before a State Supreme Court ruling favorable to private schools and subsequent required legislative approval could come, O'Hanlon said.

He told The Star that could take as along as a year

He said it will be two to three weeks before HEW will announce how much incentive grant money will be available to Nebraskans.

Don Nelson, director of the State Office of Planning and Programming (OPP) told commissioners to consider their actions for education in relation to overall state planning activities

Advisory Board

The 1202 Commission is attached to OPP as an advisory board to the governor

Nelson and Joe Golden, also of OPP, discussed the importance of postsecondary education coordination in the state, citing cases where poor planning produced negative results in obtaining grants

Marilyn Fowler, State Board of Education president, suggested the commission consider the relationship between postsecondary and secondary ducation.

In getting underway, the 1202 Commission will gather information on programs, students and enrollments, for example.

Before touring the Southeast Community College Milford campus, the commissioners decided to meet on the second Thursday of each month, each time at a different school in Nebraska

$6,000 Being Sought To Hire Council Staff

The City Council Thursday authorized the submission of a request to obtain $6,000 in federal funds for the hiring of professional staff assistance for the council.

The lawmakers committed an additional $10,000 in city dollars to the project.

In the special session, council members indicated they have not yet decided on whether to hire a full time administrative assistant, part time staff or a consulting firm.

The application is being made to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for 701 planning funds. Council members discovered federal dollars were available last month while attending a local legislators conference in St. Paul.

A preliminary job description in the application states that the staff help would:

— Confer with city officials, boards and committees on planning matters and the operation of services.

— Analyze and review budget problems and make recommendations

— Obtain and compile data and prepare statistical and financial information.

— Provide information, interpretation and implementation of council policies.

— Review reports on city-county relationship

Council members emphasized the list of duties was preliminary since they have asked the Governmental Evaluation Commission to recommend specific duties for a staff assistant. Council Chairwoman Helen Boosalis also has asked Personnel Director Walt Mitchell to prepare a job description.

Councilmen Dick Baker and Max Denney went along with the submission of the application, although voicing reservations on the need for full time staff support

Panel On Aging Seeks Funds For Pilot Plans

Nebraska's Commission on Aging is seeking federal funds for two pilot programs aimed at care for the aged and educational services for the retired.

The commission wants $100,000 to initiate four day-care programs for the elderly.

The programs would go beyond the baby-sitting or custodial function implied by the term "day-care," according to Commission Director Joseph Gaida.

The centers could provide rehabilitation, educational and recreation services for the aged, he said. The day-care concept would allow other members of the elderly persons family, who might otherwise have to stay home, to work during the day.

It would avoid the prospect of either institutionalizing an older member of the family, or sacrificing an income.

Guida said four pilot centers, two rural and two urban, would be set up if the full grant were approved.

U.S. Aid Rapped By Thieu

Saigon (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu complained Thursday that South Vietnam has not received military and economic aid pledged by the United States despite continuing Communist aggression 16 months after the signing of the Paris cease-fire agreement.

"When we signed the agreement, we were promised very clearly that North Vietnamese troops would refrain from aggressing South Vietnam," Thieu said. "And if the aggression continued, we were promised there would be strong reaction" from the United States.

Thieu told 1,500 Vietnamese teachers at their annual congress in Thu Duc, six miles north of Saigon, that all American promises were "gone with the wind."

"We agreed that the United States pull out its troops with the condition that aid should be given to South Vietnam to support its economy and army." Thieu said economic aid is most important to halt inflation.

"Now I can ask, does the United States keeps its responsibilities, yes or no?"

Political observers said Thieu's strong public attack against the U.S. government was in response to U.S. congressmen who have voted to cut aid to South Vietnam.

The U.S. Senate last month rejected a $266 million request for ammunition in a supplemental budget for 1974.

Thieu said a general Communist offensive is under way. "There are more than 400,000 North Vietnamese in the South but the world is unable to stop their aggression."

Kidnapers Release Victim

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Annette Friedland, wife of the president of the Food Fair grocery store chain, was kidnaped from her $200,000 estate Thursday by three gunmen, the FBI said. She was released unharmed three hours later after a ransom had been paid.

The FBI said one of the kidnapers, two of whom wore stocking masks in the noontime abduction from the fashionable and exclusive Main Line suburban area, was arrested and $60,000 in ransom money was recovered.

FBI agent Robert E. Kent said Friedland received a call at his Philadelphia office at 2 p.m. from a man who demanded that the ransom be paid in exchange for the safe return of his wife.

During a second call, which Friedland placed from a pay phone, Kent said the food chain executive was instructed "to make the drop in south Philadelphia using his own personal car. He left the car as instructed for 20 minutes."

A short time later, Kent said, Mrs. Friedland, who is 43, called her husband's office and said she had been released in south Philadelphia.

Senate Bans Missile Test

The 4,800-pound first stage and other smaller components would fall into a national forest in Idaho if the missiles work as planned, the Pentagon has said.

Funds for the test firing were deleted from the military procurement bill when the Senate agreed by voice vote to an amendment offered by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

All eight Senators from Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington — joined by Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk, both D-S.D. — asked last month that Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger cancel the tests.

U.S. Aid Rapped By Thieu

Saigon (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu complained Thursday that South Vietnam has not received military and economic aid pledged by the United States despite continuing Communist aggression 16 months after the signing of the Paris cease-fire agreement.

"When we signed the agreement, we were promised very clearly that North Vietnamese troops would refrain from aggressing South Vietnam," Thieu said. "And if the aggression continued, we were promised there would be strong reaction" from the United States.

Thieu told 1,500 Vietnamese teachers at their annual congress in Thu Duc, six miles north of Saigon, that all American promises were "gone with the wind."

"We agreed that the United States pull out its troops with the condition that aid should be given to South Vietnam to support its economy and army." Thieu said economic aid is most important to halt inflation.

"Now I can ask, does the United States keeps its responsibilities, yes or no?"

Political observers said Thieu's strong public attack against the U.S. government was in response to U.S. congressmen who have voted to cut aid to South Vietnam.

The U.S. Senate last month rejected a $266 million request for ammunition in a supplemental budget for 1974.

Thieu said a general Communist offensive is under way. "There are more than 400,000 North Vietnamese in the South but the world is unable to stop their aggression."

Kidnapers Release Victim

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Annette Friedland, wife of the president of the Food Fair grocery store chain, was kidnaped from her $200,000 estate Thursday by three gunmen, the FBI said. She was released unharmed three hours later after a ransom had been paid.

The FBI said one of the kidnapers, two of whom wore stocking masks in the noontime abduction from the fashionable and exclusive Main Line suburban area, was arrested and $60,000 in ransom money was recovered.

FBI agent Robert E. Kent said Friedland received a call at his Philadelphia office at 2 p.m. from a man who demanded that the ransom be paid in exchange for the safe return of his wife.

During a second call, which Friedland placed from a pay phone, Kent said the food chain executive was instructed "to make the drop in south Philadelphia using his own personal car. He left the car as instructed for 20 minutes."

A short time later, Kent said, Mrs. Friedland, who is 43, called her husband's office and said she had been released in south Philadelphia.

Senate Bans Missile Test

The 4,800-pound first stage and other smaller components would fall into a national forest in Idaho if the missiles work as planned, the Pentagon has said.

Funds for the test firing were deleted from the military procurement bill when the Senate agreed by voice vote to an amendment offered by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

All eight Senators from Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington — joined by Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk, both D-S.D. — asked last month that Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger cancel the tests.

Cornhusker Marching Band Is A Bit Bushed, But Back Home

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A bit bushed, but generally happy to be home, members of the Cornhusker Marching Band straggled down the steps of their Boeing 747 jet Thursday night to the cheers of about 350 well-wishers.

The only thing missing was the NU football team there to welcome them back, one observer noted.

Braked Too Hard

A TWA spokesman said the pilot wasn't used to landing on such a short field and probably put the brake on too hard.

Jack Snider, professor of brass instruments and director of the UNL bands, was (almost) given the red-carpet treatment at the entrance to the terminal's lobby. A friend, Marge Martin, had spread out her red jacket as a welcoming mat.

Snider said the trip was "very worthwhile," even though it didn't go at all as planned.

"Everything was changed," he said. "We left Lincoln with one itinerary and when we landed in Geneva (Switzerland) they handed us a completely different one."

Original Schedule

The band was originally slated to tour six countries and perform in Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Great Britain and Belgium. the schedule was set up so band members would have plenty of time for sightseeing and travel.

But when they arrived, there were 12 or 13 concerts scheduled; they ended up playing nine.

Snider said one community in Germany became "quite irritated" when the band refused to perform there.

"They even threatened to take our instruments they wanted us to play so badly," he said.

Everywhere they played, the NU musicians attracted big, enthusiastic crowds, drew thunderous applause and received a lot of publicity in European newspapers, Snider said.

Fabled Pied Piper

A Swiss journalist compared the Scarlet and Cream archers to the fabled Pied Piper.

One disappointment of the tour was the lack of marching space for the band to perform, he said. In Augsburg, Germany, the band ended up performing on an ice-skating rink — minus the ice.

Don Tremain, who traveled with the band and sent news stories back to a local paper, reported: "The band played in a variety of settings, including a small band platform, a curling rink, steps above an exhibition mall, a museum and a huge, barn-like structure that had beer drinkers upstaris and cows in the basement."

Folk Festival

Tuba player Steve Forbes of Lincoln, who traveled with his wife, Karen, said the band was given its warmest welcome at a folk festival celebrating the 135th anniversary of a small Bavarian village just outside of Munich, Germany.

THE BAND IS BACK . . . members disembark at Municipal Airport.

Tornado Toll Said Eight

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — A tornado tore through sections of this eastern Arkansas town Thursday evening, and a deputy sheriff said eight persons were killed. At least 200 persons were reported injured.

Joe McCollum, deputy sheriff in this St. Francis County town of 12,500, said all the dead were trapped in a large discount store which was demolished by the twister. He said about 75 persons were injured when the roof of the Gibson's discount store collapsed.

A nearby supermarket also was in ruins, and a congressman said 400 to 500 homes were damaged.

Hospital officials estimated that 200 persons were injured, a few of them seriously.

The Red Cross said 350 homes in Forrest City — located about 90 miles east of Little Rock and 40 miles west of Memphis, Tenn. — were uninhabitable, and that 3,000 persons were homeless.

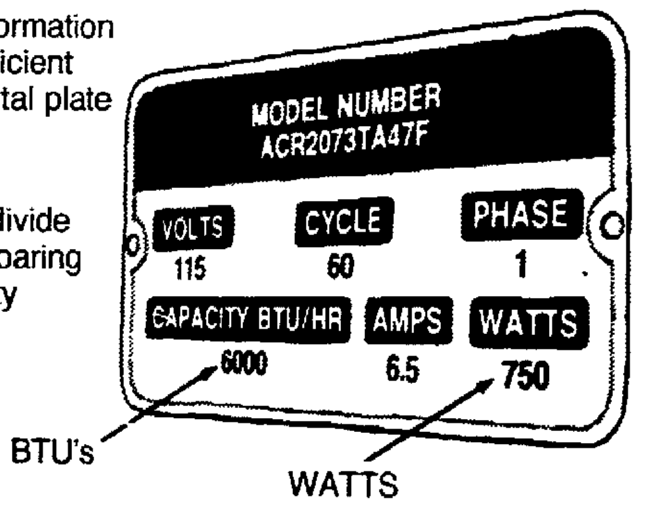
If you're willing to do a little simple arithmetic before you buy an air conditioner, you can save electricity-and money, too.

You may not realize it, but some air conditioners are more efficient than others. As a result, they use a lot less electricity to cool the same amount of space.

And when you get ready to buy an air conditioner, we think it is important that you know how to measure and compare the efficiency of the units you see.

The thing to check is known as the EER, an engineering term that stands for Energy Efficiency Ratio. And there's information on every air conditioner that lets you figure it out.

You'll find all of the information you need to select an efficient air conditioner on the metal plate attached to the unit.



To determine the EER, simply divide the BTU's by the WATTS. In comparing two air conditioners with a capacity of 6,000 BTU's per hour, one might be labeled to require 750 watts, the other 1200 watts. In such a case, the EER of the two would look like this:

5.0 EER
WATTS

8.0 EER
WATTS

Your Lincoln Electric System recommends air conditioners having an EER of 7.0 or more. So, in the illustration above, the unit requiring 750 watts is the one you should buy. Low efficiency air conditioners have EER's of around 5 to 6. If the metal plate on air conditioners you inspect is difficult to locate, ask your dealer for the BTU capacity and watt information you need to determine the EER. He will be happy to supply it to you.

An efficient air conditioner will save you money.

The more efficient models of air conditioners, because they are better engineered, will probably cost you a little more to buy. But, since they are more efficient, they will cost you less to operate. You can be assured that in the long-run, you'll save money by buying an air conditioner with a high Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER).

Remember, electricity is valuable.
Please don't waste it.

Cornhusker Marching Band Is A Bit Bushed, But Back Home

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A bit bushed, but generally happy to be home, members of the Cornhusker Marching Band straggled down the steps of their Boeing 747 jet Thursday night to the cheers of about 350 well-wishers.

The only thing missing was the NU football team there to welcome them back, one observer noted.

Braked Too Hard

A TWA spokesman said the pilot wasn't used to landing on such a short field and probably put the brake on too hard.

DEC Waste Disposal Rule Changed

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

A provision in the regulations governing animal waste disposal administered by the Department of Environmental Control (DEC) demanding a permit for all new livestock facilities was modified in a meeting by the Environmental Control Council Thursday.

The provision as interpreted by the council would have required that a shed for even one head of livestock would have to have a special state permit before it was constructed.

The provision apparently had been suggested by Mrs. Betsey Berger, assistant attorney general, as she reviewed the proposed rules and regulations.

Krejci Objects

Sharp objections to the proposal were voiced by William Krejci of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association.

"It looks to me that this thing is an effort to write in some land use rules. A 4-H kid with a calf or two would have to have a permit to build a shed. This is clear out of reason and uninforceable," he told the council.

The council members backed Krejci's objection with a unanimous vote of approval for a regulation that required a state permit for any new construction that would create a nuisance, violate water quality standards or discharge into the waters of the state.

No Permit Possible

This apparently would make it possible for a new small livestock facility to be constructed without a permit as long as it didn't pose a pollution threat.

While the farmers won that round, they lost a second fight over the period of time they would have to meet any changes in regulations. Under the regulation they now have up to one year to meet changes in the law.

The farmers had asked that the term "within a reasonable period of time," be retained but the Attorney Generals office had insisted that a specific period be established.

It was pointed out that in the event that bad weather prevented the construction of the needed changes the DEC could issue an extension, if they felt it was justified.

'Dewatering' Days

Other changes in the rules were minor except for a rule that insists that a feeder manage his runoff control system by removing fluid from his holding pond during available "dewatering" days.

There was no objection to the requirement from the council once the term was explained. A dewatering day is the first day after three consecutive days during which less than .005 inches of rain falls and the temperature remains above 32 degrees.

Lincoln Bankers Foresee No Interest Rate Changes

While larger banks in New York, Chicago and Boston are raising interest rates for personal loans, their Lincoln counterparts apparently are not.

Results of a telephone survey Thursday indicated that most Lincoln bankers have not raised rates and say they have no intention to do so.

President Roland Tornblom of City National Bank & Trust Co. said there had been a slight change, "but not enough to affect the customers." He did not specify the amount of the change.

Interest rates on personal loans range from about 9% to 18%, according to bank spokesmen. The rate charged is dependent on such factors as type of loan, length of loan and collateral.

Small loans were a problem cited by several bankers because of servicing expenses. However, none said they planned any rate changes.

A few banks had raised the interest rates about 1% on new and used car loans.

Wheat Producers To 'Wait And See'

By United Press International

There are indications that Nebraska wheat farmers will hang onto much of this year's crop until they determine a number of factors on wheat prices, according to Marx Koehnke, chief of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture's Wheat Division.

"Growers representing all areas of the state indicated, when they were in Lincoln recently, that farmers will be taking a wait-and-see attitude toward selling wheat at market time," he said.

He added: "With plenty of storage and the price down about $2.50 a bushel from its peak during the winter, growers are likely to sit on the new crop until the market strengthens."

Koehnke said expectations of a record crop of more than two billion bushels nationally is the prime market influence causing the price to drop since February from more than $6 a bushel to the current $3.50 range at Nebraska terminals.

He noted the crop is not shaping up as well as anticipated.

Drought and severe infestations of downy brome are among problems some wheat farmers are facing.

However, Koehnke said that the report issued this week by the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics rates the Nebraska crop good in 70% of the counties, excellent in 18% and fair in 12%.

Possible Aid Cut Worries India

New Delhi (UPI) — While publicly unconcerned over Canada's suspension of further nuclear technical assistance, Indian government officials privately admit they are distressed over plans by Canada, Japan and other countries to scrap all economic aid programs.

Canada's angry reaction to India's first nuclear explosion May 18 came just before a scheduled June 12 meeting of the World Bank's Aid India Consortium in Paris.

Since the United States suspended the bulk of its aid to India during the 1971 Indo-Pakistan war, Canada had been the leading advocate among the 12-nation consortium for increased aid to India.

Another voice pleading New Delhi's cause to the consortium, Japan, said the underground blast made it difficult to extend economic aid.

Both Japan and Canada may now propose a cut in economic aid to India when the consortium meets.

India's only bright light in the general gloom of international reaction came from France. Andre Giraud, chairman of the French Atomic Energy Commission, warily congratulated the Indians on their nuclear success.

According to World Bank assessments, India will need $1.3 billion in aid this year to avoid an economic catastrophe.

An estimated $650 million of that aid is expected from non-consortium nations such as the Soviet Union and East European countries.

World Bank officials have been lobbying among consortium nations for months for increased pledges to meet India's needs. The bank had also hoped to persuade consortium members to give India a three-year grace period on the nearly $700 million it nows spends each year for debt repayment.

The timing of the Indian blast, World Bank officials say, has seriously affected world concern for "Poor India" and jeopardized chances of any aid increase.

Official U.S. reaction to India's blast was subdued while Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was in the Middle East negotiating a Syrian-Israeli military disengagement agreement.

Although the United States had responded favorably to quiet Indian appeals for resumption of direct American aid, the Indian government stalled discussions that might have put $75 million more in its pocketbook this year.

It is believed the Indians did not want a debate on renewed U.S. aid in midstream when news of the blast reached the United States.

Possible Aid Cut Worries India

New Delhi (UPI) — While publicly unconcerned over Canada's suspension of further nuclear technical assistance, Indian government officials privately admit they are distressed over plans by Canada, Japan and other countries to scrap all economic aid programs.

Canada's angry reaction to India's first nuclear explosion May 18 came just before a scheduled June 12 meeting of the World Bank's Aid India Consortium in Paris.

Since the United States suspended the bulk of its aid to India during the 1971 Indo-Pakistan war, Canada had been the leading advocate among the 12-nation consortium for increased aid to India.

Another voice pleading New Delhi's cause to the consortium, Japan, said the underground blast made it difficult to extend economic aid.

Both Japan and Canada may now propose a cut in economic aid to India when the consortium meets.

India's only bright light in the general gloom of international reaction came from France. Andre Giraud, chairman of the French Atomic Energy Commission, warily congratulated the Indians on their nuclear success.

According to World Bank assessments, India will need $1.3 billion in aid this year to avoid an economic catastrophe.

An estimated $650 million of that aid is expected from non-consortium nations such as the Soviet Union and East European countries.

World Bank officials have been lobbying among consortium nations for months for increased pledges to meet India's needs. The bank had also hoped to persuade consortium members to give India a three-year grace period on the nearly $700 million it nows spends each year for debt repayment.

The timing of the Indian blast, World Bank officials say, has seriously affected world concern for "Poor India" and jeopardized chances of any aid increase.

Official U.S. reaction to India's blast was subdued while Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was in the Middle East negotiating a Syrian-Israeli military disengagement agreement.

Although the United States had responded favorably to quiet Indian appeals for resumption of direct American aid, the Indian government stalled discussions that might have put $75 million more in its pocketbook this year.

It is believed the Indians did not want a debate on renewed U.S. aid in midstream when news of the blast reached the United States.

Sugar Growers, Congress Tie Sours

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The sweet relationship between Congress and the nation's sugar growers suddenly turned sour when the House killed the 40-year-old sugar program by a vote of 209-175 Wednesday.

"This comes as a complete surprise. We had expected some modification of the bill but not a killing of it," said Harry Weber of Mitchell, vice chairman of the Great Western Sugarbeet Producers Cooperative.

The sugar act, which will expire on December 31, set domestic and foreign production quotas and an excise tax of 53 cents on a 100-pound bag of sugar. It also regulated the supply in an effort to keep sugar prices steady.

The tax money was charged on all sugar whether imported or domestically produced. Income from the taxes was then distributed to sugar growers and processors to encourage them to meet the domestic quota.

Asked what consumers and farmers could expect from the ending of the program Weber said, "I would expect that the half-cent-a-pound tax will be absorbed by somebody between the farmer and the consumer.

"It will certainly take the stability out of the sugar market. Prices could fluctuate up and down depending on what the world supply is because there will be no controls on imports," he said.

As to what will happen to sugar production in Nebraska, Weber said it will depend on the action taken by the sugar companies.

"The grower operates under a contract with the sugar company," he said. "The company should have some pretty good information on what they will be able to pay the grower by contract time, and that will determine whether the individual grower will stay in business or be forced to quit."

Weber said the uncertainty and aprehension facing the farmer could cause a sharp drop in sugar production because "growing sugar is a very expensive business.

"It takes a lot of labor and expensive equipment. Unless they can get a pretty good price for their beets they can't afford to grow them," he said.

Bob Poage, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, predicted that the killing of the bill will drive farmers out of the sugar business and increase prices from 30 to 75 cents a pound next year.

Sugar prices have been almost twice the government price objective because of a worldwide sugar shortage.

Poage predicted: "The House is going to find that it must have a sugar bill. By tomorrow morning there will be second thoughts on this."

NU Animal Center OKd

Gov. J. James Exon recently approved the program statement for the Animal Health Complex to be located at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus.

The three areas of the complex approved are the Animal Research Facility, Basic Science Facility and the Animal Holding Facility. Bids are projected to be received in January of 1975.

The diagnostic laboratory portion of the complex was earlier approved and bids will be taken in September of this year.

The total project cost has been estimated at $8 million.

Auto Insurance Payments Rise, But Claims Fall

San Francisco (UPI) — At the peak of the gasoline crisis the number of auto insurance claims declined sharply, according to the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

During the first three months of 1974, claims went down 7.3% as a result of the petrol shortage, the insurance group said.

However, the group said, the cost of paying claims went up 6.4% during the same period.

Presbyterians Elect Brewer At Moderator

St. Paul, Minn. (AP) — The senior pastor of the Grace United Presbyterian Church in Council Bluffs, Iowa, has been unanimously elected moderator of a six-state United Presbyterian Church Synod.

Officials said the Rev. J. William Brewer, whose installation was Thursday, was chosen Wednesday by the 200 delegates representing nearly 1,100 churches in Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas.

He succeeds Dr. Silas Kessler of Hastings.

The new synod moderator, who has served in Council Bluffs for six years, will serve a one-year term.

Griping Hubby Just Maintaining His Superiority

(c) Chicago Daily News

Husbands often attempt to foil their dieting wives' efforts in order to "maintain their superiority, justify their loss of sexual interest in their wives or keep them faithful," a University of Michigan psychologist says.

Prof. James V. McConnell said tape-recorded table conversations and 55 interviews showed husbands were four times as likely to offer food to their dieting wives than vice versa.

"They are 12 times more likely to critizen their wives for dieting behavior than praise it," he said, referring to research conducted by university behavioral scientist Richard B. Stuart.

Sugar Growers, Congress Tie Sours

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The sweet relationship between Congress and the nation's sugar growers suddenly turned sour when the House killed the 40-year-old sugar program by a vote of 209-175 Wednesday.

"This comes as a complete surprise. We had expected some modification of the bill but not a killing of it," said Harry Weber of Mitchell, vice chairman of the Great Western Sugarbeet Producers Cooperative.

The sugar act, which will expire on December 31, set domestic and foreign production quotas and an excise tax of 53 cents on a 100-pound bag of sugar. It also regulated the supply in an effort to keep sugar prices steady.

The tax money was charged on all sugar whether imported or domestically produced. Income from the taxes was then distributed to sugar growers and processors to encourage them to meet the domestic quota.

Asked what consumers and farmers could expect from the ending of the program Weber said, "I would expect that the half-cent-a-pound tax will be absorbed by somebody between the farmer and the consumer.

"It will certainly take the stability out of the sugar market. Prices could fluctuate up and down depending on what the world supply is because there will be no controls on imports," he said.

As to what will happen to sugar production in Nebraska, Weber said it will depend on the action taken by the sugar companies.

"The grower operates under a contract with the sugar company," he said. "The company should have some pretty good information on what they will be able to pay the grower by contract time, and that will determine whether the individual grower will stay in business or be forced to quit."

Weber said the uncertainty and aprehension facing the farmer could cause a sharp drop in sugar production because "growing sugar is a very expensive business.

"It takes a lot of labor and expensive equipment. Unless they can get a pretty good price for their beets they can't afford to grow them," he said.

Bob Poage, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, predicted that the killing of the bill will drive farmers out of the sugar business and increase prices from 30 to 75 cents a pound next year.

Sugar prices have been almost twice the government price objective because of a worldwide sugar shortage.

Poage predicted: "The House is going to find that it must have a sugar bill. By tomorrow morning there will be second thoughts on this."

NU Animal Center OKd

Gov. J. James Exon recently approved the program statement for the Animal Health Complex to be located at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus.

The three areas of the complex approved are the Animal Research Facility, Basic Science Facility and the Animal Holding Facility. Bids are projected to be received in January of 1975.

The diagnostic laboratory portion of the complex was earlier approved and bids will be taken in September of this year.

The total project cost has been estimated at $8 million.

Auto Insurance Payments Rise, But Claims Fall

San Francisco (UPI) — At the peak of the gasoline crisis the number of auto insurance claims declined sharply, according to the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

During the first three months of 1974, claims went down 7.3% as a result of the petrol shortage, the insurance group said.

However, the group said, the cost of paying claims went up 6.4% during the same period.

Presbyterians Elect Brewer At Moderator

St. Paul, Minn. (AP) — The senior pastor of the Grace United Presbyterian Church in Council Bluffs, Iowa, has been unanimously elected moderator of a six-state United Presbyterian Church Synod.

Officials said the Rev. J. William Brewer, whose installation was Thursday, was chosen Wednesday by the 200 delegates representing nearly 1,100 churches in Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas.

He succeeds Dr. Silas Kessler of Hastings.

The new synod moderator, who has served in Council Bluffs for six years, will serve a one-year term.

Griping Hubby Just Maintaining His Superiority

(c) Chicago Daily News

Husbands often attempt to foil their dieting wives' efforts in order to "maintain their superiority, justify their loss of sexual interest in their wives or keep them faithful," a University of Michigan psychologist says.

Prof. James V. McConnell said tape-recorded table conversations and 55 interviews showed husbands were four times as likely to offer food to their dieting wives than vice versa.

"They are 12 times more likely to critizen their wives for dieting behavior than praise it," he said, referring to research conducted by university behavioral scientist Richard B. Stuart.

Hewitt DeCamp Mass Saturday

Omaha (AP) — A memorial mass will be celebrated at 5 p.m. Saturday at St. Richard's Church in Omaha for William Hewitt DeCamp, father of State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh.

The elder DeCamp died of cancer May 28. He was in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and last served in Brasilia, Brazil.

Lenin Founded Camps—Solzhenitsyn

PARIS (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn claims in the second volume of "Gulag Archipelago" that it was the founder of the Soviet state, Vladimir I. Lenin, who introduced forced labor camps and not his successor, Joseph Stalin.

The new 650-page volume of the epic denunciation of the camps asserts, however, that Stalin vastly expanded and institutionalized the brutal system to provide the Soviet economy with an inexhaustible supply of free labor. The book goes on sale here next week.

The first volume of the trilogy, published in Paris last December, led to Solzhenitsyn's expulsion from the Soviet Union. He now lives in Zurich, Switzerland A third volume, analyzing the shortcomings in Communist society which permitted the forced labor system to exist, is expected to be published later this year All three volumes were written in Russia and smuggled to the West before 1968.

The new volume estimates that 66 million persons passed through Soviet forced labor camps between 1918 and 1959 and untold thousands died of the brutality or sheer neglect of guards and trusties.

Solzhenitzyn says the first forced labor camp was set up immediately after the October Revolution on the White Sea island of Solovki, north of the Arctic Circle, in a former czarist prison camp.

The forced labor system was "a cancer which started at Solovki and spread its growth all over the country," Solzhenitsyn said. He himself was convicted in 1945 of criticizing Stalin and spent eight years in various forced labor camps.

In blaming Lenin rather than Stalin for introducing the system, he flatly contradicted the current Soviet rationalization that forced labor was an invention of Stalin's autocracy

He claims that Stalin's inspiration for turning the system into a mainstay of the Soviet economy came from Naphtali Frenkel, a Turkish-born Jew who became a general in the secret police but later landed in prison himself for black marketing.

Frenkel 's theory of economic exploitation of forced labor was based on the principle that the system should "take everything possible out of a prisoner" during his first three months and then lose interest in keeping him alive, Solzhenitsyn charges.

Brass, GIs Remember D-Day

Omaha Beach, Normandy, France (UPI) — The old soldiers of World War II, led by five-star General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, 81, returned to the sites of some of their bloodiest battles Thursday and paid tribute to their comrades who fell in history's biggest seaborne invasion 30 years ago.

American, British, Canadian and French troops suffered a total of 9,000 casualties as landing craft put ashore 130,000 men on the Normandy beaches on D-Day, June 6, 1944.

Services, Speeches

Remembered with marches, religious services, speeches, military parades and wreath-layings were:

— Omaha and Utah Beaches, where American soldiers met withering fire from Nazi defenders.

It was the biggest seaborne operation in history — commanded by the then Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower — and proved to be the beginning of the end for the war in Europe.

'Longest Day' Vets

Among the American veterans who came to Normandy to relive the "Longest Day" were Bradley, Taylor, Gen. Mark Clark, Gen. J. Lawton Collins and scores of middle-aged veterans — many with their wives — from cities across the United States.

Defense Minister Jacques Soufflet greeted the Americans on behalf of the French they liberated.

At Bayeux, survivors marched to the Liberation Memorial where they laid a wreath. There was another wreath-laying and a religious service at Omaha Beach, site of a National Guard monument.

Net Energy Policy Advocated

EDITOR'S NOTE: Who of us has not read of the 'energy crisis' and then had to grind his teeth when the fuel bills went up? But there is hope for the individual. Wil Lepkowski of the McGraw-Hill World News Washington bureau explains that in calculating energy production, too often the energy investment is not properly reckoned with.

BY WIL LEPKOWSKI

Washington, — There is an energy policy aimed at human happiness instead of growth. Maybe that sounds a bit Utopian but Howard T. Odum, a University of Florida ecologist says that Utopia is the only way to go.

Odum, a red-haired prophet of sorts, is the principal spokesman for a simple idea that has a lot of impact for the consumer. The idea is called "net energy" and says that one has to use energy to get energy. Energy equals energy, but what's left over is what counts — net energy.

It's Odum's opinion that we are using so much energy to obtain energy that some new energy technologies could turn into "new energy losses." And the public is probably not aware of what is happening. For example, it takes one Kilowatt of power to build, maintain and supply a nuclear power plant for every 1.1 kilowatts it produces.

Even economists say "so what?" Odum says that thinking in terms of "net energy will help planners establish policies for the future that will give the ordinary person a break in spite of the energy shortage. By thinking of "net energy" now, Odum says, politicians, businessmen, government officials and consumers can prepare better for the future.

Odum has gathered some backers in Washington, including staff people in the Federal Energy Administration, the Council on environmental quality and the Environmental Protection Agency. Also, the Bureau of Mines is currently studying now much energy it will take to mine and refine all types of fuels.

The biggest supporter of the net energy idea is Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon who has established an energy policy planning office. "In Oregon we have been working to develop a method for basing all state planning on energy rather than on traditional, fragmented and otherwise limited perceptions." With net energy as a focus, McCall feels that Oregon can help develop its future without embarrassing — and disastrous — energy surprises.

Without saying so, Texaco apparently bought the net energy idea when it rejected the chance to bid on shale oil land leases in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming. As far as Texaco was concerned, it would have taken too much energy to obtain oil from the shale.

So how will all this help the individual? Odum says that the "net energy" principle will force individuals to slow down and lead more natural lives.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Down to North Beach on a sunny day and I ran into a winey fellow who said: "Do you know the wine business is so crazy today that you pay more for a French wine in Paris than you do here?"

He said: "Even here in the U.S. French wine imports are off a third. Why? The price gets too high. When imported wine gets over $3 a bottle (I'm talking about good but not great vintage wine) when the cost goes over $3, the buyer balks.

"On the other side, you have the French way of thinking. If the Frenchman gets $2.50 for his wine, he immediately thinks: 'I sold it too cheap.' He bumps it to $3.

"Now it doesn't sell. But does he take it back to $2.50? No. He jumps it to $6. He thinks, 'I'm only selling half what I use to. But at $6 I make just as much money.'"

With wine prices going out of sight, we've gone back to California jug wine: two bucks for a half gallon. It's red. It tastes good. If I spill a glass, I don't feel I'm spilling gold.

I am a member of La Confrerie des Chevaliers du Tastevins — The Brotherhood of Wine-tasting Knights. It is an elegant society. The members say it dates back to Year 1200. But actually it was puffed up by a wine press agent about 1934. (There was something back in 1200 so there's a loose connection.)

It sings the grapey song of Burgundy. There are chapters all over the world. The most famous meets at Nuits St. George wher the members open rare and antique bottles and get smashed.

The wine man in North Beach said: "As wine went up, a lot of Americans began hoarding it. Like investing in gold coins — you bet it would go higher.

"The result has been you find wines on the dinner menu at $50 that you used to get for $5."

He said: "But how many people will pop $50? For wine only. So cheaper wines go up — following the big vintage wines. And you quit buying and go back to the jug from the Napa valley."

Before wine got beyond my price, I made a knightly study of the grape. I found out why you may only drink sauternes with roquefort cheese. Or they'll never speak to you gain.

I know now why fish prefer to be eaten with white wine. But cows insist on being served with red.

I learned to put down my glass when the salad came around and remark sagely: "Wine is the enemy of the salad."

We are noble knights and have noble thoughts. (Which we drop nobly at every opportunity.)

In lustier years (and flatter pockets) I lived in this winey, garlicky part of San Francisco.

I had never heard of vintages: There was red wine and white wine. A free bottle came with the meal. There are still little Italian restaurants who keep up this fine custom.

Press Group Invites Probe

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Press Association Thursday told Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice that he is welcome to investigate its lobbying activities relating to 1974 probate code legislation.

"Our interest, our only interest, was in the publication portions" of the bills, George Miller of Papillion, chairman of NPA's legislative committee, wrote Carstens.

"Your bill and the uniform probate code bill called for elimination of public notice.

'Violated Right'

"In our judgment, that was contrary to the public's interest and violated the public's right to have important information brought to their attention."

Members of the NPA legislative committee and NPA staff "spent approximately 100 man hours and have to date expended $1,500 in association funds" on probate code legislation lobbying activities, Miller told Carstens.

"We are prepared to detail all phases of our lobbying procedures and any funds expended," he wrote.

Carstens has requested the Legislative Council's executive board to give him permission to undertake hearings on probate code lobbying activities.

In an interview earlier this week, the senator was particularly critical of NPA activities as outlined in an article in the association's monthly publication.

'Willing To Meet'

Miller told Carstens that NPA officers are "willing to meet with you at any time to answer any questions you might have concerning our legislative activity."

NPA's efforts to retain publication notices in probate legislation represented "a carbon copy of any lobbying efforts," Miller said.

"The single most important principle on which all legal newspapers are based is 'the public's right to know,' " he wrote.

"Our industry believes that complete, accurate and full disclosure is essential. This association, in representing Nebraska's 234 daily and weekly newspapers, naturally adheres to those principles.

"In as much as all of our activities are open and above board and completely honest and in line with proper legislative practices, we do not hesitate to report publicly and fully on any and all activities."

Exon Sees Confidence Shift

By EDWARD HOWARD
Associated Press Writer

If some of Gov. J. James Exon's impressions are correct, waning confidence in federal government may be accompanied by rising faith in government at the state level.

Exon said the theme of a panel discussion at the National Governors Conference in Seattle seemed to be that political influence also was shifting from Washington to the state capitols.

Exon responded to questions in a telephone interview with the Associated Press prior to leaving Seattle.

Several Subjects

The governor talked about beef, bureaucracy, politics and the President.

Exon said he was especially impressed with a suggestion made by former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, aimed at bettering communication between the governors and the White House.

Sanford suggested that the President meet twice annually with the nation's governors.

Summing up his perceptions in one area, Exon said "this is a time when states' rights may come into its own."

Some of the resolutions approved by the conference, two of them sponsored by Exon, indicated his thoughts were shared by many of his colleagues.

Exon won unanimous approval from the conference to carry on what might be considered the mini-war he and the state's congressional delegation have waged against the Transportation Department over highway signs.

Amendment Approved

Governors approved Exon's amendment to a transportation committee report which put every state on record as requesting permission to install tourism advertising signs along interstate highways.

The government has ordered Nebraska to remove such signs, and the state has flatly refused; State Roads Director Thomas Doyle has said Nebraska would take court action, if necessary, to avoid federal penalties.

Nebraska is asking the federal government to reconsider its position, and Exon said the governors' action Wednesday may help Nebraska's case.

A majority of the governors also approved an Exon resolution asking President Nixon to exercise his authority, under the 1964 beef import quotas, "which would allow us to undo the situation we're presently faced with" in the livestock industry, Exon said.

'I Agree With Butz'

"I simply agree with what Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz said when he visited Nebraska recently," Exon said. "America has become a dumping ground for foreign beef."

While emphasizing he had not taken a personal position on the matter, Exon criticized some of the political thinking he ran into concerning Nixon's possible impeachment.

Exon said there was talk that some members of the House would vote for impeachment "because they want Nixon to enjoy a fair trial before the Senate."

"That is just a cop out," Exon said. He said no congressman should vote for impeachment except on the basis of evidence, and not to simply send Nixon before a trial in the Senate.

The governor speculated, based on conversations at the conference, that if Nixon were impeached, Republican leaders would persuade him to resign rather than face a lengthy trial in the Senate.

Routine Becomes Night Of Terror

Omaha (AP) — The routine Wednesday night for the director of emergency out-patient services at Lutheran Hospital here developed into a night of terror, tension and tragedy.

Dr. Steven Schwid had a minor emergency case at 9:07 p.m. and then at 9:37 came the report of a shooting involving Jesse McDonald. That was the beginning.

By 10:30 the wail of the rescue squad siren had sounded three more times at the emergency entrance. Patrolman James Krzemien and Sgt. Guy Goodrich were victims of gunfire from a sniper's gun as was a bystander, Booker Stubblefield.

Then came the report of two more patrolmen enroute to Lutheran and a sergeant to St. Joseph Hospital.

The emergency room staff, augmented now by six more doctors, worked over the victims as families waited.

Shortly before 1 a.m. came the word that a seriously wounded police officer was being brought to the emergency room. Paul Nields was administered the last right of the Roman Catholic Church and died soon after.

Then at 2:14, another radio call came, indicating a "Code 4" (Dead on arrival) as Elza Carr, the sniper, was carried in.

It still wasn't over for the emergency room staff as another wounded officer followed. Finally, near 3 a.m., the last victim ended the tragic night. Annie Worlds was shot after Carr was killed. She remains in critical condition.

3 State Reclamation Projects Funded In Bill Sent To Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Works Appropriations Bill passed by the U. S. House of Representatives Thursday includes $1,499,000 for reclamation projects in Nebraska, according to Rep. Dave Martin.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Martin said the fiscal 1975 appropriations bill includes $500,000 for the North Loup Project, $550,000 for the O'Neill Project and $449,000 for the Nebraska Mid-State Project.

The funds are for the fiscal year which begins July 1, and are for advance planning work.

Located in central Nebraska, the North Loup project would irrigate 53,000 acres in Valley, Greeley, Howard and Nance Counties. Proposed facilities for the project would include dams and reservoirs on the Calamus River and Davis Creek, tributaries of the North Loup River, 158 miles of canals and 212 miles of laterals.

The O'Neill Project in north-central Nebraska would irrigate 77,000 acres in Keya Paha and Holt Counties. Project facilities would include a dam and reservoir at Norden and a distribution system of 362 miles of canals and laterals.

The Nebraska Mid-State Project, located along the Platte River in central Nebaska, would irrigate of 140,000 acres, and is currently processing signup of acreage.

2 Nebraskans Killed, 3 Hurt In Iowa Crash

Harlan, Iowa (AP) — Two Omaha women were killed and three other Nebraskans were injured in a car-truck crash at the junction of U.S. 59 and Iowa 44 at the edge of Harlan.

Killed in the Wednesday accident were Dora Thomas, 75, and her daughter, Lois Thomas, 53, both of Omaha.

Graham and two passengers, Larry Cemper, 23, of Columbus and Larry Cramer, 32, of Oakland, Neb., were treated at a hospital for minor injuries.

Patrol Identifies Accident Victim

Hazard (AP) — The truck driver killed Wednesday night in a one-vehicle accident north of here was identified Thursday by the State Patrol as Robert M. Miller, 48, of Kearney.

Troopers said the Kearney man was killed when his gravel truck went off a county road about 2½ miles north of Hazard.

Deputies Find Body Of Youth In Platte River

Omaha (AP) — The body of a 15-year-old Omaha youth who drowned in the Platte River Sunday was recovered Wednesday by Douglas County sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the body of Rollie Rogers II was found about five miles south of the Two Rivers Recreation area.

Deputies said earlier that Rogers was wading in the river on the west side of the recreation area when he disappeared under the water about 3 p.m. Sunday.

Friends attempted to find the youth but failed, deputies said.

New Contract Proposal Nixed By Iron Workers

A new contract proposal from the Lincoln Building Contractors Employes Association (LBCEA) was "soundly defeated" by members of Iron Workers Local 21, said union business agent Bert Sexton

Sexton said the iron workers would be staying on the job on a day-to-day basis to show good faith in their bargaining.

Language difficulties within the contract represented the major stumbling block in acceptance, "although the matter of money is not settled either," he said.

LBCEA attorney Dean Kratz of Omaha said the group had offered a 95-cent per hour wage increase and fringe benefits to bring the total package to $9.10 an hour.

Sexton said he hopes to establish another meeting with LBCEA to resume negotiations "as soon as possible."

Kratz said Thursday night he had no information from the union about that.

A strike by the union has been authorized it necessary and if it came about construction would halt on such major Lincoln projects as the University of Nebraska fieldhouse, the new federal building, the National Bank of Commerce and the Hilton Hotel.

Czechs Listen To Real Thing

Sen. Chambers Wants More Black Policemen

Omaha (AP) — In a meeting Thursday with Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky, State Sen. Ernest Chambers recommended a more aggressive recruitment of black police officers in Omaha.

Chambers said the death of officer Paul Nields and Elza Carr, the sniper in Thursday morning's shootout, might have been prevented. If the officer went into the house without being ordered to do so, the death was avoidable, Chambers said.

Chambers said officers engaged in "random shooting" at the house and neighbors were in danger.

The senator was not at the scene but said he received several phone calls from witnesses and read and viewed news reports. His legislative district includes the area where the shootings occurred.

Zorinsky defended police by saying no shots were fired by officers until after the gunman's half-brother and an officer had been shot.

NCLU Suit Backs Inmate

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union Thursday filed a petition in Lancaster County Court for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a Nebraska Penal Complex inmate.

The suit alleges that the inmate, Leonard W. Walle Jr., had his educational release to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln revoked by the penal complex "without sufficient grounds and without due process hearing."

The suit also alleges that Walle was not given a written guideline from the complex stating what conduct was expected from him during the release program.

The NCLU contends that after warden Charles Wolff and three complex employes made allegations of a poor school performance against Walle, "the subsequent confinement and restraint in the penal complex are illegal, being in violation of Mr. Walle's rights under the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution."

Press Group Invites Probe

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Press Association Thursday told Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice that he is welcome to investigate its lobbying activities relating to 1974 probate code legislation.

"Our interest, our only interest, was in the publication portions" of the bills, George Miller of Papillion, chairman of NPA's legislative committee, wrote Carstens.

"Your bill and the uniform probate code bill called for elimination of public notice.

'Violated Right'

"In our judgment, that was contrary to the public's interest and violated the public's right to have important information brought to their attention."

Members of the NPA legislative committee and NPA staff "spent approximately 100 man hours and have to date expended $1,500 in association funds" on probate code legislation lobbying activities, Miller told Carstens.

"We are prepared to detail all phases of our lobbying procedures and any funds expended," he wrote.

Carstens has requested the Legislative Council's executive board to give him permission to undertake hearings on probate code lobbying activities.

In an interview earlier this week, the senator was particularly critical of NPA activities as outlined in an article in the association's monthly publication.

'Willing To Meet'

Miller told Carstens that NPA officers are "willing to meet with you at any time to answer any questions you might have concerning our legislative activity."

NPA's efforts to retain publication notices in probate legislation represented "a carbon copy of any lobbying efforts," Miller said.

"The single most important principle on which all legal newspapers are based is 'the public's right to know,' " he wrote.

"Our industry believes that complete, accurate and full disclosure is essential. This association, in representing Nebraska's 234 daily and weekly newspapers, naturally adheres to those principles.

"In as much as all of our activities are open and above board and completely honest and in line with proper legislative practices, we do not hesitate to report publicly and fully on any and all activities."

Exon Sees Confidence Shift

By EDWARD HOWARD
Associated Press Writer

If some of Gov. J. James Exon's impressions are correct, waning confidence in federal government may be accompanied by rising faith in government at the state level.

Exon said the theme of a panel discussion at the National Governors Conference in Seattle seemed to be that political influence also was shifting from Washington to the state capitols.

Exon responded to questions in a telephone interview with the Associated Press prior to leaving Seattle.

Several Subjects

The governor talked about beef, bureaucracy, politics and the President.

Exon said he was especially impressed with a suggestion made by former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, aimed at bettering communication between the governors and the White House.

Sanford suggested that the President meet twice annually with the nation's governors.

Summing up his perceptions in one area, Exon said "this is a time when states' rights may come into its own."

Some of the resolutions approved by the conference, two of them sponsored by Exon, indicated his thoughts were shared by many of his colleagues.

Exon won unanimous approval from the conference to carry on what might be considered the mini-war he and the state's congressional delegation have waged against the Transportation Department over highway signs.

Amendment Approved

Governors approved Exon's amendment to a transportation committee report which put every state on record as requesting permission to install tourism advertising signs along interstate highways.

The government has ordered Nebraska to remove such signs, and the state has flatly refused; State Roads Director Thomas Doyle has said Nebraska would take court action, if necessary, to avoid federal penalties.

Nebraska is asking the federal government to reconsider its position, and Exon said the governors' action Wednesday may help Nebraska's case.

A majority of the governors also approved an Exon resolution asking President Nixon to exercise his authority, under the 1964 beef import quotas, "which would allow us to undo the situation we're presently faced with" in the livestock industry, Exon said.

'I Agree With Butz'

"I simply agree with what Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz said when he visited Nebraska recently," Exon said. "America has become a dumping ground for foreign beef."

While emphasizing he had not taken a personal position on the matter, Exon criticized some of the political thinking he ran into concerning Nixon's possible impeachment.

Exon said there was talk that some members of the House would vote for impeachment "because they want Nixon to enjoy a fair trial before the Senate."

"That is just a cop out," Exon said. He said no congressman should vote for impeachment except on the basis of evidence, and not to simply send Nixon before a trial in the Senate.

The governor speculated, based on conversations at the conference, that if Nixon were impeached, Republican leaders would persuade him to resign rather than face a lengthy trial in the Senate.

Routine Becomes Night Of Terror

Omaha (AP) — The routine Wednesday night for the director of emergency out-patient services at Lutheran Hospital here developed into a night of terror, tension and tragedy.

Dr. Steven Schwid had a minor emergency case at 9:07 p.m. and then at 9:37 came the report of a shooting involving Jesse McDonald. That was the beginning.

By 10:30 the wail of the rescue squad siren had sounded three more times at the emergency entrance. Patrolman James Krzemien and Sgt. Guy Goodrich were victims of gunfire from a sniper's gun as was a bystander, Booker Stubblefield.

Then came the report of two more patrolmen enroute to Lutheran and a sergeant to St. Joseph Hospital.

The emergency room staff, augmented now by six more doctors, worked over the victims as families waited.

Shortly before 1 a.m. came the word that a seriously wounded police officer was being brought to the emergency room. Paul Nields was administered the last right of the Roman Catholic Church and died soon after.

Then at 2:14, another radio call came, indicating a "Code 4" (Dead on arrival) as Elza Carr, the sniper, was carried in.

It still wasn't over for the emergency room staff as another wounded officer followed. Finally, near 3 a.m., the last victim ended the tragic night. Annie Worlds was shot after Carr was killed. She remains in critical condition.

3 State Reclamation Projects Funded In Bill Sent To Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Works Appropriations Bill passed by the U. S. House of Representatives Thursday includes $1,499,000 for reclamation projects in Nebraska, according to Rep. Dave Martin.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Martin said the fiscal 1975 appropriations bill includes $500,000 for the North Loup Project, $550,000 for the O'Neill Project and $449,000 for the Nebraska Mid-State Project.

The funds are for the fiscal year which begins July 1, and are for advance planning work.

Located in central Nebraska, the North Loup project would irrigate 53,000 acres in Valley, Greeley, Howard and Nance Counties. Proposed facilities for the project would include dams and reservoirs on the Calamus River and Davis Creek, tributaries of the North Loup River, 158 miles of canals and 212 miles of laterals.

The O'Neill Project in north-central Nebraska would irrigate 77,000 acres in Keya Paha and Holt Counties. Project facilities would include a dam and reservoir at Norden and a distribution system of 362 miles of canals and laterals.

The Nebraska Mid-State Project, located along the Platte River in central Nebaska, would irrigate of 140,000 acres, and is currently processing signup of acreage.

2 Nebraskans Killed, 3 Hurt In Iowa Crash

Harlan, Iowa (AP) — Two Omaha women were killed and three other Nebraskans were injured in a car-truck crash at the junction of U.S. 59 and Iowa 44 at the edge of Harlan.

Killed in the Wednesday accident were Dora Thomas, 75, and her daughter, Lois Thomas, 53, both of Omaha.

Graham and two passengers, Larry Cemper, 23, of Columbus and Larry Cramer, 32, of Oakland, Neb., were treated at a hospital for minor injuries.

Patrol Identifies Accident Victim

Hazard (AP) — The truck driver killed Wednesday night in a one-vehicle accident north of here was identified Thursday by the State Patrol as Robert M. Miller, 48, of Kearney.

Troopers said the Kearney man was killed when his gravel truck went off a county road about 2½ miles north of Hazard.

Deputies Find Body Of Youth In Platte River

Omaha (AP) — The body of a 15-year-old Omaha youth who drowned in the Platte River Sunday was recovered Wednesday by Douglas County sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the body of Rollie Rogers II was found about five miles south of the Two Rivers Recreation area.

Deputies said earlier that Rogers was wading in the river on the west side of the recreation area when he disappeared under the water about 3 p.m. Sunday.

Friends attempted to find the youth but failed, deputies said.

New Contract Proposal Nixed By Iron Workers

A new contract p roposal from the Lincoln Building Contractors Employes Association (LBCEA) was "soundly defeated" by members of Iron Workers Local 21, said union business agent Bert Sexton.

Sexton said the iron workers would be staying on the job on a day-to-day basis to show good faith in their bargaining.

Language difficulties within the contract represented the major stumbling block in acceptance, "although the matter of money is not settled either," he said.

LBCEA attorney Dean Kratz of Omaha said the group had offered a 95-cent per hour wage increase and fringe benefits to bring the total package to $9.10 an hour.

Sexton said he hopes to establish another meeting with LBCEA to resume negotiations "as soon as possible."

Kratz said Thursday night he had no information from the union about that.

A strike by the union has been authorized it necessary and if it came about construction would halt on such major Lincoln projects as the University of Nebraska fieldhouse, the new federal building, the National Bank of Commerce and the Hilton Hotel.

Miss Nebraska Pageant Is June 16

Kearney (AP) — A new Miss Nebraska will be crowned June 16 in the annual pageant.

Twenty girls will be vying for the title in the June 15-16 pageant which is being held in Kearney for the fourth consecutive year. The pageant is sponsored by the Kearney Jaycees.

Contestants will arrive in Kearney Tuesday to begin four days of rehearsals and to participate in various pageant activities.

Preliminary competition is scheduled the night of June 15, with the final round beginning the next afternoon.

The reigning Miss Nebrasks, Sandy Cramer of Omaha, will crown the new title holder. Pageant director Bill Lincoln said $1,950 in scholarship money will be presented to the winner and runners-up and nine trophies will be awarded.

Pageant contestants are:

Miss Arapahoe, Lou Ann Larson; Miss Bellevue, Patricia Gilles; Miss Broken Bow, Phyllis Spray of Sargent; Miss Central Technical Community College, Sue Hines of Grand Island; Miss Holdrege, Peggy Bristol of Kearney.

Miss Kearney, Dori Richard of Mitchell; Miss Kearney State, Jacqueline Berniklau of Maxwell; Miss Lancaster County Lynell Frankforter of Lincoln; Miss Lincoln, Annette Greene of Imperial.

Miss Nebraska Czech Queen, Barbara Caha of Ceresco; Miss Neligh, Pamela Jo Meuret of Brunswick; Miss Northcentral, Patricia McCarville of O'Neill; Miss Offutt Air Force Base, Veronica Markey of Bellevue.

Miss Omaha, Linda Jacobsen of Omaha; Miss Ord, Jennifer Beigram; Miss Oxford, Keanna Poyser of Orleans; Miss Southwest, Laurie Harper of Beaver City; Miss Thayer County, Sharlene Biltoft of Edgar.

Czechs Listen To Real Thing

Schelert Honored

Reinhart Schelert, son of Mrs. Elsa Schelert, 1926 N. 56th, has been named to the dean's honor roll for the spring semester at Abiliene Christian College. Schelert, a 1966 graduate of Lincoln High School, is a senior Bible major.

2 Lincoln Firms Win Art Awards

Lincoln corporations received two of 23 Business in the Arts awards given Wednesday by Esquire magazine and the Business Committee for the Arts. The annual awards were presented in Fort Worth, Tex.

The National Bank of Commerce was recognized for its part in presenting the Joffrey Ballet for three performances in Lincoln. NBC collaborated with the University of Nebraska and the Lincoln Public Schools in the project.

Bankers Life Nebraska of Lincoln also received an award for its artist in residence program.

Student Honored

Baby Skunk Stomps Feet, Bluffs A Spray

A CREAM . . . treat for Petunia is fed with eye dropper by Sue Schroeder, part of the zoo crew.

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

"Out from the bed of flowers came a small, black head with two shining eyes. . . 'Flower!' said Bambi. 'That's not a flower. That's a skunk!' corrected one of his forest friends.

. . . So goes the unforgettable children's story.

The animal was readily identified because of its black and white fur. Black because skunks are nocturnal and the color makes them less easily spotted. The V-shaped white marking starts at the base of the neck and goes to the tip of its big, bushy tail.

A mere three or four weeks old, the baby skunk lives in a glass enclosure just inside the diet kitchen. He gets his meals of thick cream from an eyedropper.

And when he isn't hiding under things, he spends most of his time sleeping. To do this, Petunia sits on all fours, his tail wrapped around his body and his head tucked between his hind legs.

Being nocturnal, he often assumes a threatening posture when awakened from his frequent naps. He stomps his front legs, puffs up his hair to make himself appear bigger and raises his tail as if to spray some of his unpleasant scent on the bothersome person.

At least for the time being , Petunia's actions are all a bluff. He isn't mature enough to go around spraying his "perfume" like the adult skunks.

Skunks have a history of being very adaptable to the encroachments of civilization. In fact, there are an hundreds of skunks living within the Lincoln city limits. There is little need to worry, however they rarely bother people.

And people rarely bother them, preferring not to risk being sprayed by that sharp, pungent, almost nauseating oil.

Skunks living outside captivity eat just about anything — for that they are known to frequent dumps.

And they are disliked for their musky "perfume," not their actions. They are not the wanton killers like other adventurous, yet secretive, animals. Their loss of reputation has come from the only defense they have.

Of course, they can bite hard with their sharp teeth, then hold on like a vice (they are notorious carriers of rabies). And their claws are long and sharp — the better to burrow with.

Skunks traditionally go through a series of contortions to discourage their antagonists before finally resorting to spraying them. They first bluff by stomping their front feet and raising their tails, much like Petunia. But the adults are able to deliver if all else fails. Then they will stand on their front feet to get in position for the "attack." If the cause of his anger is still there, the skunk will finally spray the fine mist which fills the air within a four-or five-foot area. And the scent stays there a long time.

Granted, the scent is very unpopular. yet skunk oil as been used to make some of the finest perfumes available. the oil of the skunk making the essence last longer. But that's nothing new, the oil from the skunk's close relatives. the black and white modeled civet cats, is also used in perfumes.

Skunks also have been of use to man for their fine, high grade furs — and some women still wear skunk skin coats today. But they dare not get caught in the rain with their furs — the moisture will draw out a musky smell which is next to impossible to get rid of!

Companies Bar Couple Teams

A survey shows that 26% of the employers responding had policies against hiring employes' spouses. Thirteen percent said policy required the resignation of one when two employes married.

Another 7% of the companies said they didn't have a blanket policy against nepotism, but would not hire the husband or wife of an employe to work in the same department, or under the spouse's supervision.

The study was made by the American Society of Personnel Administrators and the Bureau of National Affairs, a publisher of research reports.

Attorney Heather Sigworth of Tucson, reporting on joint work situations, said that if a wife wants to work after children reach school age the most accessible place of employment often is where her husband works, especially in a small town. Ms. Sigworth is a member of the board of directors of the Women's Law Fund, Cleveland.

"Although the problem is most acute in small cities or one-industry towns," she told Money magazine, "it also exists in big cities. Even if the couple could get different jobs, it is much more convenient if they work in the same place . . . easier to arrange transportation . . . and to harmonize vacation time and find a convenient place for both to live."

Now There's A Man Behind The Grocery Cart

New York — Harold Miller is no devotee of chicken necks. In fact, he feeds them to the family dog. Which may explain Miller's chagrin when, home from the supermarket with 10 sale-priced fryers, he found the bags contained 15 necks.

Given his distaste for necks and his passion for consumerism, Miller hurried back to the market.

"I was madder than hell," the airline pilot recalled the other day. "I dumped all 10 chickens on the manager's desk and said: "I know little about biology but. . . .' "

William Stephenson, an English teacher and a neighbor of Miller's in Croton-On-Hudson, N.Y., dearly loves chicken livers. He remembers once buying a bag of fryers with a proportionate number of necks, but, alas, no livers.

A patient man, Stephenson did not grumble until it happened a second time. Then his arms filled with liver-less chickens, he told the manager: "Look, I want some livers with this."

The managers agreed with the shoppers and, happily the complaints paid off. But a few years ago, such scenes were rare.

Family men did not march into supermarkets every day demanding their rightful livers. Family men did not even walk into supermarkets that often unless they were out of Schlitz.

Oh, a husband might join his wife on the weekend whirl through the aisle, but he wasn't a shopper really. He was more of a cart pusher, a bill payer, a grocery bag bearer and the minute he spotted the gourmet shelf, and impulse buyer.

Then, suddenly, several forces combined to produce a new man in the market: Mother went back to work. Food prices went out of sight. Food shopping itself became a dangerous game where the stakes were high— not porterhouse maybe, but a nice piece of chuck — and where the action was fast — too fast for women and children. (Children, in fact should be banned from the A.&P., a father declared — "They bleed you white.")

Television commercials are still not showing fathers squeezing the Charmin, although the idea was suggested in an Advertising Age article titled: "There's A Man In Your Market."

And research groups are still not doing studies on the husband as shopper. At least the Supermarket Institute, research arm of the industry, hasn't heard about it.

But one clue to the sheer numbers of marketing family men may be found in a new national survey by Home Testing Institute, the results of which are now being serialized in Progressive Grocer Magazine. Almost one third (31% of the 500 families surveyed said fathers "participate" in the week's food shopping.

Of course, some may be spinning the wheels of their carts, but talks with the man in the aisle — from graduate student to grandfather — suggest otherwise. Several husbands boasted that they were shrewder shoppers than their wives. And almost everyone had his little secret. Here are a few:

Meat — "Watch out for sale meat. They simply do not trim the fat"... "Fat is very hard. If you squeeze a brisket of beef, you can feel the fat."

Fruits and vegetables — "Melons have a definite smell. If you close your eyes and you can't smell melon, don't buy." . . . "Pick off the rotten grapes before they're weighed." . . . "Onion skins should be crisp and crackly."... "Tear open all packages, especially tomatoes."

Eggs — "Open the carton and move them around. If they stick, they're cracked." . . . "A rule of thumb on eggs is, if there's more than a 7-cent spread between the larger and medium, the medium's your better buy."

Next to prices, supermarket layout is probably the hottest topic on the stag checkout line. Why, the man asked, must counters be so short that customers are still unloading their carts while clerks are ringing up prices?"

"And even if you have unloaded," protested Christopher Mitchell, a political science teacher at New York University, "You still can't see the prices because there's like a 5 degree angle where the clerk's head isn't in your way."

Naturally, the men want to see the number on the register. They all add up to the big number, the grand total, the passing or failing grade on their Saturday morning performance. It's not as though these men were a bunch of flightly impulse buyers.

All this is not to say that any man seen in the supermarket with an intense look and an overflowing cart is automatically a decision maker.

David Simonson, publisher of a Mount Kisco, N.Y., newspaper, has been known to leave his cart in the aisle while he telephoned his wife to ask: "Do you want the sliced or the non-sliced mushrooms?"

Fired Teachers Win Cases

Beware a woman fired. Especially if she is a Janet Peterson or a Carolyn Reeves.

They are white teachers who lost their jobs in Starkville, Miss., about four years ago for openly expressing concern for the education of black students.

Their concerns grew out of actions integrating the schools. The school board closed three of four black schools and then started half-day sessions to accommodate the black students in formerly all-white schools.

"We were angry," said Ms. Peterson. "We were very upset with the way we were fired. And we were going to have our say."

So the two, along with some black teachers who were discharged for other reasons, filed suit in the U.S. District Court in Greenville. The court held that Ms. Peterson, a high school English teacher, and Ms. Reeves, a second grade teacher, were fired in retaliation for their statements of concern.

Ms. Reeves went back to work last fall under court order and Ms. Peterson went to work earlier at Mississippi State University at Starkville.

Judy Edstrom, Eric Guenzel Set March Date

Miss Judy Edstrom

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Edstrom announce the engagement of their daughter, Judy Lynne, to Steven Eric Guenzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Guenzel.

Miss Edstrom, a junior at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, is majoring in elementary education. She is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta honorary.

A senior at UNL College of Business Administration, Mr. Guenzel plans to attend law college. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega and Beta Gamma Sigma honorary.

Artist Guild Donates Works

The Lincoln Artists' Guild has donated three paintings to the Bennet Martin Library for circulation.

The works of art were officially presented to library personnel at 3 p.m. Thursday.

The paintings and their artists are "Cloud Over My Alley," an oil by Bess Sorensen; "Hay Day," an oil by Joye DeKlotz; and "The First Report Card," acrylic by Hortense Hagen of Norfolk.

In years past, the Lincoln Artists' Guild has presented the library with 91 works of art, 90% of which are still in circulation throughout the city.

Wymore Couple Wed Saturday

The wedding of Miss Mary Hope McClure and Dennis Dee Day, both of Wymore, took place during a 2 p.m. ceremony Saturday, June 1, at St. Luke's Episcopal Church at Wymore.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McClure Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. William S. Day, all of Wymore.

Miss Laurie Wheelock of Wymore attended the bride as maid of honor and Mrs. Janet Roberts of Arlington, Va., was bridesmatron.

Don Day of Gresham served as best man and Ted Henderson of Henderson was groomsman. Ushers included Rod Goes, Stan Goes and Ed McClure, all of Wymore.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will reside in Wymore.

The bride currently is employed as a bookkeeper for the Wymore Farmers Elevator. Mr. Day is a brakeman for Burlington Northern Railroad.

Next to prices, supermarket layout is probably the hottest topic on the stag checkout line. Why, the man asked, must counters be so short that customers are still unloading their carts while clerks are ringing up prices?"

"And even if you have unloaded," protested Christopher Mitchell, a political science teacher at New York University, "You still can't see the prices because there's like a 5 degree angle where the clerk's head isn't in your way."

Naturally, the men want to see the number on the register. They all add up to the big number, the grand total, the passing or failing grade on their Saturday morning performance. It's not as though these men were a bunch of flightly impulse buyers.

All this is not to say that any man seen in the supermarket with an intense look and an overflowing cart is automatically a decision maker.

David Simonson, publisher of a Mount Kisco, N.Y., newspaper, has been known to leave his cart in the aisle while he telephoned his wife to ask: "Do you want the sliced or the non-sliced mushrooms?"

Fired Teachers Win Cases

Beware a woman fired. Especially if she is a Janet Peterson or a Carolyn Reeves.

They are white teachers who lost their jobs in Starkville, Miss., about four years ago for openly expressing concern for the education of black students.

Their concerns grew out of actions integrating the schools. The school board closed three of four black schools and then started half-day sessions to accommodate the black students in formerly all-white schools.

"We were angry," said Ms. Peterson. "We were very upset with the way we were fired. And we were going to have our say."

So the two, along with some black teachers who were discharged for other reasons, filed suit in the U.S. District Court in Greenville. The court held that Ms. Peterson, a high school English teacher, and Ms. Reeves, a second grade teacher, were fired in retaliation for their statements of concern.

Ms. Reeves went back to work last fall under court order and Ms. Peterson went to work earlier at Mississippi State University at Starkville.

Judy Edstrom, Eric Guenzel Set March Date

Miss Judy Edstrom

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Edstrom announce the engagement of their daughter, Judy Lynne, to Steven Eric Guenzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Guenzel.

Miss Edstrom, a junior at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, is majoring in elementary education. She is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta honorary.

A senior at UNL College of Business Administration, Mr. Guenzel plans to attend law college. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega and Beta Gamma Sigma honorary.

Artist Guild Donates Works

The Lincoln Artists' Guild has donated three paintings to the Bennet Martin Library for circulation.

The works of art were officially presented to library personnel at 3 p.m. Thursday.

The paintings and their artists are "Cloud Over My Alley," an oil by Bess Sorensen; "Hay Day," an oil by Joye DeKlotz; and "The First Report Card," acrylic by Hortense Hagen of Norfolk.

In years past, the Lincoln Artists' Guild has presented the library with 91 works of art, 90% of which are still in circulation throughout the city.

Wymore Couple Wed Saturday

The wedding of Miss Mary Hope McClure and Dennis Dee Day, both of Wymore, took place during a 2 p.m. ceremony Saturday, June 1, at St. Luke's Episcopal Church at Wymore.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McClure Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. William S. Day, all of Wymore.

Miss Laurie Wheelock of Wymore attended the bride as maid of honor and Mrs. Janet Roberts of Arlington, Va., was bridesmatron.

Don Day of Gresham served as best man and Ted Henderson of Henderson was groomsman. Ushers included Rod Goes, Stan Goes and Ed McClure, all of Wymore.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will reside in Wymore.

No More Punishment

DEAR ABBY. My husband and I have been married for 18 years, and I always thought we had a great marriage.

Having once been his secretary, I sometimes fill in at his office when one of his girls is on vacation

Last week while I was working there, a man phoned, and in a very gruff and angry tone, he asked to speak to my husband Since my husband happened to be standing right beside my desk at the time, I handed him the telephone.

Then I heard this booming voice say "My wife just told me everything, and even though I have a loaded gun, you're not worth going to prison for and neither is she, but if I ever catch you near her again, don't say I didn't warn you!" Then he hung up

Abby, I nearly fell apart. I went home immediately, and my husband followed me. We had a long talk, and he told me who she was (She and her husband belong to our club, and she certainly doesn't look the part) My husband said he'd seen her only a few times, she meant nothing to him, and he'd never see her again

I forgave him, and believe him when he says he'll never see her again, but I'm bound to run into her at the club and I'm not sure I can handle it. I want her to know that I know Should I tell her?

SHOOK

DEAR SHOOK No. Keep your cool, and resist the temptation to tell her that you know. (Your husband will tell her.) No need to punish her further. Her husband has probably already taken care of that.

DEAR ABBY: We have a dentist in our town who is so money hungry it's unbelievable. It's a pity the new generation will never know the kind of dentists we knew when we were growing up The always had time to listen, and they cared

This dentist sees anywhere from 50 to 60 patients daily. Besides a secretary who answers his telephone, he has three people working for him whom he calls "technicians" although none of them has ever had any formal training for the job They take X-rays, impressions, and even clean and scale teeth One pulled a suture out of my mouth on the doctor's day off!

Isn't there a law to protect the public against unqualified people doing dental work? Where should I write to complain?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: There ARE laws, and they are well-defined. Write to your county or state Dental Association. But before you make any accusations, be sure of your facts.

DEAR ABBY: Can you think of a nice, simple way for me to ask my parents if I can have a guy spend the night with me? I'm a 21-year-old liberated woman who lives at home

This guy I'm dating lives about an hour's drive from my house, but he works only ten minutes from here. On Friday nights he works until 10 p m , and he has to be at work at 9 a m. on Saturday, so you can see how much more convenient it would be for him if he slept over

My folks are on the old-fashioned side Got any ideas?

LIBERATED

DEAR LIB: If you have an extra room for an overnight guest, ask your folks if the fellow can use it, If you're considering inviting the guy to share your bed, forget it.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY. Box No. 60700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Women's Liberation Not New To UNL Home Ec. Professor

When Dr. Kalyan-Masih came as a graduate student to Ohio State University, she visited the health center and requested a female doctor. When told there were none available, she was surprised.

Dr. Kalyan-Masih is a native of India, where professional fields such as medicine, politics, architecture and law are as open to women as they are to men.

Currently an associate professor of human development and the family at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Dr. Kalyan-Masih said women's lib has never been a problem for her. She said her husband has always been encouraging and understanding of her professional interests. "He is a very good man and a fine person indeed, she said.

"My father was a firm believer in educating women, and education is very highly prized in India," she said. "Educated women in the U.S. have had a rough deal. In India, women are doctors, dentists, lawyers, architects, Prime Ministers and mayors.

"Educated women don't have a fair deal in the U.S.," she said. "In my person, in my inner being, I have not experienced many of the conflicts educated women in the U.S. are exposed to."

Dr. Kalyan-Masih said she was one of the few women in India who studied astronomy. "Just think where I could be now if I had continued in that area, with the growing space program."

Dr. Kalyan-Masih and her husband came to the U.S. in 1958. She had previously earned a B.A. from the Punjab University and an M.A. in English literature from Agra University in India. She earned a second M.A. in Educational Psychology and Measurements from the University of Minnesota in 1952, where she was a Fulbright Scholar. Her Ph.D. was completed at Ohio State University in 1961.

Now a naturalized citizen, Dr. Kalyan-Masih said she would like to visit India again and is considering writing a research proposal to study the cognitive development of children in areas of the North.

"America has been good to us," she said. Her only regret is that there is no job for her husband in Lincoln. He is a nuclear physicist. This might be where the women's lib comes in. Dr. Kalyan-Masih said, "My future lies with my husband, and I may have to go where he goes."

Her husband had worked as a physicist at the University of Allahabad, India, while Dr. Kalyan-Masih was a principal of a higher secondary school. They have one teen-aged daughter, Rosemarie, who attends Northeast High School in Lincoln.

Dr. Violet Kalyan-Masih

Before coming to UNL, Dr. Violet, as she is known to her students and other faculty members, and her husband taught at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Dr. Violet teaches classes on the school age child, on cognitive development of children within Piagetian theory, and other theories of child development.

She is also a part-time researcher for the Nebraska Experiment Station.

She has done past research on American Indians and plans future study on cognitive development of children.

Outside the academic sphere, Dr. Violet enjoys painting and is a member of the Lincoln Artists Guild. She enjoys working with water colors and batik. She and her husband love to play bridge. They also belong to the Hi-Flyers Square Dancing Club.

She said she also loves poetry and literature. And she enjoys embroidery and other fine things.

Among her other hobbies, Dr. Violet said, "I just love to be with my family. I enjoy a clean and beautiful house, but I don't enjoy cleaning it."

Local Women Win Awards

Arlene Givens of Omaha was named "Outstanding Girl of the Year" at the 28th annual state convention of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Kimball.

Glennis Ferrand, also of Omaha, received the "Ione Rischling Award."

Lincoln women elected to state office are Mrs. Delma Paul Sr., past president; Mrs. Dora Dill, second vice president; Mrs. Mildred Harvey, chaplain; and Mrs. Monnie Ottersberg, convention chairman.

Gamma Delta Chapter of Lincoln received the "Outstanding educational award for the best educational program in the state.

Other awards presented to Lincoln chapters were second places in history and membership growth and the gold link educational award, to Gamma Delta; and second place in volunteer hours for the organization's philanthropy, Muscular Dystrophy, to Zeta Alpha.

Mrs. Dill received honorable mention for the "Distinguished Athenian Award," for outstanding service by an educational director.

Opening lead - ace of diamonds.

If you bid and make six hearts vulnerable in duplicate bridge, you score 1,430 points. If your opponents sacrifice against the slam, going down 1,400 points, they get slightly the best of the exchange.

The 30 points they save would be meaningless in rubber bridge, but in a pair game, where every point counts, the 30-point saving looms large.

George Rapee, New York star, once held the West hand in a pair event. He got to six hearts — and would have made seven — but South, a courageous soul, bid six spades.

Rapee doubled and led the ace and another diamond. East won and cashed the K-10 of hearts before playing the king of diamonds at trick four. When declarer ruffed with the nine, Rapee discarded a club!

This extraordinary play worked extremely well. Declarer could not conceive of Rapee's holding the king of spades and he naturally credited East with that card.

Accordingly, when declarer led the jack of spades and West followed low, South rose with the ace on the entirely reasonable basis that nothing could be gained by finessing and that he would escape a trump loser if he found East with the singleton king.

But East showed out and declarer was quickly disillusioned. Rapee won the spade continuation with the king and, having discarded one club, led his remaining one. East took the ace, returned a club which Rapee ruffed, and South was carted off to the tune of 1,700 points.

Had Rapee overruffed the nine of spades with the king, he would have nailed declarer for only 1,400 points and wound up with a poor score. As it was, though, he got an ice-cold top.

Gun Accident Kills Youth, 17, In Cass County

Cass County Sheriff Fred Tesch said Michael Jones was pronounced dead at the scene, about one mile west of Beaver Lake.

Women's Liberation Not New To UNL Home Ec. Professor

When Dr. Kalyan-Masih came as a graduate student to Ohio State University, she visited the health center and requested a female doctor. When told there were none available, she was surprised.

Dr. Kalyan-Masih is a native of India, where professional fields such as medicine, politics, architecture and law are as open to women as they are to men.

Currently an associate professor of human development and the family at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Dr. Kalyan-Masih said women's lib has never been a problem for her. She said her husband has always been encouraging and understanding of her professional interests. "He is a very good man and a fine person indeed, she said.

"My father was a firm believer in educating women, and education is very highly prized in India," she said. "Educated women in the U.S. have had a rough deal. In India, women are doctors, dentists, lawyers, architects, Prime Ministers and mayors.

"Educated women don't have a fair deal in the U.S.," she said. "In my person, in my inner being, I have not experienced many of the conflicts educated women in the U.S. are exposed to."

Dr. Kalyan-Masih said she was one of the few women in India who studied astronomy. "Just think where I could be now if I had continued in that area, with the growing space program."

Dr. Kalyan-Masih and her husband came to the U.S. in 1958. She had previously earned a B.A. from the Punjab University and an M.A. in English literature from Agra University in India. She earned a second M.A. in Educational Psychology and Measurements from the University of Minnesota in 1952, where she was a Fulbright Scholar. Her Ph.D. was completed at Ohio State University in 1961.

Now a naturalized citizen, Dr. Kalyan-Masih said she would like to visit India again and is considering writing a research proposal to study the cognitive development of children in areas of the North.

"America has been good to us," she said. Her only regret is that there is no job for her husband in Lincoln. He is a nuclear physicist. This might be where the women's lib comes in. Dr. Kalyan-Masih said, "My future lies with my husband, and I may have to go where he goes."

Her husband had worked as a physicist at the University of Allahabad, India, while Dr. Kalyan-Masih was a principal of a higher secondary school. They have one teen-aged daughter, Rosemarie, who attends Northeast High School in Lincoln.

Dr. Violet Kalyan-Masih

Before coming to UNL, Dr. Violet, as she is known to her students and other faculty members, and her husband taught at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Dr. Violet teaches classes on the school age child, on cognitive development of children within Piagetian theory, and other theories of child development.

She is also a part-time researcher for the Nebraska Experiment Station.

She has done past research on American Indians and plans future study on cognitive development of children.

Outside the academic sphere, Dr. Violet enjoys painting and is a member of the Lincoln Artists Guild. She enjoys working with water colors and batik. She and her husband love to play bridge. They also belong to the Hi-Flyers Square Dancing Club.

She said she also loves poetry and literature. And she enjoys embroidery and other fine things.

Among her other hobbies, Dr. Violet said, "I just love to be with my family. I enjoy a clean and beautiful house, but I don't enjoy cleaning it."

Local Women Win Awards

Arlene Givens of Omaha was named "Outstanding Girl of the Year" at the 28th annual state convention of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Kimball.

Glennis Ferrand, also of Omaha, received the "Ione Rischling Award."

Lincoln women elected to state office are Mrs. Delma Paul Sr., past president; Mrs. Dora Dill, second vice president; Mrs. Mildred Harvey, chaplain; and Mrs. Monnie Ottersberg, convention chairman.

Gamma Delta Chapter of Lincoln received the "Outstanding educational award for the best educational program in the state.

Other awards presented to Lincoln chapters were second places in history and membership growth and the gold link educational award, to Gamma Delta; and second place in volunteer hours for the organization's philanthropy, Muscular Dystrophy, to Zeta Alpha.

Mrs. Dill received honorable mention for the "Distinguished Athenian Award," for outstanding service by an educational director.

Lincoln Couple Plans Wedding

Announcement is being made of the engagement of Miss Peggy Ostrander and Steven D. Roper.

Miss Ostrander is the daughter of Mrs. Neal H. Penton and Roy Ostrander. Mr. Roper is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Roper.

Opening lead - ace of diamonds.

If you bid and make six hearts vulnerable in duplicate bridge, you score 1,430 points. If your opponents sacrifice against the slam, going down 1,400 points, they get slightly the best of the exchange.

The 30 points they save would be meaningless in rubber bridge, but in a pair game, where every point counts, the 30-point saving looms large.

George Rapee, New York star, once held the West hand in a pair event. He got to six hearts — and would have made seven — but South, a courageous soul, bid six spades.

Rapee doubled and led the ace and another diamond. East won and cashed the K-10 of hearts before playing the king of diamonds at trick four. When declarer ruffed with the nine, Rapee discarded a club!

This extraordinary play worked extremely well. Declarer could not conceive of Rapee's holding the king of spades and he naturally credited East with that card.

Accordingly, when declarer led the jack of spades and West followed low, South rose with the ace on the entirely reasonable basis that nothing could be gained by finessing and that he would escape a trump loser if he found East with the singleton king.

But East showed out and declarer was quickly disillusioned. Rapee won the spade continuation with the king and, having discarded one club, led his remaining one. East took the ace, returned a club which Rapee ruffed, and South was carted off to the tune of 1,700 points.

Had Rapee overruffed the nine of spades with the king, he would have nailed declarer for only 1,400 points and wound up with a poor score. As it was, though, he got an ice-cold top.

Gun Accident Kills Youth, 17, In Cass County

Cass County Sheriff Fred Tesch said Michael Jones was pronounced dead at the scene, about one mile west of Beaver Lake.

Waste Water Plants Priority List Gets OK

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Environmental Control Council Thursday unanimously approved a priority list for disbursement of $20.9 million in federal and state construction funds for municipal waste water treatment plants during the upcoming fiscal year.

The council declined to deviate, for the time being, from a priority list drawn up by the Department of Environmental Control's (DEC) staff despite pleas from eight communities to be moved up on the list.

The spokesmen for the eight communities, including Lincoln, appeared to strike some responsive chords among council members in their quest to ensure the availability of construction funds during fiscal 1975.

Issue Postponed

However, the council postponed the issue temporarily by directing the DEC staff to re-evaluate the eight communities' ranking and report back later this summer.

A total of 113 communities seeking federal and state assistance were ranked according to population, the existing quality of water and treatment facilities and the type of treatment facilities being sought.

Lincoln's Havelock treatment plant was listed as the 32nd in line for funds. The first was Omaha's Papillion Creek plant. It was followed by York, Arlington, Springfield, Nebraska City, Plattsmouth, Scottsbluff, Hebron, Humboldt, Valley, Elwood, Gretna, Wakefield, Palisade, Eagle, Cedar Bluffs, Dodge, Loup City, Waverly, Wood River, Beatrice, North Bend, Pawnee City, Valentine and Bellevue.

Exactly how far the $20 9 million will go is in question. Acting DEC Director George Ludwig said it is not known at this time due to such variables as inflation and availability of contractors.

$11.1 Million In Grants

During fiscal 1974 33 communities received grants totaling $11.1 million. The state's total need has been estimated at $400 million; so far, $39.4 has been allocated to Nebraska. Ludwig said $9 billion in congressional appropriations for treatment plants is currently impounded.

Appearing for the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, Karl Dickinson cited a 16.3% growth in population and a 76.1% growth in manufacturing employment in Lincoln since 1960 as reasons why Lincoln should receive a more favorable ranking on the priority list.

Those statistics, he said, are higher than comparable percentages for both Omaha and the entire state.

'Critical Need'

"With this dramatic growth . . . the critical need for additional waste treatment facilities becomes much more obvious than one might assume," Dickinson said.

"The dynamics of growth which dictate Lincoln's utility needs is fast outpacing the rate Lincoln can provide capital expenditures without substantial assistance from both state and federal government It is the foresightedness of our city government in planning for this growth that deserves our support in seeking your assistance."

A prepared text of Dickinson's remarks also indicated he felt too much consideration was given in the ranking to maintaining the water quality of wild and scenic rivers, namely the Niobrara River. Valentine was ranked 24th on the priority list, partly because it discharges waste into the Niobrara. In delivering his speech, Dickinson omitted those remarks.

Eric Eisenhart, Bartley city attorney, urged the council to consider that community's financial dilemma and assign it a higher rank.

He said Bartley has issued $157,000 in construction bonds for a sewer system to replace cesspools. However, delays in receipt of federal and state funds have held up completion of the system.

Financial Catastrophe

Since the bonds are to be paid for with user fees, he said Bartley is facing a financial catastrophe unless matching aid is forthcoming shortly.

"They're in real trouble," he said of the village of 280 people.

Lincoln and Bartley were joined by Waverly, Thurston, Clearwater, Yutan, Imperial, Bassett, Columbus and Inman in lobbying for a better ranking.

Council members expressed particular concern about Bartley; Robert Cox of Scottsbluff said it is "a little town in real trouble." John Harris of McCook said the hearing would be "a farce" if the priority list was approved without considering Bartley's hardship

Beezley Backs Action To End Unsafe Storage

Nate Beezley, Republican candidate for Lancaster County surveyor, has expressed his concern for the conditions reported to exist at several county engineers' sheds and shops by two University of Nebraska-Lincoln professors.

Dr. Leonard Berekson and Dr. Roy V. Loudon Jr. released their report on an inspection of county-owned properties last week in connection with a risk exposure study.

Beezley said he concurs with the professors' recommendations for immediate action to eliminate unsafe storage of hazardous materials and operating equipment as well as unsafe operating conditions. He said he also concurs with long-range recommendations to bring the county into compliance with the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act

In addition to the report recommendations, Beezley said he believes there should be a comprehensive review of the county road maintenance program.

Fremont To Discuss Rate Hike

A source in city government said the proposed increase will be larger than the 4.87% boost rejected by the city council last December.

The source said it would be preferable that the official percentage come from the Department of Utilities.

William Sommers, general manager of the department, said he would rather not discuss specific details of the increase until councilmen have had an opportunity to review the request. The council rejected the December proposal on a 5-3 vote

Opponents of the December increase said they thought the request was premature because of the energy crisis and because of the more than $1 million in savings from construction at the municipal power plant.

A $21 million addition to the Lon D. Wright Power Plant was approved by the council two years ago. Contracts awarded last December were more than $1 million below estimates.

The $1 million in savings has been eliminated by inflation, Sommers said. New estimates on construction costs by Sommers put the cost at more than $800,000 above the original $21 million estimate.

Beef Price Plea Made By Curtis

Washington (AP) — Sens. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Robert Dole, R-Kan., met with President Nixon Thursday afternoon to ask the President for early action to relieve the cattle price situation, Curtis' office said

Curtis said he told Nixon that in some cases cattlemen are losing $175-$200 per head. The net effect, he said, is "to slow the market to a crawl and to create concern about farmers' credit among bankers."

Curtis said he and Dole made two recommendations to the President. The first, he said, is to curb beef imports. Second, Curtis said, is to set up a White House task force made up of cattlemen, packers and chain store executives to reverse the present cattle situation.

Douglas Health Chief Quits

Omaha (AP) — Omaha-Douglas County Health Director Dr. James F. Speers resigned Wednesday night to accept a public health post in Florida.

Dr. Speers came to Omaha in January 1970 after serving as Iowa's chief health officer. His resignation, submitted to the health board, will become effective July 31.

Dr Speers said he has accepted a post in Florida to be nearer his daughter, who has been seriously ill. She lives in Stateboro, Ga. He said the move to Jacksonville, Fla., also should be beneficial to his wife, who has had heart surgery and is adversely affected by cold weather.

Dr. Speers said he will be working in the field of local health administration for the Florida State Health Division. His exact title and salary haven't been announced, he said

The health board named Dr. James Wegener to serve as acting director until a new director is named. He is the chief of the department's dental health division.

Dr. Speers said he is notifying the Health Planning Council of the Midlands that he is resigning from its board.

Paving Projects Are Under Way

State Roads Director Tom Doyle has announced that an $832,870 paving job has begun in Otoe and Nemaha Counties. It involves about 14 miles of asphaltic concrete paving on Hwys 67 and 105 and from Dunbar to Hwy 2.

Midwest Paving Company and Graves Construction Company, Inc., of Sioux City, Iowa, has the contract.

One part of the project begins at the junction of Hwys 73-75 and 67 in Nemaha County and runs west on Hwy 67 for nine miles and east for five miles. Another part begins at the junction of Hwys 105 and 136, also in Nemaha County, and runs a mile north on 105. The third part is in Dunbar in Otoe County.

Vocational Agriculture Awards Are Announced By Ak-Sar-Ben

Omaha — Recipients of Ak-Sar-Ben's annual scholarships for vocational agricultural instructors were announced by Nick T Newberry, chairman of Ak-Sar-Ben's scholarship committee

The instructors will receive $150 to help them defray expenses of their education this summer. Most of the group will be attending the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources in Lincoln

The 20 scholarship recipients, all from Nebraska, are.

Phelps Judge Fines Himself

Holdrege (AP) — Phelps County Associate Judge John H. Norsworthy turned the tables on himself Wednesday.

Norsworthy, cited by the State Patrol for speeding, pleaded guilty in his court and fined himself $15 and costs.

Said the judge: "It was one of the toughest decisions I've had to make."

Stock Market Prices Post Sharp Gains

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 15.17 to 845.35, bringing its gain over the last four sessions to more than 43 points.

Brokers said the advance was aided by a series of developments raising hopes for a downtrend in interest rates.

A. W. Clausen, president of the Bank of America, joined in a prediction of a declining prime lending rate voiced Wednesday by Walter B. Wriston, chairman of New York's First National City Bank.

The First National Bank of Miami, meanwhile, cut its prime lending rate from 11½ to 11⅛ per cent, and there was speculation that First National City, second-largest bank in the country, might post a similar reduction on Friday.

After Thursday's close, the relatively small Harbor National Bank of Boston announced a half-point decrease in its prime, to 11 per cent.

The prime is the minimum short-term interest rate large corporations with top credit ratings must pay on bank loans. Analysts say it is important to investors not only because it mirrors money market conditions in general but also because it is the basis from which most good-sized companies' short-term borrowing costs are figured.

Analysts cautioned that one ingredient was still missing from the rally — heavy participation.

"I think we'll need a pickup in volume if this rally is going to go much farther," said Newton D. Zinder at E. F. Hutton & Co.

Some of the day's best gainers were stocks of companies with a direct stake in interest-rate trends.

Federal National Mortgage, for example, rose ⅞ to 17½, and MGIC Investment climbed 1¾ to 20⅞, both in active trading. Lomas & Nettleton Financial, a big mortgage-banking firm, was up 1⅛ at 9⅜.

Among real estate investment trusts, First Mortgage Investors rose 1¼ to 4⅝, Guardian Mortgage added 2⅜ to 13⅝, Sutro Mortgage Investors was up a point at 8⅜, and Builders Investment Group gained 1⅜ to 14⅜

In the glamour sector IBM jumped 7⅛ to 227½, Zerox 4 to 124, Aetna Life & Casualty 2⅜ to 28⅜, and Control Data 2½ to 31

Sperry-Rand, which raised its dividend, was up 1⅛ to 41 Golds dropped sharply along with a decline in bullion prices in Europe

ASA, Ltd, was down 4⅝ at 77⅛; Homestake, 3¼ to 77⅞, Dome Mines, 3¼ to 48¾, and International Mining, 1⅜ to 11⅜

The American Stock Exchange volume leader was Airwick Industries, up 2 at 12½ The company said the multinational pharmaceutical concern Ciba-Geigy planned to offer $12 50 a share for all of Airwick's outstanding common

The Amex' market value index was up 87 at 84 53 The NYSE composite, meanwhile, advanced 85 to 48 38

PE ratio The price of a stock as a multiple of per-share earningsderived by dividing the latest 12 - month earnings figure into last sale price

Commodities Hit By Selling

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures declined over a broad area on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

The widespread selling, despite what the trade would term bullish factors, produced a 15 cents a bushel decline in wheat, 6 cents in soybeans and mostly lower prices in corn and oats. Soybean oil was down nearly the 100 point limit and soybean meal lost about $2 a ton. Iced broilers eased ½ cent a pound in fairly good trade.

Chile's Escudo Devalued Again

Santiago, Chile (AP) — Chile's central bank has ordered the 10th minidevaluation of the escudo since the first of the year.

The import-export rate went from 660 escudos per dollar to 720 and the so-called tourist exchange was hiked from 720 escudos per dollar to 790.

Waste Water Plants Priority List Gets OK

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Environmental Control Council Thursday unamimously approved a priority list for disbursement of $20.9 million in federal and state construction funds for municipal waste water treatment plants during the upcoming fiscal year.

The council declined to deviate, for the time being, from a priority list drawn up by the Department of Environmental Control's (DEC) staff despite pleas from eight communities to be moved up on the list.

The spokesmen for the eight communities, including Lincoln, appeared to strike some responsive chords among council members in their quest to ensure the availability of construction funds during fiscal 1975.

Issue Postponed

However, the council postponed the issue temporarily by directing the DEC staff to re-evaluate the eight communities' ranking and report back later this summer.

A total of 113 communities seeking federal and state assistance were ranked according to population, the existing quality of water and treatment facilities and the type of treatment facilities being sought.

Lincoln's Havelock treatment plant was listed as the 32nd in line for funds. The first was Omaha's Papillion Creek plant. It was followed by York, Arlington, Springfield, Nebraska City, Plattsmouth, Scottsbluff, Hebron, Humboldt, Valley, Elwood, Gretna, Wakefield, Palisade, Eagle, Cedar Bluffs, Dodge, Loup City, Waverly, Wood River, Beatrice, North Bend, Pawnee City, Valentine and Bellevue.

Exactly how far the $20.9 million will go is in question. Acting DEC Director George Ludwig said it is not known at this time due to such variables as inflation and availability of contractors.

$11.1 Million In Grants

During fiscal 1974 33 communities received grants totaling $11.1 million. The state's total need has been estimated at $400 million; so far, $39.4 has been allocated to Nebraska. Ludwig said $9 billion in congressional appropriations for treatment plants is currently impounded.

Appearing for the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, Karl Dickinson cited a 16.3% growth in population and a 76.1% growth in manufacturing employment in Lincoln since 1960 as reasons why Lincoln should receive a more favorable ranking on the priority list.

Those statistics, he said, are higher than comparable percentages for both Omaha and the entire state.

'Critical Need'

"With this dramatic growth . . . the critical need for additional waste treatment facilities becomes much more obvious than one might assume," Dickinson said.

"The dynamics of growth which dictate Lincoln's utility needs is fast outpacing the rate Lincoln can provide capital expenditures without substantial assistance from both state and federal government. It is the foresightedness of our city government in planning for this growth that deserves our support in seeking your assistance."

A prepared text of Dickinson's remarks also indicated he felt too much consideration was given in the ranking to maintaining the water quality of wild and scenic rivers, namely the Niobrara River. Valentine was ranked 24th on the priority list, partly because it discharges waste into the Niobrara. In delivering his speech, Dickinson omitted those remarks.

Eric Eisenhart, Bartley city attorney, urged the council to consider that community's financial dilemma and assign it a higher rank.

He said Bartley has issued $157,000 in construction bonds for a sewer system to replace cesspools. However, delays in receipt of federal and state funds have held up completion of the system.

Financial Catastrophe

Since the bonds are to be paid for with user fees, he said Bartley is facing a financial catastrophe unless matching aid is forthcoming shortly.

"They're in real trouble," he said of the village of 280 people.

Lincoln and Bartley were joined by Waverly, Thurston, Clearwater, Yutan, Imperial, Bassett, Columbus and Inman in lobbying for a better ranking.

Council members expressed particular concern about Bartley; Robert Cox of Scottsbluff said it is "a little town in real trouble." John Harris of McCook said the hearing would be "a farce" if the priority list was approved without considering Bartley's hardship.

Fremont To Discuss Rate Hike

A source in city government said the proposed increase will be larger than the 4.87% boost rejected by the city council last December.

The source said it would be preferable that the official percentage come from the Department of Utilities.

William Sommers, general manager of the department, said he would rather not discuss specific details of the increase until councilmen have had an opportunity to review the request. The council rejected the December proposal on a 5-3 vote.

Opponents of the December increase said they thought the request was premature because of the energy crisis and because of the more than $1 million in savings from construction at the municipal power plant.

A $21 million addition to the Lon D. Wright Power Plant was approved by the council two years ago. Contracts awarded last December were more than $1 million below estimates.

The $1 million in savings has been eliminated by inflation, Sommers said. New estimates on construction costs by Sommers put the cost at more than $800,000 above the original $21 million estimate.

Beezley Backs Action To End Unsafe Storage

Nate Beezley, Republican candidate for Lancaster County surveyor, has expressed his concern for the conditions reported to exist at several county engineers' sheds and shops by two University of Nebraska-Lincoln professors.

Dr. Leonard Berekson and Dr. Roy V. Loudon Jr. released their report on an inspection of county-owned properties last week in connection with a risk exposure study.

Beezley said he concurs with the professors' recommendations for immediate action to eliminate unsafe storage of hazardous materials and operating equipment as well as unsafe operating conditions. He said he also concurs with long-range recommendations to bring the county into compliance with the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act.

In addition to the report recommendations, Beezley said he believes there should be a comprehensive review of the county road maintenance program.

Beef Price Plea Made By Curtis

Washington (AP) — Sens. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Robert Dole, R-Kan., met with President Nixon Thursday afternoon to ask the President for early action to relieve the cattle price situation, Curtis' office said.

Curtis said he told Nixon that in some cases cattlemen are losing $175-$200 per head. The net effect, he said, is "to slow the market to a crawl and to create concern about farmers' credit among bankers."

Curtis said he and Dole made two recommendations to the President. The first, he said, is to curb beef imports. Second, Curtis said, is to set up a White House task force made up of cattlemen, packers and chain store executives to reverse the present cattle situation.

Douglas Health Chief Quits

Omaha (AP) — Omaha-Douglas County Health Director Dr. James F. Speers resigned Wednesday night to accept a public health post in Florida.

Dr. Speers came to Omaha in January 1970 after serving as Iowa's chief health officer. His resignation, submitted to the health board, will become effective July 31.

Dr. Speers said he has accepted a post in Florida to be nearer his daughter, who has been seriously ill. She lives in Stateboro, Ga. He said the move to Jacksonville, Fla., also should be beneficial to his wife, who has had heart surgery and is adversely affected by cold weather.

Dr. Speers said he will be working in the field of local health administration for the Florida State Health Division. His exact title and salary haven't been announced, he said.

The health board named Dr. James Wegener to serve as acting director until a new director is named. He is the chief of the department's dental health division.

Dr. Speers said he is notifying the Health Planning Council of the Midlands that he is resigning from its board.

Paving Projects Are Under Way

State Roads Director Tom Doyle has announced that an $832,870 paving job has begun in Otoe and Nemaha Counties. It involves about 14 miles of asphaltic concrete paving on Hwys 67 and 105 and from Dunbar to Hwy 2.

Midwest Paving Company and Graves Construction Company, Inc., of Sioux City, Iowa, has the contract.

One part of the project begins at the junction of Hwys 73-75 and 67 in Nemaha County and runs west on Hwy 67 for nine miles and east for five miles. Another part begins at the junction of Hwys 105 and 136, also in Nemaha County, and runs a mile north on 105. The third part is in Dunbar in Otoe County.

Vocational Agriculture Awards Are Announced By Ak-Sar-Ben

Omaha — Recipients of Ak-Sar-Ben's annual scholarships for vocational agricultural instructors were announced by Nick T. Newberry, chairman of Ak-Sar-Ben's scholarship committee.

The instructors will receive $150 to help them defray expenses of their education this summer. Most of the group will be attending the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources in Lincoln.

The 20 scholarship recipients, all from Nebraska, are:

Phelps Judge Fines Himself

Holdrege (AP) — Phelps County Associate Judge John H. Norsworthy turned the tables on himself Wednesday.

Norsworthy, cited by the State Patrol for speeding, pleaded guilty in his court and fined himself $15 and costs.

Said the judge: "It was one of the toughest decisions I've had to make."

Stock Market Prices Post Sharp Gains

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 15.17 to 845.35, bringing its gain over the last four sessions to more than 43 points.

Advancing issues nearly tripled the number of declines in a turnover of 13.36 million shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the advance was aided by a series of developments raising hopes for a downtrend in interest rates.

A. W. Clausen, president of the Bank of America, joined in a prediction of a declining prime lending rate voiced Wednesday by Walter B. Wriston, chairman of New York's First National City Bank.

The First National Bank of Miami, meanwhile, cut its prime lending rate from 11½ to 11⅛ per cent, and there was speculation that First National City, second-largest bank in the country, might post a similar reduction on Friday.

After Thursday's close, the relatively small Harbor National Bank of Boston announced a half-point decrease in its prime, to 11 per cent.

The prime is the minimum short-term interest rate large corporations with top credit ratings must pay on bank loans. Analysts say it is important to investors not only because it mirrors money market conditions in general but also because it is the basis from which most good-sized companies' short-term borrowing costs are figured.

Analysts cautioned that one ingredient was still missing from the rally — heavy participation.

"I think we'll need a pickup in volume if this rally is going to go much farther," said Newton D. Zinder at E. F. Hutton & Co.

Some of the day's best gainers were stocks of companies with a direct stake in interest-rate trends.

Federal National Mortgage, for example, rose ⅞ to 17½, and MGIC Investment climbed 1¾ to 20⅞, both in active trading. Lomas & Nettleton Financial, a big mortgage-banking firm, was up 1⅛ at 9⅜.

Among real estate investment trusts, First Mortgage Investors rose 1¼ to 4⅝; Guardian Mortgage added 2⅝ to 13⅝, Sutro Mortgage Investors was up a point at 8⅜, and Builders Investment Group gained 1⅜ to 14⅜.

In the glamour sector IBM jumped 7⅛ to 227½, Zerox 4 to 124, Aetna Life & Casualty 2⅜ to 28⅝, and Control Data 2½ to 31.

ASA, Ltd., was down 4⅝ at 77½; Homestake, 3¼ to 77⅛; Dome Mines, 3¼ to 48¾; and International Mining, 1⅜ to 11⅜.

The American Stock Exchange volume leader was Airwick Industries, up 2 at 12½. The company said the multinational pharmaceutical concern Ciba-Geigy planned to offer $12.50 a share for all of Airwick's outstanding common.

Commodities Hit By Selling

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures declined over a broad area on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

The widespread selling, despite what the trade would term bullish factors, produced a 15 cents a bushel decline in wheat, 6 cents in soybeans and mostly lower prices in corn and oats. Soybean oil was down nearly the 100 point limit and soybean meal lost about $2 a ton. Iced broilers eased ½ cent a pound in fairly good trade.

Chile's Escudo Devalued Again

Santiago, Chile (AP) — Chile's central bank has ordered the 10th minidevaluation of the escudo since the first of the year.

The import-export rate went from 660 escudos per dollar to 720 and the so-called tourist exchange was hiked from 720 escudos per dollar to 790.

Property Tax Exemption Is Ruled Constitutional

By United Press International

The State Supreme Court Thursday declared constitutional the controversial personal property tax exemption law enacted in 1972 which became operative last year.

In the unanimous decision, the high court said there was a time when the law might have been invalid. But the court said a 1970 constitutional change cleared away those barriers.

The decision upheld the Lancaster County District Court's dismissal of the challenge suit, which was brought by State Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh and David Stahmer of Omaha.

The law went into effect last year with a 12.5% exemption for agricultural and business inventories and agricultural income producing equipment.

The exemption increased to 25% this year and will continue to compound at the rate of 12.5% a year until an ultimate 62.5% exemption level is reached.

The pair contended the law illegally delegated control over state finances to the counties because the counties figure out each year how much the state must pay back to them for revenue lost under the exemption.

The Supreme Court rejected the idea saying the counties have nothing to do with the appropriation process, which the Constitution places in the hands of the Legislature.

"It is not an appropriation of state funds but provides only a basis for the determination by the proper state authority of the appropriation to be made to reimburse the counties," the court said.

The senators also contended the law was discriminatory. They said if tractors, for example, were to be exempted then not only should farm tractors be exempted but garden and yard tractors as well.

The Supreme Court, however, approved the idea of classification according to use rather than item.

"The purpose for which property is kept or used has long been a recognized, if not a favorite, basis for distinction in taxation," the court said.

Another appeal claim was that the law went against public policy. Again the court disagreed.

"It is generally recognized that persons engaged in agricultural pursuits and in businesses with large inventories are, in proportion to ability to pay, heavily taxed," the court said.

On that basis, the court concluded "a legislative desire to equalize the tax burden with, for example, individuals with major investments in untaxed intangible personal property is not unreasonable."

Supreme Court Orders New Trial For Man Convicted Of Burglary

By United Press International

The State Supreme Court Thursday ordered a new trial for a man convicted of burglary and sentenced to 20 years in prison by the Hall County District Court.

In granting a new trial for Larry T. Eskew, the 6-1 high court majority accepted arguments there was improper handling of jury members and there was a denial of rights to discover certain evidence to be used by the prosecution.

On the jury matter, six members of the jury which heard the Eskew cases were involved in a previous and unrelated trial.

The majority said the judge met with the jury members from the previous trial and "a reasonable summary of the import of the trial court's comments to the . . . jury would be that the jury had made a mistake and that its verdict of acquittal was wrong."

The majority said while it is okay for a judge to thank a jury, his comments "should not include praise or criticism of their verdict."

While the remarks could have no impact on the previous case, the majority said they had a potential impact on the jury's thinking in the Eskew case.

"Jurors, particularly inexperienced ones, are peculiarly sensitive to a judge's views and the revelations of his feelings towards the parties, council or witnesses may influence the jury more than evidence" and could carry over into a subsequent case, the majority concluded.

On the discovery issue, the majority said the judge did not make full inquiries into the existence of evidence which law says should be supplied to the defense.

In other cases the Supreme Court:

—Affirmed the Lancaster County District Court's conviction of Robert A. Harig of burglary, unlawful possession of a burglary tool, possession of a firearm by a felon and being an habitual criminal.

—Upheld the Scotts Bluff County District Court's conviction of Ronald P. Moore of breaking and entering.

Area College Financing Arguments Presented

By United Press International

An attorney representing Sheridan County Thursday suggested a way to cleanse the technical community college law would be to shift all financial responsibilities to the state.

Michael V. Smith, during oral arguments before the high court, contended the major question on the validity of the technical community college system is financing.

Specifically, Smith said the state is illegally in the property tax business because it requires each college area to levy one mill.

He said if that provision were stricken from the law and the rest allowed to stand "I think the act would be constitutional."

However, the attorney for Western Technical Community College, Russell E. Lovell, disagreed.

"To do away with that section would be doing away with local control," Lovell said.

Also, he said the college areas need not call for a full one mill levy and operate strictly on the cash they can raise with less than one mill.

But Smith said if they don't levy one mill then the college area doesn't get any state money and this year all areas called for one mill because they needed the state cash.

On that basis, Smith said even though the law may not say it is a state property tax the final result — because of the penalty provision — is exactly that.

He reminded the court that time and again it has been decided that the Legislature can't do indirectly what it can't do directly and therefore the property tax provisions should be struck down.

Smith also said that without the one mill levy there would be no loss of local control because the area boards would remain as they are now. The only difference would be total state financial responsibility.

Another idea Smith offered to the court was one of tradition and history in an attempt to support his contention the schools are in fact state schools using local money.

"Traditionally and historically the state is responsible for higher education" while local government is responsible for elementary and secondary education, he said.

He added that if the financial situation involved in the college system is allowed to stand, "I think we will be going back to the old situation of a heavy reliance on the property tax for state services and all the problems involved in that system."

Sheridan County was one of a number that collected the one mill but refused to turn the cash over to Western Technical Community College on constitutional grounds.

The lower court, however, ruled in favor of the law's validity.

Bats Will 'Tink' In College World Series

Fans watching the NCAA baseball championship double elimination tournament starting Friday in Omaha, commonly known as the College World Series, will see the designated hitter rule in force and aluminum bats used for the first time.

No longer is the batter off for first base at the "crack" of the bat. Instead, it sounds more like a "tink."

Enos Semore, coach of Oklahoma's Big Eight Conference champions, is one of the most staunch fans of alumnium, but admits "it kinds messes up your words of encouragement." He says he hesitates when he tells one of his players "good wood" after he hits one.

Aluminum bats have been a godsend for financially pressed little league, high school and college baseball programs. They rarely break no matter where the ball hits it.

"Usually we buy about 30 dozen wooden bats every year at $48 a dozen," Semore said recently. "This year, we bought six dozen wooden bats and one dozen aluminum bats."

The type the Sooners use cost $17.50 apiece. That means this year's tab for bats came to $498 ($288 for the wooden ones and $210 for the aluminum). That compares with the $1,440 paid in previous years for wood.

Semore, who sends his team against Northern Colorado at 8 p.m. Friday, said three or four of his players still use wooden bats and he doesn't push them into changing. "But most of our kids use aluminum all the time."

Aluminum Gives More Hitting Area

Semore said there's a little wider hitting area with the aluminum bat because the ball jumps off the handle and end of the bat a little better than with the wooden bat. "If you hit one on the handle with wood, it will break most of the time," he said.

It's difficult to say whether the bats had anything to do with it, but Oklahoma hit .336 as a team this season, including a .322 average in Big Eight play.

There are two disadvantages to alumnium. One brand "pings" so loudly when a ball is solidly hit, the noise actually hurts the catcher's ears. Most of the newer brands are cork-filled and the noise problem is all but eliminated.

Tradition is the other drawback. Older players have been in the habit of sanding the wood bats and rubbing dirt over the bat until it fits their hands like a glove. As one buff said, you don't whittle aluminum.

Catching Up On Sports

Speaking of something new, Lincoln has a new nine-hole golf course featuring artificial turf greens. It's called the Silver Brook Golf Course, located at 9400 Pine Lake Rd., and is a 2,940 yard layout with a par of 35.

New England never has had a sub-four-minute mile, so earlier this week promoters held an invitational race designed to break the record. The effort failed when Keith Francis of Boston College ran a 4:00.8 mile. Previously, the best mile run in the area had been 4:04.8 by Arthur Dulong of Holy Cross.

Among the entries in the race was Keith Whittaker of Norwell, Mass., a Nebraska freshman this season. He was clocked in 4:08.3 . . . Whittaker, who is 6-0 and 154 pounds, was coached in high school by former NU distance star Peter Scott.

Three NU trackmen are entered in the NCAA meet this weekend at the University of Texas. They are miler Bob Unger, half-miler Roger Chadwick, and discus thrower Steve Jepsen.

Competition in the NCAA started on Tuesday with the decathlon, which was won by Runald Backman of Brigham Young with a meet record of 7,874 points. Incidentally, Runald is not a typographical error. He's from Sweden, where he will compete this summer.

The senior lifesaving class of the Lancaster County chapter of the American Red Cross will start Monday June 17 and continue through June 28 (Monday through Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Antelope Pool, 2300 N Street). Students must be 15 years and older and can register at the pool the first night of the class.

Semore: Sooners' Chances Better This Year

Omaha — Lefthander Stan Meek will open Oklahoma's bid to win the 1974 College World Series Friday night in Rosenblatt Stadium against the surprising Northern Colorado Bears.

The eight-team affair being held here for the 25th consecutive year is regarded wide-open although defending champion Southern California along with Texas and Miami are possibly a notch above the rest of the field, both in caliber of athlete and season records.

Oklahoma's coach Enos Semore doesn't count his club out of the running and rates Northern Colorado and Southern Illinois as dark-horses.

"It's no fluke for Northern Colorado to be here after beating Arizona twice," Semore said. That's what the Bears had to do to advance to the eight-team finals."

About his own club, he said, "I think we're a better club than we were last year when we got here." That's despite losing four would-have-been seniors who signed professional contracts after helping the Sooners to a fifth-place finish here.

Miami, a first-timer in the World Series, will go against Harvard with its best pitcher, Stan Jakubowski, whose 14 victories is the most in the 50-year history of the school. He's the nation's No. 3 ranking pitcher in win percentage and owns a 1.39 earned run average.

Harvard, which won the District 1 NCAA title in 40-degree weather over the Memorial Day holiday, will start lefthander Milt Holt, who has a 8-1 season record.

Other first-round games scheduled for Saturday match Texas and Southern California, two of the top teams, and Seton Hall against Southern Illinois.

Southern Cal, a perennial among college baseball's top teams, isn't an odds-on choice because of injuries suffered early in May by its two top pitchers. Russell McQueen, the MVP here in 1972, has bone chips in an elbow and is definitely out of the series. Pete Redfern, another toughie, has a separated shoulder suffered in a fall out of a shower, but may be able to work.

Southern California coach Rod Dedeaux, who has been Trojan boss for 33 seasons and has won nine NCAA titles, has a team here with more losses against collegiate competition than in any season since 1953. USC dropped 19 games.

With the injury situation to his pitching staff, he calls Mark Barr, a 6-3, 200 pounder, "our prayer now" for a fifth consecutive national crown.

Gideon, from Houston, owns an 18-1 season record and a 1.99 earned run average. He has struck out 114 batters in 108 innings while walking only 40 batters.

The Texas pitching staff has two others who have impressive records. They are undefeated Rick Burley, a left hander who also doubles at first base, and Richard Wortham, whose 127 strike outs lead the Longhorns. He's 10-3 while Burley is 12-0.

Orange Bowl Gets Champ

. . . STARTS IN 1975

Kansas City (AP) — The Big Eight Conference football champion will automatically qualify for the Orange Bowl starting with the 1975 season, the conference announced Thursday.

Commissioner Charles M. Neinas said a four-year agreement had been worked out with the Orange Bowl.

The contract is effective beginning with the 1976 game, and does not restrict a school from appearing in consecutive years.

The announcement also said that under the contract, the conference's representative will choose a team to appear in the bowl in case of a tie for the championship.

In addition, the conference said that the other seven member schools not playing in the Orange Bowl would be allowed to accept invitations to other post-season games.

"The Big Eight looks upon this as a very fine opportunity," Charles M. Neinas, conference commissioner, said in a statement. "The conference championship, which is the goal of every Big Eight team, now takes on even more importance with an additional reward for winning the title."

Conference teams have played in 21 Orange Bowl contests, including 18 of the past 21. Big Eight squads have won 11 Orange Bowl games.

Dr. D. Frank Rentz, president of the Orange Bowl Committee, issued this statement:

"Needless to say, the Orange Bowl Committee is delighted with its new agreement with the Big Eight Conference. We believe we are affiliating with the strongest conference in the country.

"The vote of the Orange Bowl Committee was unanimous, and we are looking forward to our continued association with our friends in the Big Eight."

The Big Eight and Orange Bowl had four previous contracts covering the 11-year period from 1954 through 1964. Some of these contracts contained provisions that the same Big Eight team could not appear in successive years, and that other Big Eight teams could not appear in other bowl games played New Year's Day.

Hot Putting Puts Schlee Into Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Veteran John Schlee, plagued by a frustrating flop most of the season, one-putted 11 times on his way to a six-under-par 66 and the first-round lead Thursday in the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Schlee, a 10-year member of the pro tour and only a onetime winner, held a one-shot lead over old pro Charley Sifford and youthful Tom Jenkins, tied at 67, five under par on the tight and tidy 6,708-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course.

The group at 68 was made up of Jim Colbert, Wally Armstrong, Bob Allard and Tom Kite with most of the game's big guns placed well back in the chase for a $30,000 first prize.

Nebraska Trapshoot Opens

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

Doniphan — Ninty-six years and going strong, the Nebraska State Trapshoot opened Thursday with more shooters than ever before despite a dismal weather outlook.

The 1974 shoot also makrs the 25th anniversary of the centrally located state grounds here. Back in 1949, the State Trap Association teamed with gun clubs from Grand Island and Hastings to open the permanent home of the annual state shoot and the Central Nebraska Gun Club.

"The original concept of this thing was to give the state shoot its own grounds," veteran Clarence Reitan of Grand Island recalled. "Since Grand Island had a gun club of its own and Hastings had a gun club which was being forced to move because of the airport, we put our resources together on land purchased by the state association and have been here ever since."

The state shoot used to rotate from gun club to gun club in the earlier days, according to Reitan. It became too much expense for the state association to move in prior to each state shoot to make what necessary improvements were needed at each of the sites so the permanent home idea came into being.

"It was raining then, too," Reitan recollected with a chuckle as drizzle frequented Thursday's opening day activity. "We had six traps, the kind you had to pull by hand. We've increased the size of the grounds twice since then."

The state grounds, located on the northern fringe of Doniphan, now has 14 trap houses, a club house, a shelter house and anumber of camper hook-ups.

"The natural growth of the shooting game has increased terrifically and few clubs had the facilities to hold the shoot," Reitan, a state and Central Nebraska Gun Club director, pointed out. "Here we have graduated to 14 traps and that's hardly adequate."

Omaha's all-American Jim Beck highlighted the opening day shooting by snaring the Director's Shoot title away from E. E. Morrissey, 193 to 192, shooting (100) 16-yard targets and (100) handicapped targets.

Morrissey, however, took the Open Doubles Championship with a 49 x 50 in Class A. Omaha's Virgil Rickel took Class B with 47 x 50, Stanley Olson of Lincoln was the Class C winner with 48 x 50 and Merwin Hultquist of Omaha was the Class D winner with 47 x 50.

Friday's second day shooting includes the Nebraska Doubles Championship, the Nebraska Open Championship and the Nebraska Open Handicap Championship. Saturday the Nebraska singles and Class Championships will be decided, and Sunday is the Nebraska Handicap Championship.

Thursdays results:

Director's Shoot: 1 Jim Beck, Omaha, 193x200, 2. B E. Morrissey, Omaha, 192x200; 3. David Scheer, Omaha, 191x200; and Virgil Rickel, Omaha, 191x200, 5. John Storr, Ashland, 190x200; and Gerald Hanks, Lindsey, 190x200.

Open Doubles: A. B.E. Morrissey, Omaha, 49-50; B. Virgil Rickel, Omaha, 47x50; C. Stanley Olson, Lincoln, 48x50; D. Merwin Hultquist, Omaha, 47x50.

Young Athletes Eyeing Midwestern AAU Junior Olympics

Hastings — Although more than 1,000 athletes will invade Adams Central High School this weekend for the Midwestern AAU Junior Olympic track championships, the spotlight may focus on a pair of local products.

Hastings High's Doug Phelps and St. Cecilia's Nancy Kindig are among the standouts who will compete in the 2-day track carnival.

Phelps, who shattered his own state prep high jump record with a 6-7½ leap this spring as a junior, will compete in the senior division boys competition for 16 and 17-year-olds.

Kindig, who set the state prep girls long jump record this spring as a freshman, will compete in the intermediate girls division for 14 and 15-year-olds. She also will vie in the 100-meter hurdles and already owns the intermediate record of :15.0.

But the St. Cecilia standout likely will be pressed to excel beyond her age group performances to qualify for the national Jr. Olympic championships in Lincoln Aug. 9-12.

Doug Phelps
High Jump Competitor

The Hastings Midwestern meet is also a Region 13 AAU meet and a comparison of marks between the intermediate and senior divisions will be used to determine national qualifiers.

Father Pat O'Byrne, the meet director, indicated that 2,016 individual entries have been received for the meet, which kicks off Friday with competition in the bantam (age 9 & under) and midget (10-11) divisions. On tap Saturday are junior (12-13), intermediate and senior competition.

The 2,016 entries include overlapping entries where an individual will compete in more than one event.

The girls division appears to offer more this weekend in terms of track reputation, featuring such standouts as Oshkosh sprinter Mary Lou Jasnoch, Lincoln Northeast hurdler-long jumper Peggy Liddick, Omaha Central hurdler Juanita Orduna and sprinter Kim Sims, Elwood quarter-miler, high jumper Karol McKenzie, Tecumseh sprinter Julie Faris, North Platte sprinter Cindy Tatum and Aurora high jumper-long jumper Sondra Obermeier.

Other boys standouts include state Class C mile, 2-mile champion Gregg Lage of Winside and Class D mile champion Randy Cherry of Ansley. Lage owns the Midwestern mile record for the intermediate division.

Other senior boys division standouts entered this weekend include Lexington high jumper Bryan Steadman, Humphrey miler Greg Brandl, Arnold's Terry Mills in the 100, Columbus' Chuck Waldron in the 220 and Randolph's Don Rossbach in the 440.

Gary Schukei of Torrington, Wyo., is the shot put favorite with a qualifying mark of 54-7. Lincoln's Gary Karthauser, who set a junior boys 880 record of 2:05.5 last year, posted a 2:00 9 qualifying effort last week in the intermediate division.

Bats Will 'Tink' In College World Series

Fans watching the NCAA baseball championship double elimination tournament starting Friday in Omaha, commonly known as the College World Series, will see the designated hitter rule in force and aluminum bats used for the first time.

No longer is the batter off for first base at the "crack" of the bat. Instead, it sounds more like a "tink."

Enos Semore, coach of Oklahoma's Big Eight Conference champions, is one of the most staunch fans of alumnium, but admits "it kinds messes up your words of encouragement." He says he hesitates when he tells one of his players "good wood" after he hits one.

Aluminum bats have been a godsend for financially pressed little league, high school and college baseball programs. They rarely break no matter where the ball hits it.

"Usually we buy about 30 dozen wooden bats every year at $48 a dozen," Semore said recently. "This year, we bought six dozen wooden bats and one dozen aluminum bats."

The type the Sooners use cost $17.50 apiece. That means this year's tab for bats came to $498 ($288 for the wooden ones and $210 for the aluminum). That compares with the $1,440 paid in previous years for wood.

Semore, who sends his team against Northern Colorado at 8 p.m. Friday, said three or four of his players still use wooden bats and he doesn't push them into changing. "But most of our kids use aluminum all the time."

Aluminum Gives More Hitting Area

Semore said there's a little wider hitting area with the aluminum bat because the ball jumps off the handle and end of the bat a little better than with the wooden bat. "If you hit one on the handle with wood, it will break most of the time," he said.

It's difficult to say whether the bats had anything to do with it, but Oklahoma hit .336 as a team this season, including a .322 average in Big Eight play.

There are two disadvantages to alumnium. One brand "pings" so loudly when a ball is solidly hit, the noise actually hurts the catcher's ears. Most of the newer brands are cork-filled and the noise problem is all but eliminated.

Tradition is the other drawback. Older players have been in the habit of sanding the wood bats and rubbing dirt over the bat until it fits their hands like a glove. As one buff said, you don't whittle aluminum.

Catching Up On Sports

Speaking of something new, Lincoln has a new nine-hole golf course featuring artificial turf greens. It's called the Silver Brook Golf Course, located at 9400 Pine Lake Rd., and is a 2,940 yard layout with a par of 35.

New England never has had a sub-four-minute mile, so earlier this week promoters held an invitational race designed to break the record. The effort failed when Keith Francis of Boston College ran a 4:00.8 mile. Previously, the best mile run in the area had been 4:04.8 by Arthur Dulong of Holy Cross.

Among the entries in the race was Keith Whittaker of Norwell, Mass., a Nebraska freshman this season. He was clocked in 4:08.3 . . . Whittaker, who is 6-0 and 154 pounds, was coached in high school by former NU distance star Peter Scott.

Three NU trackmen are entered in the NCAA meet this weekend at the University of Texas. They are miler Bob Unger, half-miler Roger Chadwick, and discus thrower Steve Jepsen.

Competition in the NCAA started on Tuesday with the decathlon, which was won by Runald Backman of Brigham Young with a meet record of 7,874 points. Incidentally, Runald is not a typographical error. He's from Sweden, where he will compete this summer.

The senior lifesaving class of the Lancaster County chapter of the American Red Cross will start Monday June 17 and continue through June 28 (Monday through Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Antelope Pool, 2300 N Street). Students must be 15 years and older and can register at the pool the first night of the class.

Omaha — Lefthander Stan Meek will open Oklahoma's bid to win the 1974 College World Series Friday night in Rosenblatt Stadium against the surprising Northern Colorado Bears.

Ivy League champion Harvard and independent Miami of Florida open the tournament in a 5 p.m. game.

The eight-team affair being held here for the 25th consecutive year is regarded wide-open although defending champion Southern California along with Texas and Miami are possibly a notch above the rest of the field, both in caliber of athlete and season records.

Oklahoma's coach Enos Semore doesn't count his club out of the running and rates Northern Colorado and Southern Illinois as dark-horses.

"It's no fluke for Northern Colorado to be here after beating Arizona twice," Semore said. That's what the Bears had to do to advance to the eight-team finals."

About his own club, he said, "I think we're a better club than we were last year when we got here." That's despite losing four would-have-been seniors who signed professional contracts after helping the Sooners to a fifth-place finish here.

Miami, a first-timer in the World Series, will go against Harvard with its best pitcher, Stan Jakubowski, whose 14 victories is the most in the 50-year history of the school. He's the nation's No. 3 ranking pitcher in win percentage and owns a 1.39 earned run average.

Harvard, which won the District 1 NCAA title in 40-degree weather over the Memorial Day holiday, will start lefthander Milt Holt, who has a 8-1 season record.

Other first-round games scheduled for Saturday match Texas and Southern California, two of the top teams, and Seton Hall against Southern Illinois.

Southern Cal, a perennial among college baseball's top teams, isn't an odds-on choice because of injuries suffered early in May by its two top pitchers. Russell McQueen, the MVP here in 1972, has bone chips in an elbow and is definitely out of the series. Pete Redfern, another toughie, has a separated shoulder suffered in a fall out of a shower, but may be able to work.

Southern California coach Rod Dedeaux, who has been Trojan boss for 33 seasons and has won nine NCAA titles, has a team here with more losses against collegiate competition than in any season since 1953. USC dropped 19 games.

With the injury situation to his pitching staff, he calls Mark Barr, a 6-3, 200 pounder, "our prayer now" for a fifth consecutive national crown.

Gideon, from Houston, owns an 18-1 season record and a 1.99 earned run average. He has struck out 114 batters in 108 innings while walking only 40 batters.

The Texas pitching staff has two others who have impressive records. They are undefeated Rick Burley, a left hander who also doubles at first base, and Richard Wortham, whose 127 strike outs lead the Longhorns. He's 10-3 while Burley is 12-0.

Orange Bowl Gets Champ

. . . STARTS IN 1975

Kansas City (AP) — The Big Eight Conference football champion will automatically qualify for the Orange Bowl starting with the 1975 season, the conference announced Thursday.

Commissioner Charles M. Neinas said a four-year agreement had been worked out with the Orange Bowl.

The contract is effective beginning with the 1976 game, and does not restrict a school from appearing in consecutive years.

The announcement also said that under the contract, the conference's representative will choose a team to appear in the bowl in case of a tie for the championship.

In addition, the conference said that the other seven member schools not playing in the Orange Bowl would be allowed to accept invitations to other post-season games.

"The Big Eight looks upon this as a very fine opportunity," Charles M. Neinas, conference commissioner, said in a statement. "The conference championship, which is the goal of every Big Eight team, now takes on even more importance with an additional reward for winning the title."

Conference teams have played in 21 Orange Bowl contests, including 18 of the past 21. Big Eight squads have won 11 Orange Bowl games.

Dr. D. Frank Rentz, president of the Orange Bowl Committee, issued this statement:

"Needless to say, the Orange Bowl Committee is delighted with its new agreement with the Big Eight Conference. We believe we are affiliating with the strongest conference in the country.

"The vote of the Orange Bowl Committee was unanimous, and we are looking forward to our continued association with our friends in the Big Eight."

The Big Eight and Orange Bowl had four previous contracts covering the 11-year period from 1954 through 1964. Some of these contracts contained provisions that the same Big Eight team could not appear in successive years, and that other Big Eight teams could not appear in other bowl games played New Year's Day.

Nebraska Trapshoot Opens

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

Doniphan — Ninty-six years and going strong, the Nebraska State Trapshoot opened Thursday with more shooters than ever before despite a dismal weather outlook.

The 1974 shoot also makrs the 25th anniversary of the centrally located state grounds here. Back in 1949, the State Trap Association teamed with gun clubs from Grand Island and Hastings to open the permanent home of the annual state shoot and the Central Nebraska Gun Club.

"The original concept of this thing was to give the state shoot its own grounds," veteran Clarence Reitan of Grand Island recalled. "Since Grand Island had a gun club of its own and Hastings had a gun club which was being forced to move because of the airport, we put our resources together on land purchased by the state association and have been here ever since."

The state shoot used to rotate from gun club to gun club in the earlier days, according to Reitan. It became too much expense for the state association to move in prior to each state shoot to make what necessary improvements were needed at each of the sites so the permanent home idea came into being.

"It was raining then, too," Reitan recollected with a chuckle as drizzle frequented Thursday's opening day activity. "We had six traps, the kind you had to pull by hand. We've increased the size of the grounds twice since then."

The state grounds, located on the northern fringe of Doniphan, now has 14 trap houses, a club house, a shelter house and anumber of camper hook-ups.

"The natural growth of the shooting game has increased terrifically and few clubs had the facilities to hold the shoot," Reitan, a state and Central Nebraska Gun Club director, pointed out. "Here we have graduated to 14 traps and that's hardly adequate."

Omaha's all-American Jim Beck highlighted the opening day shooting by snaring the Director's Shoot title away from E. E. Morrissey, 193 to 192, shooting (100) 16-yard targets and (100) handicapped targets.

Morrissey, however, took the Open Doubles Championship with a 49 x 50 in Class A. Omaha's Virgil Rickel took Class B with 47 x 50, Stanley Olson of Lincoln was the Class C winner with 48 x 50 and Merwin Hultquist of Omaha was the Class D winner with 47 x 50.

Friday's second day shooting includes the Nebraska Doubles Championship, the Nebraska Open Championship and the Nebraska Open Handicap Championship. Saturday the Nebraska singles and Class Championships will be decided, and Sunday is the Nebraska Handicap Championship.

Thursdays results:

Director's Shoot: 1. Jim Beck, Omaha, 193x200; 2. B.E. Morrissey, Omaha, 192x200; 3. David Scheer, Omaha, 191x200; and Virgil Rickel, Omaha, 191x200; 5. John Storr, Ashland, 190x200; and Gerald Hanks, Lindsey, 190x200.

Open Doubles: A. B.E. Morrissey, Omaha, 49-50; B. Virgil Rickel, Omaha, 47x50; C. Stanley Olson, Lincoln, 48x50; D. Merwin Hultquist, Omaha, 47x50.

The Sabres also said that veteran forward Norm Gratton obtained from the Atlanta Flames last February, has agreed to sign with the club

Hot Putting Puts Schlee Into Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Veteran John Schlee, plagued by a frustrating flop most of the season, one-putted 11 times on his way to a six-under-par 66 and the first-round lead Thursday in the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Schlee, a 10-year member of the pro tour and only a onetime winner, held a one-shot lead over old pro Charley Sifford and youthful Tom Jenkins, tied at 67, five under par on the tight and tidy 6,708-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course.

The group at 68 was made up of Jim Colbert, Wally Armstrong, Bob Allard and Tom Kite with most of the game's big guns placed well back in the chase for a $30,000 first prize.

Young Athletes Eyeing Midwestern AAU Junior Olympics

Hastings — Although more than 1,000 athletes will invade Adams Central High School this weekend for the Midwestern AAU Junior Olympic track championships, the spotlight may focus on a pair of local products.

Hastings High's Doug Phelps and St. Cecilia's Nancy Kindig are among the standouts who will compete in the 2-day track carnival.

Doug Phelps
High Jump Competitor

Phelps, who shattered his own state prep high jump record with a 6-7½ leap this spring as a junior, will compete in the senior division boys competition for 16 and 17-year-olds.

Kindig, who set the state prep girls long jump record this spring as a freshman, will compete in the intermediate girls division for 14 and 15-year-olds. She also will vie in the 100-meter hurdles and already owns the intermediate record of :15.0.

But the St. Cecilia standout likely will be pressed to excel beyond her age group performances to qualify for the national Jr. Olympic championships in Lincoln Aug. 9-12.

The Hastings Midwestern meet is also a Region 13 AAU meet and a comparison of marks between the intermediate and senior divisions will be used to determine national qualifiers.

Father Pat O'Byrne, the meet director, indicated that 2,016 individual entries have been received for the meet, which kicks off Friday with competition in the bantam (age 9 & under) and midget (10-11) divisions. On tap Saturday are junior (12-13), intermediate and senior competition.

The 2,016 entries include overlapping entries where an individual will compete in more than one event.

The girls division appears to offer more this weekend in terms of track reputation, featuring such standouts as Oshkosh sprinter Mary Lou Jasnoch, Lincoln Northeast hurdler-long jumper Peggy Liddick, Omaha Central hurdler Juanita Orduna and sprinter Kim Sims, Elwood quarter-miler, high jumper Karol McKenzie, Tecumseh sprinter Julie Faris, North Platte sprinter Cindy Tatum and Aurora high jumper-long jumper Sondra Obermeier.

Other senior boys division standouts entered this weekend include Lexington high jumper Bryan Steadman, Humphrey miler Greg Brandl, Arnold's Terry Mills in the 100, Columbus' Chuck Waldron in the 220 and Randolph's Don Rossbach in the 440.

Dodgers Sweep Pirates, 6-0

Los Angeles (UPI) — Ron Cey slammed a two-run homer in the fourth inning and righthander Andy Messersmith pitched a five-hitter Thursday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers completed a three-game sweep with a 6-0 victory over the Pissburgh Pirates

Hiking their National League West lead to eight games over Cincinnati, the Dodgers took a 2-0 lead with two outs in the fourth against Pirate starter Ken Brett when Cey homered 400 feet into the leftfield pavilion with Steve Garvey aboard after a single. It was the Dodger third baseman's eighth homer and his 44th and 45th RBI's of the season.

Messersmith struck out nine and walked one as he improved his record to 6-1 with his second shutout and sixth complete game of the year It was the 11th shutout turned in by the Dodger pitching staff this year.

Garvey upped his RBI total for the year up to 49, tops in the league, with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and a runscoring single in the seventh Jimmy Wynn walked with the bases loaded in the fifth to get credit for his 46th RBI of the year

The victory gave the Dodgers, who have won their last six games at home, a 25-3 record here

May Homers Aid Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Lee May hit two bases-empty home runs and Larry Dierker pitched a three-hitter, pacing the Houston Astros to a 4-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Thursday night.

May opened the fourth inning with a home run and then hit another one, his ninth of the baseball season, in the sixth. Both blasts were off Montreal right-hander Steve Renko, 3-6.

The Astros scored two runs in the second inning when Doug Rader produced an RBI double and later scored on a wild pitch.

Dierker, 3-3, allowed an infield single to Ron Hunt in the third inning and two hits to Willie Davis—a single in the sixth and a double in the ninth.

Even though he did not give up any hits in the first inning, Dierker was in trouble. He walked leadoff batter Ron Hunt and hit Larry Lintz with a pitch to put men on first and second with nobody out

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sue Berning blazed home with birdies on her last two holes en route to a five-under-par 68 and a two stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the $100,000 Desert Inn Golf Classic.

Playing under temperatures that soared into the 100s, Mrs. Berning took command of the Ladies Professional Golfers Association event with her performance on the par-73, 6,255-yard Desert Inn Country Club course.

Hegan Boosts Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mike Hegan's two-run pinch single capped a three-run seventh inning rally and helped the Milwaukee Brewers to a 9-7 victory over the California Angels Thursday.

The Angels, down 6-1 after three innings, rallied for a 7-6 lead on three-run homers by Lee Stanton in the sixth and Frank Robinson in the seventh.

Gatlin Chosen By Cincinnati

It took 37 rounds to complete the two-day affair, with Cincinnati opening the secondary phase Thursday by choosing second baseman Mike Gatlin from the University of Arizona.

Gatlin and 36 others were chosen in that phase, including one player who also had been drafted Wednesday in the primary phase Shortstop Marvin Townsend, a junior at Campbell College, was selected by the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday, but ruled ineligible under an intricate college player by-law

The Boston Red Sox took advantage of their second chance Thursday and made him their first selection Thursday

Townsend, reached at his Norfolk, Va., home, didn't seem to care how many teams had drafted him, but said he was "euphoric" about his selection by the Red Sox.

"It's the realization of a dream," the 6-foot-2, 170-pound Townsend said "My family and I haven't been getting a whole lot of sleep around here, waiting to find out what would happen "

The same probably held true in over 700 other homes, as athletes across the country awaited the important word

The California Angels, given the second pick in the secondary phase, chose right-hander John Caneira of East Connecticut State College The Houston Astros followed by taking Gil Patterson, who has pitched and played the outfield for Miami's Dade South College.

Eight picks later, the Orioles passed over Townsend — taking outfielder Charles James from Los Angeles Valley Community College. The Red Sox chose Townsend when their time came.

Baltimore took James and the World Champion Oakland A's picked shortstop Phil Doktor In between, the San Francisco Giants passed on their choice, becoming one of three teams which elected not to make a choice. The others were the Chicago Cubs and New York Yankees.

Campers Eye Beatrice Race

Beatrice — The Midwest Canoe Association and the Beatrice Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the annual Beatrice River Canoe Race Sunday beginning at 2 p.m.

The race will begin at the Hoag plant bridge three miles north and three miles west of Beatrice. It will finish at the Beatrice State Park, some 10 miles downstream.

There will be competition for men's open, men's aluminum, teenage, mixed couples, ladies open and over 40. The first four placers in each class will receive trophies and prizes.

Rath Cards Ace

Bryan Rath scored a hole-in-one on the No. 14 hole at the Knolls par three golf course Thursday afternoon. Joe Junker and Scott Wyhie witnessed the shot

Lanier To Retire After This Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — All-pro middle linebacker Willie Lanier of the Kansas City Chiefs will retire at the end of the 1974 season to work for a tobacco company which wants to build cigarette plants in urban centers

The Philip Morris Company announced Lanier's appointment Thursday to head a pilot program for planning and starting up the urban cigarette facilities.

Barbee Seeking New Location

Valentine — Nebraska Game and Parks Commission director Willard Barbee Wednesday placed his bid for a possible replacement to Niobrara State Park.

The existing Niobrara State Park will be abandoned with the completion of the Norden Reservoir along the Niobrara River.

Barbee, currently touring the state parks with the Nebraska Legislative Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee, said a 3,080-acre stretch of land along both sides of the Niobrara River, which would connect the Fort Niobrara Wildlife Refuge with the Norden Reservoir, would be an ideal location for a replacement state park.

An official stand is not immediately forthcoming on the new park proposal, however, according to a parks official The Norden project is still in the planning stages. The park relocation is contingent on the reservoir's completion.

Dodgers Sweep Pirates, 6-0

Los Angeles (UPI) — Ron Cey slammed a two-run homer in the fourth inning and righthander Andy Messersmith pitched a five-hitter Thursday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers completed a three-game sweep with a 6-0 victory over the Pissburgh Pirates.

Hiking their National League West lead to eight games over Cincinnati, the Dodgers took a 2-0 lead with two outs in the fourth against Pirate starter Ken Brett when Cey homered 400 feet into the leftfield pavilion with Steve Garvey aboard after a single. It was the Dodger third baseman's eighth homer and his 44th and 45th RBI's of the season.

Messersmith struck out nine and walked one as he improved his record to 6-1 with his second shutout and sixth complete game of the year. It was the 11th shutout turned in by the Dodger pitching staff this year.

Garvey upped his RBI total for the year up to 49, tops in the league, with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and a runscoring single in the seventh. Jimmy Wynn walked with the bases loaded in the fifth to get credit for his 46th RBI of the year.

The victory gave the Dodgers, who have won their last six games at home, a 25-3 record here.

May Homers Aid Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Lee May hit two bases-empty home runs and Larry Dierker pitched a three-hitter, pacing the Houston Astros to a 4-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Thursday night.

May opened the fourth inning with a home run and then hit another one, his ninth of the baseball season, in the sixth. Both blasts were off Montreal right-hander Steve Renko, 3-6.

The Astros scored two runs in the second inning when Doug Rader produced an RBI double and later scored on a wild pitch.

Dierker, 3-3, allowed an infield single to Ron Hunt in the third inning and two hits to Willie Davis—a single in the sixth and a double in the ninth.

Even though he did not give up any hits in the first inning, Dierker was in trouble. He walked leadoff batter Ron Hunt and hit Larry Lintz with a pitch to put men on first and second with nobody out.

Dierker pitched out of the jam by striking out Willie Davis and getting Ken Singleton to hit into a double play.

Berning Nabs Tourney Lead

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sue Berning blazed home with birdies on her last two holes en route to a five-under-par 68 and a two stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the $100,000 Desert Inn Golf Classic.

Playing under temperatures that soared into the 100s, Mrs. Berning took command of the Ladies Professional Golfers Association event with her performance on the par-73, 6,255-yard Desert Inn Country Club course.

Hegan Boosts Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mike Hegan's two-run pinch single capped a three-run seventh inning rally and helped the Milwaukee Brewers to a 9-7 victory over the California Angels Thursday.

George Scott, who had doubled home three runs in the first inning, began the uprising in the seventh with another double. After a walk, Charlie Moore doubled home Scott for a 7-7 tie. An intentional walk filled the bases, setting up the single by Hegan, a left-handed hitter batting against southpaw John Cumberland.

The Angels, down 6-1 after three innings, rallied for a 7-6 lead on three-run homers by Lee Stanton in the sixth and Frank Robinson in the seventh.

Gatlin Chosen By Cincinnati

New York (AP) — With the completion of major league baseball's free agent draft, 726 prospects face possible careers in the pro ranks.

It took 37 rounds to complete the two-day affair, with Cincinnati opening the secondary phase Thursday by choosing second baseman Mike Gatlin from the University of Arizona.

Gatlin and 36 others were chosen in that phase, including one player who also had been drafted Wednesday in the primary phase. Shortstop Marvin Townsend, a junior at Campbell College, was selected by the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday, but ruled ineligible under an intricate college player by-law.

The Boston Red Sox took advantage of their second chance Thursday and made him their first selection Thursday.

Townsend, reached at his Norfolk, Va., home, didn't seem to care how many teams had drafted him, but said he was "euphoric" about his selection by the Red Sox.

"It's the realization of a dream," the 6-foot-2, 170-pound Townsend said. "My family and I haven't been getting a whole lot of sleep around here, waiting to find out what would happen."

The same probably held true in over 700 other homes, as athletes across the country awaited the important word.

The California Angels, given the second pick in the secondary phase, chose right-hander John Caneira of East Connecticut State College. The Houston Astros followed by taking Gil Patterson, who has pitched and played the outfield for Miami's Dade South College.

Eight picks later, the Orioles passed over Townsend — taking outfielder Charles James from Los Angeles Valley Community College. The Red Sox chose Townsend when their time came.

Baltimore took James and the World Champion Oakland A's picked shortstop Phil Doktor. In between, the San Francisco Giants passed on their choice, becoming one of three teams which elected not to make a choice. The others were the Chicago Cubs and New York Yankees.

Campers Eye Beatrice Race

Beatrice — The Midwest Canoe Association and the Beatrice Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the annual Beatrice River Canoe Race Sunday beginning at 2 p.m.

The race will begin at the Hoag plant bridge three miles north and three miles west of Beatrice. It will finish at the Beatrice State Park, some 10 miles downstream.

There will be competition for men's open, men's aluminum, teenage, mixed couples, ladies open and over 40. The first four placers in each class will receive trophies and prizes.

Rath Cards Ace

Bryan Rath scored a hole-in-one on the No. 14 hole at the Knolls par three golf course Thursday afternoon. Joe Junker and Scott Wyhie witnessed the shot.

Clark Homer Boosts Omaha

Lanier To Retire After This Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — All-pro middle linebacker Willie Lanier of the Kansas City Chiefs will retire at the end of the 1974 season to work for a tobacco company which wants to build cigarette plants in urban centers.

The Philip Morris Company announced Lanier's appointment Thursday to head a pilot program for planning and starting up the urban cigarette facilities.

Barbee Seeking New Location

Valentine — Nebraska Game and Parks Commission director Willard Barbee Wednesday placed his bid for a possible replacement to Niobrara State Park.

The existing Niobrara State Park will be abandoned with the completion of the Norden Reservoir along the Niobrara River.

Barbee, currently touring the state parks with the Nebraska Legislative Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee, said a 3,080-acre stretch of land along both sides of the Niobrara River, which would connect the Fort Niobrara Wildlife Refuge with the Norden Reservoir, would be an ideal location for a replacement state park.

An official stand is not immediately forthcoming on the new park proposal, however, according to a parks official. The Norden project is still in the planning stages. The park relocation is contingent on the reservoir's completion.

Surprise Entries Set For Belmont Stakes?

NEW YORK (AP) — Rival trainers took part in gamesmanship Thursday as a dozen 3-year-olds, including Preakness winner Little Current and Kentucky Derby champion Cannonade, were entered for the Belmont Stakes, final race of the Triple Crown.

Trainer Lou Rondinello has entered Covered Portage to make sure that there would be a speed horse in the 1½-mile Belmont to set the pace for Little Current, a come-from-behind runner.

Pancho Martin then decided to enter Accipiter along with Rube The Great, saying. he didn't want to be double-teamed by Rondinello.

However, it probably was all academic. Rondinello said he most likely would scratch Covered Portage since there are speed horses in the field. If Covered Portage is taken out, Martin said, Accipiter also would be scratched.

"I entered Covered Portage just to see who was going in," said Rondinello. "I wanted to insure there would be speed in the race. In all probability Covered Portage will come out."

A third entry—Bold And Fancy and El Espanoleto—was expected to start. Martin said he wasn't worried about it.

If 12 starters, each under 126 pounds, go to the post at 5:40 p.m. EDT, the 106th Belmont would be worth $172,950, with $103,770 to the winner. Ten starters would make the gross $170,450, with $102,270 to the winner.

Television coverage is set for 5-6 p.m. EDT.

The John Galbreath entry of Little Current and Covered Portage was made the early 6-5 favorite, with Miguel Rivera named as jockey on both colts. Little Current, who finished fifth in the Derby before winning the Preakness, will start from the No. 2 post. Covered Portage, who has two triumphs and two seconds in four starts, all this year, will go from the No. 7 slot.

Cannonade, owned by John M. Olin, was the second choice at 5-2. The Derby winner, who was third in the Preakness, will start from the sixth post.

Although trainer Woody Stephens did not name a rider for Cannonade, it apparently will be Jorge Velasquez since the New York State Racing and Wagering Board denied Thursday afternoon an appeal by Angel Cordero Jr., of a stewards' suspension. Cordero, who rode Cannonade in the Derby and Preakness, was suspended seven days for careless riding after his mount in the second race at Belmont Park May 30 was disqualified. The suspension began Monday.

Cordero's attorney, Jesse Moss, said if the appeal was denied he would seek a court injunction which would enable Cordero to ride Saturday.

Borg Nets Win; Smith Defeated

Paris (UPI) — Sweden's teenage tennis flash Bjorn Borg celebrated his 18th birthday Thursday with a win in the first round of the French Open championships, but America's top-ranked Stan Smith fell in opening play

Smith, who has never got past the quarterfinals on the slow clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium, lost to Japan's number one player Jun Kamiwazumi 3-6, 6-4, 8-6.

Women's singles play kicked off as top-seeded Chris Evert of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., defeated Regina Marsicova of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-4 Miss Evert's experience paid off as she let the young fair-haired challenger make the mistakes.

Second-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain had little difficulty in her first match, beating Monique Van Haver of Belgium 6-2, 6-2.

In the men's division, along with Borg, other tournament favorites Romanian Ilie Nastase and Czech Jan Kodes scored first round victories.

The 6-4 Smith, a serve and volley man and slow to warm up, never got his power game into gear. He did have one match point at 5-6, but the 26-year-old Tokyo resident passed him with a lightning forehand

Kamiwazumi played steadily and produced just enough winners to beat Smith, who was seeded fifth.

"I knew I had to volly to beat him," he said. "On the final point, I was going for my fourth match point and I decided to get to the net no matter what."

Borg had some difficulties with Frenchman Jean-Francois Caujolle but finally wore down the scrappy 21-year-old former French junior champion 4-6, 6-0, 6-4.

Borg, who won $20,000 last month in Dallas as runner-up in the World Championship Tennis final, played the ball consistently to Caujolle's backhand and forced the Marseille native into errors.

Borg said "I don't have any plans to celebrate my birthday here." He says his youth makes little difference now that he has played regularly for over a year with the world's best players.

In the second big upset of the day West German Hans-Jurgen Pohmann stopped Italian Adriano Panatta, co-seventh seed who beat Borg here in 1973 to advance to the quarterfinals. He then got as far as the semis before Nikki Pilic beat him.

Giants Topple Cards, 9-5

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pinch-batter Chris Arnold's two-run triple and Gary Matthews' wind-blown, three-run double sparked a seven-run, fourth-inning rally that lifted the San Francisco Giants to a 9-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday.

Lou Brock's walk, run-scoring doubles by Tom Heintzelman and Reggie Smith and Joe Torre's RBI single produced a 3-0 lead off Mike Caldwell in the first as St. Louis chased the Giants' ace lefthander.

One-out singles by Gary Thomasson and Bruce Miller triggered the seven-run fourth off Lynn McGlothen, 7-3. Arnold belted his triple with two out and Bobby Bonds' run-scoring single made it 3-3.

Reliever Rich Folkers walked Ed Goodson, loading the bases, and Matthews hit a fly to short center. The wind kept blowing the ball toward the infield and it dropped for a bases-clearing double.

Woody Hayes

Hayes' Condition 'Stable'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University football Coach Woody Hayes was in stable condition in University Hospital Thursday after complaining of chest pains.

Neither hospital spokesmen nor Hayes' personal physicial would speculate whether the 61-year-old Hayes, who ranks second among active college coaches in the number of victories, had suffered a heart attack.

"It will be three days before any definite diagnosis can be made," said Dr. Robert J. Murphy, who doubles as the Ohio State football team doctor and Hayes' personal physician.

"I saw him (Hayes) as late as last week," Murphy said. "In general, he's in robust health."

Hayes, in the midst of preparing for his 24th season at Ohio State, was bothered by chest pains early Thursday.

Murphy said he was summoned to Hayes' home and "decided to admit him." Hayes was admitted to University Hospital's Coronary Care Unit at 8 a.m. EDT.

"Until such time as final reports are received from both clinical and laboratory tests," a hospital spokesman said, "Hayes is being treated as a coronary type patient."

"I telephoned him at home around 8 last night," recalled tackle coach Ralph Staub. "He was in good spirits."

George Hill, Hayes' No. 1 assistant, said he also talked to Hayes Wednesday night. "He was talking about what we were going to do Friday. As far as I know, he's never missed a day of work "

Gabrielson Eliminates Two In Tourney

Gullane, Scotland (UPI) — Jim Gabrielson of Atlanta, the new tournament favorite, and only one other American survived Thursday into the quarterfinals of the British Amateur Golf Championship.

The bespectacled Gabrielson eliminated two other Americans in successive rounds to win his spot in the last eight.

More Sports, Page 32

In the morning's fourth round the 32-year-old Gabrielson downed Gordon Brewer of Huntingdon, Pa., 3 and 2 in conditions described as "horrible, just brutal."

Bill Cosgrove of Worcester, Mass., who made the observation on the weather, was Gabrielson's victim in the afternoon's fifth round, going down 5 and 3.

John Owens of Lexington, Ky., was the other American through to the semifinals by virtue of his 1-up defeat of John Haines, Far Hills, N.J., in the Muirfield course.

Thursday's two rounds left six Britons facing the two Americans in Friday's quarterfinals. New Zealander Des Turner, the only remaining Commonwealth contender, failed in an upset bid against seeded Trevor Homer of Britain, and lost 2 and 1.

Gabrielson's victory over Cosgrove was built on a solid first nine and on a destructive hook Cosgrove developed on the back nine.

Despite a fierce westerly wind, Gabrielson covered the first nine holes at par, taking a birdie on the long fifth and turning the corner two up despite a bogey on the sixth. Cosgrove watched his hopes of a major upset fade with a hook into the deep rough at the 15th. Gabrielson goes on to meet Peter Davidson of England in the semifinals.

Four Americans fought through to the last 16, but met in pairs as opponents for quarter final berths.

The day's toughest match went on the 23rd hole to John Davies of Britain over Coen Dreyer of South Africa It was the third sudden-death finish in four matches for Davies

"It's a bit nerve-wracking," he said, "But I don't mind sudden death as long as I keep winning "

An earlier victim was former Wimbledon tennis champion Bob Falenburg of Brazil and Los Angeles.

"It was not my day," he said "I just couldn't get my game going." He lost in the fourth round to Turner, 4 and 3.

Poile Receives WHA Position

LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Bud Poile, a veteran hockey executive, was named Thursday as vice president in charge of hockey operations for the World Hockey Association.

Poile, 50, active in the sport since 1942, resigned last January from the front office of the National Hockey League's Vancouver Canucks. He was one of the builders in 1966 of the expansion Philadelphia Flyers, who won the Stanley Cup this year.

The announcement of his appointment was made by WHA President Dennis Murphy after the first day of a threeday league meeting.

Don't let the price of a college education scare you.

The price of a college education is skyrocketing. Fortunately the Air Force has done something to catch up with it. It has increased the number of college scholarships to 6500. These 4-year scholarships, available to flying qualified men, cover full tuition, reimbursement for textbooks, as well as lab and incidental fees. Not only that, but now, you can receive $100 monthly as a tax-free personal allowance.

To cash in on all this, just apply, qualify, and enroll in the Air Force ROTC at University of Nebraska

You'll be on your way to a free college education, an Air Force officer's career, and a future where the sky's no limit.

"I knew I had to volly to beat him," he said. "On the final point, I was going for my fourth match point and I decided to get to the net no matter what."

Borg had some difficulties with Frenchman Jean-Francois Caujolle but finally wore down the scrappy 21-year-old former French junior champion 4-6, 6-0, 6-4.

Borg, who won $20,000 last month in Dallas as runner-up in the World Championship Tennis final, played the ball consistently to Caujolle's backhand and forced the Marseille native into errors.

Borg said "I don't have any plans to celebrate my birthday here." He says his youth makes little difference now that he has played regularly for over a year with the world's best players.

In the second big upset of the day West German Hans-Jurgen Pohmann stopped Italian Adriano Panatta, co-seventh seed who beat Borg here in 1973 to advance to the quarterfinals. He then got as far as the semis before Nikki Pilic beat him.

Giants Topple Cards, 9-5

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pinch-batter Chris Arnold's two-run triple and Gary Matthews' wind-blown, three-run double sparked a seven-run, fourth-inning rally that lifted the San Francisco Giants to a 9-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday.

Lou Brock's walk, run-scoring doubles by Tom Heintzelman and Reggie Smith and Joe Torre's RBI single produced a 3-0 lead off Mike Caldwell in the first as St. Louis chased the Giants' ace lefthander.

One-out singles by Gary Thomasson and Bruce Miller triggered the seven-run fourth off Lynn McGlothen, 7-3. Arnold belted his triple with two out and Bobby Bonds' run-scoring single made it 3-3.

Reliever Rich Folkers walked Ed Goodson, loading the bases, and Matthews hit a fly to short center. The wind kept blowing the ball toward the infield and it dropped for a bases-clearing double.

Woody Hayes

Hayes' Condition 'Stable'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University football Coach Woody Hayes was in stable condition in University Hospital Thursday after complaining of chest pains.

Neither hospital spokesmen nor Hayes' personal physicial would speculate whether the 61-year-old Hayes, who ranks second among active college coaches in the number of victories, had suffered a heart attack.

"It will be three days before any definite diagnosis can be made," said Dr. Robert J. Murphy, who doubles as the Ohio State football team doctor and Hayes' personal physician.

"I saw him (Hayes) as late as last week," Murphy said. "In general, he's in robust health."

Hayes, in the midst of preparing for his 24th season at Ohio State, was bothered by chest pains early Thursday.

Murphy said he was summoned to Hayes' home and "decided to admit him." Hayes was admitted to University Hospital's Coronary Care Unit at 8 a.m. EDT.

"Until such time as final reports are received from both clinical and laboratory tests," a hospital spokesman said, "Hayes is being treated as a coronary type patient."

"I telephoned him at home around 8 last night," recalled tackle coach Ralph Staub. "He was in good spirits."

George Hill, Hayes' No. 1 assistant, said he also talked to Hayes Wednesday night. "He was talking about what we were going to do Friday. As far as I know, he's never missed a day of work."

Gabrielson Eliminates Two In Tourney

Gullane, Scotland (UPI) — Jim Gabrielson of Atlanta, the new tournament favorite, and only one other American survived Thursday into the quarterfinals of the British Amateur Golf Championship.

The bespectacled Gabrielson eliminated two other Americans in successive rounds to win his spot in the last eight.

In the morning's fourth round the 32-year-old Gabrielson downed Gordon Brewer of Huntingdon, Pa., 3 and 2 in conditions described as "horrible, just brutal."

Bill Cosgrove of Worcester, Mass., who made the observation on the weather, was Gabrielson's victim in the afternoon's fifth round, going down 5 and 3.

John Owens of Lexington, Ky., was the other American through to the semifinals by virtue of his 1-up defeat of John Haines, Far Hills, N.J., in the Muirfield course.

Thursday's two rounds left six Britons facing the two Americans in Friday's quarterfinals. New Zealander Des Turner, the only remaining Commonwealth contender, failed in an upset bid against seeded Trevor Homer of Britain, and lost 2 and 1.

Gabrieison's victory over Cosgrove was built on a solid first nine and on a destructive hook Cosgrove developed on the back nine.

Despite a fierce westerly wind, Gabrielson covered the first nine holes at par, taking a birdie on the long fifth and turning the corner two up despite a bogey on the sixth. Cosgrove watched his hopes of a major upset fade with a hook into the deep rough at the 15th. Gabrielson goes on to meet Peter Davidson of England in the semifinals.

Four Americans fought through to the last 16, but met in pairs as opponents for quarter final berths.

The day's toughest match went on the 23rd hole to John Davies of Britain over Coen Dreyer of South Africa. It was the third sudden-death finish in four matches for Davies.

"It's a bit nerve-wracking," he said, "But I don't mind sudden death as long as I keep winning."

An earlier victim was former Wimbleton tennis champion Bob Falenburg of Brazil and Los Angeles.

"It was not my day," he said. "I just couldn't get my game going." He lost in the fourth round to Turner, 4 and 3.

Poile Receives WHA Position

LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Bud Poile, a veteran hockey executive, was named Thursday as vice president in charge of hockey operations for the World Hockey Association.

Poile, 50, active in the sport since 1942, resigned last January from the front office of the National Hockey League's Vancouver Canucks. He was one of the builders in 1966 of the expansion Philadelphia Flyers, who won the Stanley Cup this year.

The announcement of his appointment was made by WHA President Dennis Murphy after the first day of a threeday league meeting.

Don't let the price of a college education scare you.

The price of a college education is skyrocketing. Fortunately the Air Force has done something to catch up with it. It has increased the number of college scholarships to 6500. These 4-year scholarships, available to flying qualified men, cover full tuition, reimbursement for textbooks, as well as lab and incidental fees. Not only that, but now, you can receive $100 monthly as a tax-free personal allowance.

To cash in on all this, just apply, qualify, and enroll in the Air Force ROTC at University of Nebraska

You'll be on your way to a free college education, an Air Force officer's career, and a future where the sky's no limit.

NFL Club Earnings Reported

NEW YORK (AP) — Less than one week before resuming contract negotiations with the Players Association, the National Football League Management Council Thursday released audited financial statements showing an average after tax per club operating profit of $472,500 for the 1973 season.

The figure represents a 7.6 per cent average profit per club. Two of the 26 NFL member clubs lost money last season including the Houston Oilers, who last week announced a deficit of $459,000. The other club that operated in the red was not identified.

Wellington Mara, owner of the New York Giants and chairman of the Management Council, and Arthur B. Modell, owner of the Cleveland Browns and a member of the league's finance committee, presented the report to the league's owners who are meeting this week.

The report was also presented to the Players Association and to W.J. Usery, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who is serving as mediator for the talks between the players and the owners.

"We felt it was time to put into perspective, accurately, the dramatic myth of pro football's profit structure," said Modell. "We wanted to set the record straight and give it some clarity that it has needed for some time."

The report showed a pre-tax operating profit of $945,000, compared to a figure of $2.3 million used by the Players Association. Half of that profit was listed as a provision for income tax, producing the $472,500 figure.

Mara found no conflict in the fact that the figures presented represented an average and that, with the two clubs losing money, others obviously had to be making more than the $472,500 average.

"We deal as a league and should be considered as an entity," he said. "You have two bargaining units here, the Players Association representing all of the players and the Management Council representing all of the NFL."

Modell pointed out that the figures in the report represented the 1973 season and did not reflect added expenses incurred as a result of salary bidding against the new World Football League.

"I can tell you," said the owner of the Browns, "that in my conversations with a number of clubs, their increased share of television revenue for 1974 has wiped out by the costs of individual player bargaining."

The Management Council figures showed that player costs represent the biggest chunk of the average club's cash outlay at 39.2 per cent. Player Association estimates of that expense had been 28 per cent.

Other expenses included: team costs, 19 per cent; stadium-box office, 10.3 per cent; League-Management Council 2.9 per cent; general and administration, 15.5 per cent; and income tax, 7.6 per cent.

The largest source of revenue, according to the report, is tickets at 62.1 per cent. Television and radio produce 27.4 per cent, programs and concessions, 4.0 per cent and post season income, 6.5 per cent.

Mets' Rally Spills Reds

New York (UPI) — John Milner's leadoff homer off reliever Pedro Borbon in the eighth inning provided the New York Mets with a come-from-behind 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Thursday.

Milner's homer, his ninth of the season, came after a bases-loaded single by Cleon Jones with two out in the seventh inning had tied the score at 3-3.

Tom Seaver started for the Mets and was nicked for six hits — including a single, double and triple by Pete Rose — while giving up three runs before departing for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Ray Sadecki (3-2) picked up the win for New York in relief.

Rose's single and a double by Johnny Bench gave the Reds a run in the third. They added two more in the fifth when Nelson walked, scored on Rose's triple and Dave Conception followed with a single.

The Reds threatened in the top of the ninth when pinch hitter Phil Gagliano walked and his pinch runner Joe Morgan stole second as pinch hitter Tony Perez struck out.

Missouri's Al Eberhard, first draft pick of the Detroit Pistons, looks over team's jersey while on a "get acquainted" visit with the NBA club. Eberhard, who has only seen one pro game in his life, plans to talk with the ABA and an Italian team before deciding who to sign with for a contract.

UCLA Maintains Pressure

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Larance Jones, Northeast Missouri quarter-miler who has signed a pro football contract, qualified easily in his specialty Thursday, then criticized those who contend he should have been banned from the National Collegiate Athletic Association Track and Field meet.

Meanwhile, UCLA's defending champions kept pace with upstart Tennessee and Brigham Young, and Texas-El Paso suffered a severe blow to any NCAA title hopes.

Jones, who signed with the New York Giants of the National Football League, will not be eligible for AAU competition because he signed with the Giants.

He said, "Everyone is pointing a finger at me. They make me feel as if I had commited some kind of sacriligious sin. If I had known the consequences of the international rule regarding professional athletes, I never would have signed.

"I never would have signed a contract under the old rule. I didn't sign until the NCAA changed its rule making a professional in one sport eligible in another sport for collegiate competition. Anyone who is in college and not a professional in his sport should be able to run here. Before they changed the rule, I had planned to wait until after the track season to sign. I was a wide receiver and a kickoff return specialist."

Ace UTEP pole vaulter Larry Jessee failed to qualify for the finals, and, in another surprise, 3:55-miler Dennis Fikes of Pennsylvania failed to complete four laps around the Memorial Stadium Tartan track.

"The heat was so bad I couldn't breathe," said Fikes.

Tony Waldrop of North Carolina, who many experts have predicted may shatter Jim Ryun's mile record 3:51.1, qualified easily and said, "I think the heat may be an advantage for me. I'm used to running in it in Carolina."

A flashy 100-yard dash field was paced by Steve Williams of San Diego State, who rode a 14 mile an hour wind at his back to a 9.19 clocking.

Jessee, a junior who had the best effort of the year for a collegian at 17 feet, 6 inches, passed at the opening height of 15-6 and missed three times with the bar at the qualifying 16 feet.

"I pulled a hamstring muscle and that was it," explained the disappointed Jessee.

UTEP, Tennessee and Brigham Young had been expected to give defending champion UCLA, seeking an unprecedented fourth consecutive title, a battle to the wire.

UCLA, expected to rely heavily on the field events to hand Coach Jim Bush the championship trophy, placed three contestants in the pole vault finals Saturday.

Kessinger Peps Cubs Past SD

San Diego (UPI) — Don Kessinger singled in George Mitterwald from second base in the seventh inning to snap a 1-1 tie and then singled home another run in the ninth to touch off a three-run inning as the Chicago Cubs turned back the San Diego Padres 5-1 Thursday night.

Lefthander Ken Frailing, who pitched the first eight innings, collected the win, his fourth against five losses. Randy Jones, 3-10, was the loser.

Mitterwald opened the Chicago seventh with a single and moved to second on Frailing's sacrifice bunt just ahead of Kessinger's tie-breaking single.

In the ninth, Vicente Romo was on the mound for the Padres as Vic Harris opened with a pop fly double to left. Mitterwald sacrificed Harris to third and Chris Ward, hitting for Frailing, drew a walk. Kessinger then laced a 3-2 pitch through shortstop to drive in Harris and put Chicago ahead 3-1. Rick Monday then doubled to drive in Ward and Kessinger.

Johnson Lifts Texas Over Cleveland, 6-2

Cleveland (UPI) — Alex Johnson had four hits and drove in four runs and Jackie Brown scattered seven hits Thursday night to spark the Texas Rangers to a 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Johnson, whose three singles and a double raised his average to .301, singled home Cesar Tovar in the first inning and doubled home two more runs in the seventh to chase losing pitcher Jim Perry, the Cleveland starter.

Tovar, who reached base 10 times in 15 trips to the plate in the three-game series, led off the game with a single, took second on Lenny Randle's sacrifice and scored on Johnson's line single to center.

Toby Harrah opened the three-run seventh with a single and reached third on a two-base throwing error by second baseman Jack Brohamer. Jim Fregosi singled home Harrah and Tovar was hit by a pitched ball. Randle forced Tovar at second, then stole second, and Johnson ripped a two-run double to right center.

Yankees Hit Chicago, 5-1

Chicago (UPI) — Gene Michael singled in two runs in the fourth inning and George Medich scattered 10 hits in gaining his seventh victory Thursday night as the New York Yankees beat the Chicago White Sox 5-1 in a game twice delayed by rain for periods of 90 and 29 minutes.

Medich, who walked three and struck out two, shut out the White Sox until the ninth when Ken Henderson hit his seventh homer. He got all the help he needed when the Yanks scored two runs off loser Stan Bahnsen in the first.

Roy White opened the game with a perfectly placed bunt down the first base line and raced to third on a single by Elliott Maddox. After Bobby Murcer walked to load the bases, Ron Blomberg's sacrifice fly scored White. A single by Graig Nettles scored Maddox with the second run.

Bahnsen was shelled from the mound in the fourth inning after Bill Sudakis and Rick Dempsey collected consecutive singles. After Jim Mason sacrificed the runners, Michael lashed a single down the rightfield line, scoring Sudakis and Dempsey.

NFL Club Earnings Reported

NEW YORK (AP) — Less than one week before resuming contract negotiations with the Players Association, the National Football League Management Council Thursday released audited financial statements showing an average after tax per club operating profit of $472,500 for the 1973 season.

The figure represents a 7.6 per cent average profit per club. Two of the 26 NFL member clubs lost money last season including the Houston Oilers, who last week announced a deficit of $459,000. The other club that operated in the red was not identified.

Wellington Mara, owner of the New York Giants and chairman of the Management Council, and Arthur B. Modell, owner of the Cleveland Browns and a member of the league's finance committee, presented the report to the league's owners who are meeting this week.

The report was also presented to the Players Association and to W.J. Usery, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who is serving as mediator for the talks between the players and the owners.

"We felt it was time to put into perspective, accurately, the dramatic myth of pro football's profit structure," said Modell. "We wanted to set the record straight and give it some clarity that it has needed for some time."

The report showed a pre-tax operating profit of $945,000, compared to a figure of $2.3 million used by the Players Association. Half of that profit was listed as a provision for income tax, producing the $472,500 figure.

Mara found no conflict in the fact that the figures presented represented an average and that, with the two clubs losing money, others obviously had to be making more than the $472,500 average.

"We deal as a league and should be considered as an entity," he said. "You have two bargaining units here, the Players Association representing all of the players and the Management Council representing all of the NFL."

Modell pointed out that the figures in the report represented the 1973 season and did not reflect added expenses incurred as a result of salary bidding against the new World Football League.

"I can tell you," said the owner of the Browns, "that in my conversations with a number of clubs, their increased share of television revenue for 1974 has wiped out by the costs of individual player bargaining."

The Management Council figures showed that player costs represent the biggest chunk of the average club's cash outlay at 39.2 per cent. Player Association estimates of that expense had been 28 per cent.

Other expenses included: team costs, 19 per cent; stadium-box office, 10.3 per cent; League-Management Council 2.9 per cent; general and administration, 15.5 per cent; and income tax, 7.6 per cent.

The largest source of revenue, according to the report, is tickets at 62.1 per cent. Television and radio produce 27.4 per cent, programs and concessions, 4.0 per cent and post season income, 6.5 per cent.

ORDINANCE NO. 11108

AN ORDINANCE accepting and approving the plat designated as HALLENDALE ADDITION as an addition in the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, filed in the office of the Planning Department of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, upon certain conditions herein specified and providing for sureties conditioned upon the strict compliance with such conditions.

WHEREAS, Hub Hall Company, a corporation, owner of a tract of land located in the Southwest Quarter of Section 10, Township 10 North, Range 7 East of the 6th Principal Meridian, Lincoln, Lancaster County, Nebraska, all being more particularly described as follows:

Commencing at the southwest corner of the Southwest Quarter of said Section 10; thence north 0 degrees 01 minutes 40 seconds east along the west line of said Section 10 a distance of 729.00 feet; thence north 89 degrees 38 minutes 07 seconds east a distance of 33.00 feet to the point of beginning; thence north 0 degrees 01 minutes 40 seconds east along a line which is 33.00 feet east of and parallel to the west line of said Section 10 a distance of 709.28 feet; thence north 89 degrees 53 minutes 18 seconds east a distance of 551.12 feet; thence south 0 degrees 01 minutes 40 seconds west along a line which is 584.12 feet east of and parallel to the west line of said Section 10 a distance of 706.85 feet; thence south 89 degrees 38 minutes 07 seconds west a distance of 551.12 feet to the point of beginning, has filed said plat in the office of the Planning Department of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, with a request for approval and acceptance thereof, In the manner and form as by ordinance required; and

WHEREAS, it is for the convenience of the inhabitants of said City of Lincoln, Nebraska, and for the public that said plat be approved and accepted as filed.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska:

Section 1. That the plat of HALLENDALE ADDITION, as an addition in the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, filed in the office of the Planning Department of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, by Hub Hall Company as owner, be and it is accepted and approved, and said owner be and it is hereby given the right to plat said Hallendale Addition as an addition in said City in accordance therewith Such acceptance and approval are conditioned upon performance of the following conditions:

FIRST: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, engineering, and inspection costs in connection with the construction of sidewalks along both sides of all interior streets within this plat, along the east side of 70th Street adjacent to Lot 8, Block 4, and Lot 1, Block 1, and in the 10-foot wide sidewalk easement in Lot 8, Block 4. The construction of said sidewalks shall be completed not later than April 1, 1978.

SECOND: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, engineering, and inspection costs in connection with bringing all the streets and public ways within said plat to such grades as shall be officially established, in writing, by the Director of Public Works and maintained with the official records of the Department of Public Works.

THIRD: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, engineering, and inspection costs in connection with the construction of an ornamental street lighting system along all interior streets within said plat, all of which construction shall be equivalent to standards and specifications for residential street lighting for the City of Lincoln. As an alternative, the owner may petition the City for the creation of an ornamental street lighting district to accomplish the construction of said ornamental street lighting system. The construction of said ornamental street lighting system shall be completed not later than April 1, 1976.

FOURTH: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, engineering, and inspection costs in connection with the construction of a system of storm sewerage and drainage to serve said plat. Said system of storm sewerage and drainage shall be constructed as follows:

a. Approximately 120 feet of pipe storm sewer along the south line of Lots 8 and 9, Block 4 from the natural drainage swale to 70th Street.

c. Pipe storm sewer in Gladstone Street from 71st Street to 70th Street.

The aforesaid system of storm sewerage and drainage shall be designed and constructed in conformance with "Storm Sewer Design Criteria" published by the Department of Public Works for the City of Lincoln in January 1970 and filed in the office of the City Engineer. Construction of said system of storm sewerage and drainage shall be completed not later than April 1, 1976.

FIFTH: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, engineering, and inspection costs in connection with the placing of permanent monuments at all corners of all lots, streets, avenues, angle points, and ends of all curves of the final plat of Hallendale Addition. The above required lot staking shall be completed not later than October 1, 1974.

SIXTH: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, engineering, and inspection costs in connection with the placing of a continuous planting screen along the east side of 70th Street adjacent to said plat.

SEVENTH: That prior to the effective date of this ordinance, said owner shall enter into a written agreement with the City which shall provide as follows:

a. That said owner shall pay fifteen percent (15%) of the total cost of constructing a storm sewer in 70th Street from the north line of said plat to Fremont Street and in Fremont Street from 70th Street to 68th Street.

b. That the sidewalk in the 10-foot wide sidewalk easement in Lot 8, Block 4 shall be maintained by said owner or its successors in interest to said lot.

c. That said owner shall construct temporary turn-arounds at the east end of Willow Avenue and at the north end of North 72nd Street.

d. That vehicular access onto 70th Street from Lots 1 through 8, Block 4, and Lot 1, Block 1 shall be perpetually prohibited.

e. That within one year from the effective date of this ordinance, said owner shall submit to the Planning Director a landscape plan for the planting screen to be located along the east side of 70th Street for his review and approval; and that said owner shall implement the landscape plan within two planting seasons following issuance of building permits for sixty percent (60%) of the total number of lots within said plat.

Section 2. That the owner above set forth shall, prior to final passage of this ordinance, execute and deliver to the City of Lincoln:

a. A bond in the sum of $13,500 conditioned upon the strict compliance by the above name owner with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "FIRST" of the next preceding section of this ordinance;

b. A bond in the sum of $7,500 conditioned upon the strict compliance by the above-named owner with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "THIRD" of the next preceding section of this ordinance;

c. A bond in the sum of $19,000 conditioned upon the strict compliance by the above-named owner with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "FOURTH" of the next preceding section of this ordinance;

d. A bond in the sum of $1,200 conditioned upon the strict compliance by the above-named owner with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "FIFTH" of the next preceding section of this ordinance;

e. A bond in the sum of $2,000 conditioned upon the strict compliance by the above-named owner with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "SIXTH" of the next preceding section of this ordinance.

The bonds required above shall be subject to the approval of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, and shall be further conditioned that in the event the above-named owner fails to comply with the conditions herein set forth within the time specified in this ordinance, the City Council shall proceed to fulfill said conditions, the cost thereof, to be paid by the surety. Such work shall be performed in the manner set forth in Title 26 of the Lincoln Municipal Code, known as the Land Subdivision Ordinance, as now existing or as may hereafter be amended.

Section 3. Immediately upon the taking effect of this ordinance, the City shall cause a certified copy of this ordinance together with the written agreement required herein to be filed in the office of the Register of Deeds for Lancaster County, Nebraska. Filing fees shall be paid by said owner.

Section 4. That this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication according to law.

Mets' Rally Spills Reds

New York (UPI) — John Milner's leadoff homer off reliever Pedro Borbon in the eighth inning provided the New York Mets with a come-from-behind 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Thursday.

Milner's homer, his ninth of the season, came after a bases-loaded single by Cleon Jones with two out in the seventh inning had tied the score at 3-3.

Tom Seaver started for the Mets and was nicked for six hits — including a single, double and triple by Pete Rose — while giving up three runs before departing for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Ray Sadecki (3-2) picked up the win for New York in relief.

Rose's single and a double by Johnny Bench gave the Reds a run in the third. They added two more in the fifth when Nelson walked, scored on Rose's triple and Dave Conception followed with a single.

The Reds threatened in the top of the ninth when pinch hitter Phil Gagliano walked and his pinch runner Joe Morgan stole second as pinch hitter Tony Perez struck out.

Missouri's Al Eberhard, first draft pick of the Detroit Pistons, looks over team's jersey while on a "get acquainted" visit with the NBA club. Eberhard, who has only seen one pro game in his life, plans to talk with the ABA and an Italian team before deciding who to sign with for a contract.

UCLA Maintains Pressure

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Larance Jones, Northeast Missouri quarter-miler who has signed a pro football contract, qualified easily in his specialty Thursday, then criticized those who contend he should have been banned from the National Collegiate Athletic Association Track and Field meet.

Meanwhile, UCLA's defending champions kept pace with upstart Tennessee and Brigham Young, and Texas-El Paso suffered a severe blow to any NCAA title hopes.

Jones, who signed with the New York Giants of the National Football League, will not be eligible for AAU competition because he signed with the Giants.

He said, "Everyone is pointing a finger at me. They make me feel as if I had commited some kind of sacriligious sin. If I had known the consequences of the international rule regarding professional athletes, I never would have signed.

"I never would have signed a contract under the old rule. I didn't sign until the NCAA changed its rule making a professional in one sport eligible in another sport for collegiate competition. Anyone who is in college and not a professional in his sport should be able to run here. Before they changed the rule, I had planned to wait until after the track season to sign. I was a wide receiver and a kickoff return specialist."

Ace UTEP pole vaulter Larry Jessee failed to qualify for the finals, and, in another surprise, 3:55-miler Dennis Fikes of Pennsylvania failed to complete four laps around the Memorial Stadium Tartan track.

"The heat was so bad I couldn't breathe," said Fikes.

Tony Waldrop of North Carolina, who many experts have predicted may shatter Jim Ryun's mile record 3:51.1, qualified easily and said, "I think the heat may be an advantage for me. I'm used to running in it in Carolina."

A flashy 100-yard dash field was paced by Steve Williams of San Diego State, who rode a 14 mile an hour wind at his back to a 9.19 clocking.

Jessee, a junior who had the best effort of the year for a collegian at 17 feet, 6 inches, passed at the opening height of 15-6 and missed three times with the bar at the qualifying 16 feet.

"I pulled a hamstring muscle and that was it," explained the disappointed Jessee.

UTEP, Tennessee and Brigham Young had been expected to give defending champion UCLA, seeking an unprecedented fourth consecutive title, a battle to the wire.

UCLA, expected to rely heavily on the field events to hand Coach Jim Bush the championship trophy, placed three contestants in the pole vault finals Saturday.

Kessinger Peps Cubs Past SD

San Diego (UPI) — Don Kessinger singled in George Mitterwald from second base in the seventh inning to snap a 1-1 tie and then singled home another run in the ninth to touch off a three-run inning as the Chicago Cubs turned back the San Diego Padres 5-1 Thursday night.

Lefthander Ken Frailing, who pitched the first eight innings, collected the win, his fourth against five losses. Randy Jones, 3-10, was the loser.

Mitterwald opened the Chicago seventh with a single and moved to second on Frailing's sacrifice bunt just ahead of Kessinger's tie-breaking single.

In the ninth, Vicente Romo was on the mound for the Padres as Vic Harris opened with a pop fly double to left. Mitterwald sacrificed Harris to third and Chris Ward, hitting for Frailing, drew a walk. Kessinger then laced a 3-2 pitch through shortstop to drive in Harris and put Chicago ahead 3-1. Rick Monday then doubled to drive in Ward and Kessinger.

Johnson Lifts Texas Over Cleveland, 6-2

Cleveland (UPI) — Alex Johnson had four hits and drove in four runs and Jackie Brown scattered seven hits Thursday night to spark the Texas Rangers to a 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Johnson, whose three singles and a double raised his average to .301, singled home Cesar Tovar in the first inning and doubled home two more runs in the seventh to chase losing pitcher Jim Perry, the Cleveland starter.

Tovar, who reached base 10 times in 15 trips to the plate in the three-game series, led off the game with a single, took second on Lenny Randle's sacrifice and scored on Johnson's line single to center.

Toby Harrah opened the three-run seventh with a single and reached third on a two-base throwing error by second baseman Jack Brohamer. Jim Fregosi singled home Harrah and Tovar was hit by a pitched ball. Randle forced Tovar at second, then stole second, and Johnson ripped a two-run double to right center.

Yankees Hit Chicago, 5-1

Chicago (UPI) — Gene Michael singled in two runs in the fourth inning and George Medich scattered 10 hits in gaining his seventh victory Thursday night as the New York Yankees beat the Chicago White Sox 5-1 in a game twice delayed by rain for periods of 90 and 29 minutes.

Medich, who walked three and struck out two, shut out the White Sox until the ninth when Ken Henderson hit his seventh homer. He got all the help he needed when the Yanks scored two runs off loser Stan Bahnsen in the first.

Roy White opened the game with a perfectly placed bunt down the first base line and raced to third on a single by Elliott Maddox. After Bobby Murcer walked to load the bases, Ron Blomberg's sacrifice fly scored White. A single by Graig Nettles scored Maddox with the second run.

Bahnsen was shelled from the mound in the fourth inning after Bill Sudakis and Rick Dempsey collected consecutive singles. After Jim Mason sacrificed the runners, Michael lashed a single down the rightfield line, scoring Sudakis and Dempsey.

NOT INTERESTED IN INSURANCE SALES . . .

That's what many of our top agents said before they found out that not all insurance sales careers were the same. Here are just a few reasons why they work for us and many earn over $15,000 a year.

1. Leads — each and every day. (no collections)
2. We concentrate on hospitalization insurance (even for those who already have group coverage)
4. Top benefits for you and your family such as free hospitalization.
5. Vested renewals.
6. Financial help while training.

Let us tell you more, we know you'll feel that we're different and better. If you're interested in a career and advancement, or are just interested, please contact:

NOT INTERESTED IN INSURANCE SALES . . .

That's what many of our top agents said before they found out that not all insurance sales careers were the same. Here are just a few reasons why they work for us and many earn over $15,000 a year.

1. Leads — each and every day. (no collections)
2. We concentrate on hospitalization insurance (even for those who already have group coverage)
4. Top benefits for you and your family such as free hospitalization.
5. Vested renewals.
6. Financial help while training.

Let us tell you more, we know you'll feel that we're different and better. If you're interested in a career and advancement, or are just interested, please contact:

Call collect 402-393-7770 or write to P.O. Box 14489, Omaha, Nebraska 68114.

HMP! I SEE THE JONES'S DAUGHTER IS GETTING MARRIED TOMORROW...
WELL! EVIDENTLY WE AREN'T CONSIDERED AS FRIENDS ANY MORE!
... AND IF THEY ARE, IT'S:
BAH! THE WEDDING'S ON A SATURDAY! I'D RATHER PLAY GOLF!
THAT MEANS ANOTHER EXPENSIVE GIFT! WE ALREADY GAVE AT HER SHOWER!
Thanks to NO NAME CHICAGO, ILL.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 6-7

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

AND YOU THINK YOU CAN SELL A COUPLE OF SHIP MODELS EVERY MONTH, MRS. CANTRELL?
THE DEALER SAID HE'D TAKE EVERYTHING I BROUGHT HIM, ROBBIE.
YOU CAN'T IMAGINE HOW MUCH THIS MEANS TO ME—AND MY WIFE! WE'RE DOWN TO OUR LAST FEW DOLLARS—AND THERE WAS NO RELIEF IN SIGHT…
